The Restless Dollar.
12,000 Against the Tick.
Another Leonardo.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 24.

Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, knows about political economy and says the plans and policies of President Roosevelt "are substantially right." Which is a good thing for a professor to say.

The professor is pleased because President Roosevelt is seeking "stabilization" of the dollar and quotes the President's message to the London conference last July:

"The United States of America seeks the kind of a dollar which, a generation hence, will have the same purchasing power and debt-paying power as the dollar we hope to attain in the near future."

OF COURSE, President Roosevelt did not literally mean that any dollar could have, a generation hence, the same purchasing power as it has now.

Values and purchasing power depend on price of human labor. You could build pyramids at low cost when workers got nothing but lashes and enough corn and water to keep them alive.

If the five or four-day week, and the working day of seven or six hours, goes through with increased wages, the dollar cannot possibly buy, a generation hence, what it buys now

If our depression lasts a generation, which Heaven forbid, the dollar would buy more than at present. There was a time when you could buy a goose for two pence, a sheep for twice the price, an ox for two or three shillings.

Nobody can stabilize the dollar's value, except by saying that it will be exchanged for so much gold, and that doesn't mean much.

ONE MAN'S meat is another's poison. Cigar manufacturers tell NRA that raising wages in the cigar industry will make the five-cent cigar impossible.

The code would pay 28 cents an hour to makers of cigars by hand, 32 cents for operators of machines that make cigars. That does not seem excessive. Some one will continue the five-cent cigar.

THE DEPARTMENT of Agriculture will put 12,000 men to work on "tick eradication." The "tick," improperly called sometimes the Texas tick, attaches itself to cattle in the field, hangs on for life, drinking the animal's blood.

The remedy is to dip afflicted animals in a liquid that destroys ticks and then keep them away from infected animals.

The poor tick will not put up much of a fight against Uncle Sam, for when it falls off a cow, it can walk only a few inches and must wait until another animal stands still while it climbs up.

MOSQUITOES drink the blood of human beings, annoy them, and in addition plant malaria germs in their systems. The tick at least does not do that. It is satisfied to eat.

It is pleasing to know that $4,500,000 will be spent by the government "to eradicate malaria," which presumably means wiping out mosquitoes, in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

An unfortunately neglected rain barrel can start a new mosquito plague, and although mosquitoes cannot fly far, wind sometimes carries them, and railroad trains and automobiles take them everywhere.

PROF. J. D. PAULSON, of North Carolina State College, graduate of Yale's school of fine arts, says the supposed Botticelli "Adoration of the Kings" is really Leonardo da Vinci's painting of "The Birth of Christ."

The supposed Botticelli, formerly owned by the Soviet government, was purchased by an American private citizen, who remains anonymous.

If the supposed Botticelli turns out to be a Leonardo, the anonymous owner has bought a great bargain. No price could be put on such a painting by Leonardo, although he himself attached little importance to his paintings.

Applying to an African ruler for a job, he told in detail how he could build bridges, highways, fortifications, machines for besieging cities and added casually:

"If it should amuse you, I also paint and play on the flute."

In the life of Leonardo you are amazed at his versatility. He was a painter, sculptor, architect, engineer, musician, mathematician, poet, anatomist, botanist, physicist and more than four hundred years ago he designed an airplane that would have flown had he had a modern gas engine.

Young gentlemen who want to be artistic geniuses overnight would not like Leonardo's suggestion that seven years' apprenticeship should be spent learning how to mix paints.

ANOTHER STRANGE case, at Meridian, Miss. A well-known physician was shot dead as he sat at his dinner table on Monday last.

Public officials say the case is one of "justifiable homicide," but do not tell who did the justifiable killing, or what the justification was and now the county attorney says:

"So far as the prosecuting authorities are concerned the case is closed."

Senator Sentenced to 18 Months in Pen, Fined $5,000

By SYDNEY H. EIGES
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—Once a leading figure in the legislative halls of Harrisburg, State Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, convicted with 70 others in United States District Court this morning in a huge liquor conspiracy, today was sentenced to serve 18 months in the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg and pay a fine of $10,000.

His features whitened as Judge George A. Welsh meted out the sentence, less than three hours after the legislator was convicted in one of the most amazing trials in a federal court.

Judge Welsh was brief. He said:

"Mr. McClure, I'm going to sentence you to 18 months in the Federal Penitentiary and to pay a fine of $10,000."

SECRETARY SENT UP

A short while before, John F. Bauer, the legislator's personal secretary, who, it was testified, handled much of the business of the graft ring which Senator McClure headed, was sentenced to 15 months in the county jail and to pay a fine of $5,000.

Senator McClure turned slowly around as sentence was pronounced, walked back to the counsel table and slumped into a chair.

His rest was short, for two deputy marshals approached to lead him away to the United States Marshal's office to join the other prisoners who had been sentenced.

Meanwhile, his personal attorney, former Judge James Gay Gordon, Sr., went before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals with a motion for a new trial. It was expected similar motions would be made in behalf of other of the defendants.

87 SENTENCED

Sentences also were passed today on 15 additional defendants who previously had pleaded guilty and a woman who pleaded "No defense," making a total of 87 sentenced today.

A total of 96 had been indicted originally. Charges against three

BREAKS AFTER 3 DAYS; 'GIVE HER THE LIMIT,' VICTIM'S FATHER SAYS

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The confession of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop that she fired a bullet into the heart of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, while the girl was unconscious, was announced today by Police Capt. John Stege.

Breaking down at last after nearly three days of exhausting examination, the 62-year-old woman physician acknowledged that she had administered chloroform to her son's 23-year-old wife, in examining her for a pelvic pain of which the girl had complained.

She had gone to her surgical office in the basement of her Monroe street house last Tuesday afternoon to find Rheta partly undressed, weighing herself.

Rheta complained of severe pains, Dr. Wynekoop said, and she placed the young woman on her operating table and began to administer chloroform to ease the pain and facilitate examination.

Dr. Wynekoop told Capt. Stege she kept asking Rheta if she could feel the pain and that her daughter-in-law continued to answer affirmatively. Finally, the physician explained, Rheta lost consciousness and for 25 minutes she tried strenuously to revive her.

SHOOTS GIRL THROUGH HEART

When she realized she was losing ground, Dr. Alice said, she became panic stricken. The doctor was quoted:

"All the events of my life flashed through my mind, and I thought of a pistol in an adjoining room."

Fearful of blame for killing the girl with an anesthetic, she said she obtained the pistol and, holding it five inches from the bare back of the unconscious girl, fired a single shot.

That shot penetrated the shoulder blade and passed through Rheta's heart.

Capt. Stege placed the time of the killing between 3:30 and 4 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) Tuesday, at a time when Dr. Wynekoop had said previously she was absent from the 16-room mansion.

For the first time since the mysterious killing, Dr. Alice and her son Earle had met in the police quarters where both had been subjected to night-long questioning, separately. Near the breaking point but always protesting his innocence, the 28-year-old widower had said he knew of a motive, and wanted to see his mother.

PLEADS WITH MOTHER

On her shoulder he sobbed a plea that she admit her guilt if she had done it because of her great love for him.

Looking solemnly into his reddened eyes, she said:

"I didn't do it."

Earle had told the police his wife had been termed by a physician "slightly deranged," and that she had put iron filings and drugs in food at their home.

After their two-hour meeting, Earle had been led away to lunch.

FRICK MINERS REBUFF UNION

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 24.—Wild celebration with plenty of fireworks, gunfire and dynamite bombs; fist fights and stone-throwing last night and today marked the victory of the so-called company union brotherhoods over the United Mine Workers in eight out of 14 mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

Three of the contests were so close that the "unofficial" results announced by executives of the National Labor Board are considered doubtful. Two were listed as Brotherhood victories and the third a United Mine Workers' victory.

One man was injured seriously in an attack on his automobile by stone-throwers in the vicinity of the Frick-owned Colonial No. 3 mine as he drove home from the polls.

He is Sam Lynch, Negro representative on the United Mine

250 Toy Makers Walk Out on Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Consternation reigns among a lot of youngsters with their minds on December 25 and they're planning appeals to the National Labor Board, or Santa Claus. The trouble is that 250 toy makers went on strike for more money and—of all things, say the kids, union recognition! At a time like this!

PRIVATE LIQUOR TAXABLE

If you have a whisky cellar, watch out!

The $2 floor tax, voted by the Legislature against all whisky stored in Pennsylvania, applies not only to distillery whisky but to privately-owned stuff, according to a strict interpretation of the law.

If you, then, had a gallon of whisky in your home before Wednesday, you owe the commonwealth $2, if it is 100 proof. The amount of the tax is determined by the proof. This tax apparently applies to whisky stock in hospitals, too.

However, the Department of Revenue may find it more than an overnight job to collect the tax.

Little Pooch Tackles Big Mad Police Dog

SEATTLE, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Queenie, a little Belgian shepherd dog, yesterday attacked a large police dog suffering from rabies, and was bitten 10 times while she kept the big animal away from Donald Benn, her 3-year-old master. Her fight gave Lawrence Wehrwein, a neighbor, time to kill the mad dog with a shotgun. A veterinarian placed Queenie under observation.

Lindberghs Fly To Canary Islands

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here at 3:15 p. m., today after a flight from Ponte Delgada, in the Azores Islands.

The flight, during which the Colonel circled over Funchal, Madeira, at which place he had been expected to alight, was described as without incident.

Horse Leaps on Auto Top, Driver Unhurt

WEST CHESTER, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—It was actually a horse on Miss Alice Kohler's automobile last night. While she was driving home, a riderless steed attempted to leap over the vehicle, lengthwise, but its forefeet crashed through the roof. The animal freed itself before Miss Kohler could stop, and a pursuing groom halted its flight.

FAY SAYS RUDY PLANS DIVORCE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Rudy Vallee is seeking a Mexican divorce from Fay Webb, his estranged wife, she charged today, so that he may marry a pretty blues singer, who shares his radio hour.

Fay did not name the singer, but for months the crooner has been attentive to Alice Faye and a romance between them has been often reported.

Mrs. Vallee made her charges in an affidavit when she started action in Supreme Court to prevent Rudy from going to Mexico to obtain a divorce decree which she says he has threatened.

Her counsel, Benjamin A. Harstein, obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Cohn requiring Vallee to show cause why he should not be restrained from obtaining the divorce in Mexico or in any state outside of New York. The order is returnable on next Tuesday before Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 24—(AP.)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who became ill with the grip last Friday, was described at his home today as "resting comfortably and out of danger."

'Gonna Stay Drunk For Month,' Says Playboy

Judge Frank P. Patterson sat in his dignified robes on the bench of Common Pleas Court. The testimony in the Harrison R. McCready suit to upset the $150,000 trust fund for his first wife and child was being taken. Attorneys were arguing. The room was crowded, the doors locked to keep out the crowd.

And then came a kick on the door.

The court was a bit perturbed. But ignored it.

MONACA 'FIX' TRIALS SLATED

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today announced that the first of the embracery trials growing out of alleged attempts to fix the Monaca Club case last June would start next Tuesday.

Edward Costello, former constable of Glenfield, will be the first to face a jury, Park said. Other defendants who will follow in turn are Charles L. O'Connell, of Leetsdale; Charles Fahey, 145 Meridan street and Tom Coyne, 233 North Craig street, brother of State Senator James J. Coyne.

A fifth defendant, Ralph LaRocco, former tax collector of Coraopolis, indicted only on a conspiracy charge, will be tried with the others, also named on like charges, after the individual trials on the embracery charges have been completed.

The Monaca Club case involved as defendants the "three Toms," Coyne, Dolan and Goslin, accused of violating liquor and gambling laws in operation of the club, which was raided by state police.

ROOSEVELT MOVES AHEAD WITH DOLLAR REVALUATION

MORGENTHAU VISITS CHIEF IN SOUTH

President Dedicates New Hall at Warm Springs

WARM SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Acting Secretary of the Treasury, came to Warm Springs today for a week end visit with President Roosevelt.

The Secretary described his trip here as "a vacation rest planned long ago."

Of course, the meeting gives ample opportunity for a checkup on Treasury affairs and a report to the President on the gold-buying monetary program. Ignoring the critics of this plan, the President is going ahead with it.

PRESIDENT IN POOL

Mr. Morgenthau had to go searching to find the President. He found him in the open air swimming pool enjoying a plunge.

Morgenthau jumped in, too, and later Mr. Roosevelt drove him in his car to the "Little White House," where Mrs. James Roosevelt, Sr., the President's mother, and Mrs. Morgenthau joined them at lunch.

A seat at the table was reserved for Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, who also was on the day's calling list.

Tonight the President dedicates the new Georgia Hall given to the Warm Springs Foundation by the people of this state.

He will talk over the air to the nation but his associates assert that he regards this event as one of intimacy through his close association with this retreat for infantile paralysis victims. So they do not look for any public discussion of the monetary controversy.

Johnson Scores Foes Of Roosevelt Policy

ATLANTA, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, today struck at the critics of President Roosevelt's monetary policy, saying:

"Any man who falsely impugns the credit of the United States is impugning the welfare of our whole people."

Johnson spoke to an audience in Atlanta last night on the NRA. In an interview today, just before he left for Warm Springs to see the President, he said:

"Considering that greed is the greatest of human incentives on which the minds of men have been focussed since the beginning of time, somebody ought to know something about money—but nobody does.

"The quasi-science of economics is just a tangle of conjecture about which no two of these solemn pundits agree.

"Franklin Roosevelt is conducting an experiment in fact. But of this our country may be sure; that sane, cool mind is not going plunging over any abyss.

"If he did cut the gold content of the dollar in two, it would still remain the best money in the world. Talk about impairment of the federal credit is silly."

Domestic Gold Price Above World Quotations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The fixed price of newly-mined domestic gold stood at a level substantially higher than world quotations today for the first time in more than a week as the administration clung to its monetary program.

Today's domestic gold price was fixed at $33.76 an ounce. Meanwhile, the price at London was $33.48, computed at the opening sterling quotation of $5.31 to the pound.

Officials would make no comment upon the bond situation, but said privately they believed that reports of a serious rift between the Reserve Board and the Treasury were greatly exaggerated.

Father, Son Hang For Farm Murder

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Kenneth and William McLean, father and son, were hanged today for the murder of Walter J. Parsille, Manville (Alta.) farmer.

The McLeans were arrested in Knoxville, Tenn., and returned to Canada following the murder.

SEES 'TREASON' IN BOND CRACK

By PAUL C. YATES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—New banking legislation to safeguard government credit against "treasonable attacks" was demanded today by Senator Pat Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi.

Harrison's demand was made as the administration launched a sweeping investigation into charges that a group of New York bankers have conspired to wreck the government bond market through short sales of securities held in their own portfolios.

The investigation into these charges is being conducted by the New York Federal Reserve Bank and by the government.

Describing the charges as "of almost seriousness," Harrison expressed confidence that the true facts will be ascertained speedily, he declared.

"If there is any movement on the part of any bank or banker to loan government securities for the purpose of affecting the credit of this government, the facts ought to be ascertained, and if the law has been violated the perpetrators should be convicted.

"It is shown the practice is merely unethical but not a violation of criminal statutes, then a law must be passed to stop such operations."

Dry Agents Raid Hollywood Club

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24.—(INS.)—Federal prohibition agents conducted what probably will be their "last roundup" in a Hollywood night club early today.

Their days numbered in the repeal of the prohibition act, two agents flashed into Caesar's Cafe, a swanky night life rendezvous of the film colony, and when the screams of frightened women had subsided, arrested one man and seized three cases of whisky.

NRA 'TYRANNY' SEEN BY MUNN

The NRA may lead America into tyranny and revolution unless an "enlightened public opinion" acts as a check to the present administration, Ralph Munn, director of Carnegie Library, told members of the Aero Club in the William Penn Hotel yesterday. He impressed upon his audience that his remarks were not to be construed as an attack on NRA, holding that only intelligent criticism and constructive changes could make the administration's policy a success. He said in part:

"We have, or we are on a fair way to having, a dictator in Washington. Under the emergency I believe we will agree that this is necessary. Some one has to tell the rest of us what to do so that we can all work together.

"But the course of history shows that the dictator is usually followed by the despot, the despot by the tyrant. This has so often occurred that it is not inconceivable that it should happen to America. Historically, when the tyranny became too oppressive to book further endurance, revolution followed."

Adopt NRA Code For Chaperones

BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Members of the Beloit College faculty and their wives have adopted an NRA code which they hope will prevent overworking of college party chaperones.

The code suggests college regulations to require one couple to chaperone a party instead of two, and asks that the chaperone assignments be rotated so each faculty member will not have to attend more than one or two parties each semester.

'Easy Pickings' Over, Roper Tells Traders

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Asserting the "day of easy pickings has passed," Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper told the Ohio State Chamber of Commerce last night that "unrestricted exploitation has had its day in America and is now definitely on its way out."

Discussing "the scope and progress of the recovery program," the commerce secretary said the alleviation of human suffering and need has been, and is, its primary objective.

Lloyds Doubtful on France's Gold Grip

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Brokers for Lloyds are effecting insurance against France going off the gold standard, it became known today, charging 30 guineas per 100 guineas, or 30 per cent.

It was stated in city circles that some concerns, disturbed by trends responsible for the recent weakness of the franc, had taken out insurance as a precaution.

NRA SETS PRICE FOR CLEANING

Dry cleaning prices in Allegheny County become subject to a minimum of 85 cents beginning next Monday under the Cleaning and Dyeing Code Authority of NRA.

This price will become effective on men's suits and women's plain dresses, according to W. J. Mooney, chairman of the Cleaners and Dyers' Association of Western Pennsylvania. The prevailing price has been 75 cents. Mooney explained that the prices, set at Washington for a 30-day trial period, govern the minimum charge only and a higher price can be charged.

Four cities in the state come under the 95 cent rate, while higher rate was allowed in Oil City, Greensburg, Harrisburg and Wilkes-Barre, according to the Associated Press.

Oakland Removes Noted City Manager

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Ossian E. Carr, president of the International City Managers Associations, was removed as city manager of Oakland last night by a 5 to 4 vote of the city council.

FORD GETS O. K. FROM JOHNSON

ATLANTA, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson holds that Henry Ford has complied with the provisions of the National Recovery Act and is no longer "any concern of mine."

He was asked about the Detroit manufacturer's status in the automobile code after he addressed an NRA rally in Atlanta last night. He did not elaborate on his answer.

Indications have been that Ford may come South to Warm Springs to see President Roosevelt, but he has not yet appeared at the "Little White House."

Convicted Senator

SENATOR JOHN J. M'CLURE . . . . . GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

State Senator McClure, today with 70 others found guilty in Federal Court in Philadelphia of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. Eighty-seven in the ring were immediately sentenced.

DON'T GIVE UP RIGHTS, REED WARNS

People 'Treated Like Little Children,' Senator Says

With a kind word for the NRA and a warning against currency inflation policies, Sen. David A. Reed reviewed the Roosevelt administration in a manner he described as "frank, impartial and un-political" last night before the Railway Club of Pittsburgh in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The staunch Pennsylvania Republican marveled at the manner in which he said people were standing by unmoved while their constitutional rights were being taken away from them by certain executive measures. He said:

"The people were little moved when the Treasury Department refused to make public its fiscal figures; they were more interested in whether Pitt won the football game.

"They tell us the dollar will gradually decrease in value, but they don't tell us when its value will drop or how much at a time. Are we to be treated like little children?

"I may be a Tory, but I like to know where I'm going before I leap. The motives of the administration are noble, but most of the harm that is done to us come from high motives. They are like good intentions.

"The people should consider deeply before they surrender the rights for which their forefathers fought."

Railway men with a leaning toward Soviet investments following the recognition of Russia were warned by Senator Reed, who averred that Russia might not be a good credit risk.

He said the Soviet had failed to meet short time notes of Japan, Italy and Germany.

He described the administration's gold buying policy to bring about advanced commodity prices as a failure. The policy was followed against the advice of the Federal Reserve Board, he said.

Declaring that relief cannot emerge from tinkering with the currency, the Senator cited what he said was the havoc that followed previous money inflations.

M'CLURE GUILTY IN RUM PLOT, FACES PEN

Senator and 86 Others Sentenced by U. S. Judge

were nolle prossed and six failed for one reason or another to come to trial.

Many today were given suspended sentences or placed on probation.

Among those sent to prison or jail, besides McClure and Baner, were:

Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, a year and a day and fined $2,500; Arnold McNeal, private detective attached to the District Attorney's office, and Joseph Doblitz, Chester hotel keeper and alleged bootlegger, nine months and $2,000 each; Frank D'Amato, alleged bootlegger, nine months and $1,000; Tim McCary, head of the Chester Board of Health, six months and $1,000.

McCLURE 'DUMFOUNDED'

As the verdict of the jury was delivered by the 12 middle-aged men who decided the fate of the legislator, once considered a Republican gubernatorial possibility, Senator McClure was dumfounded.

The jury appeared bright eyed and rested, as if it had reached the verdict last night without much haggling. It received the case at 1:22 yesterday afternoon and began deliberations at 2:45.

As news of the verdict traveled through the staid old federal building, a shout went up from about 200 spectators congregated in the corridors. Department of Justice agents drove the crowd back.

Thus, in a few dramatic minutes came to a temporary end one of the most sensational trials ever heard in a federal court.

After listening to the government's fiery prosecutor, Chet A. Keyes, brought here from Kansas City to conduct the case and pile up thousands of pages of testimony in the past eight weeks, the jury found that the defendants had all engaged in a huge conspiracy to defeat the prohibition laws now already dead.

JURY SYSTEM 'SAFE'

"The jury system is safe.

"This jury has rendered a real public service to all the American people.

"The challenge of the grafter and the racketeer has been accepted and answered.

"Of far greater importance than the conviction and punishment of the defendants is the expose of the vicious system."

$220,000 IN YEAR

It was testified at the trial that in one year the ring collected from law violators more than $220,000.

With this as a basis, the government sought to show that the ring grossed about $2,000,000 during its lifetime, from 1922 until almost the eve of the trial in Federal Court.

Senator McClure was accused as the actual head of the ring from 1922 until 1927, when he was elected to the Legislature.

Slips of paper purporting to show the addresses of speakeasies he ordered "knocked off" for non-payment of "protection" and those stamped with an "O. K." were introduced at the trial.

No effort was made by the government to prove the handwriting was that of Senator McClure.

The legislator was accused by witnesses of personally accepting graft payments in his office in the Crozier Building at Chester. It was likewise testified that he personally paid off his "collectors" and "enforcers" there on a regular weekly schedule.

The ring's activities, the government charged, spread beyond the confines of the county and extended to rum smuggling at sea. While policemen stood guard, it was testified, boatloads of smuggled liquor were landed at the docks in Chester and Essington.

FRAMEUP CHARGED

The defense maintained Senator McClure was the victim of opposing political forces who sought to "frame" him with the aid of the grafting constables, D. Harvey Sykes, William J. Falls, Thomas F. Conley, and Arthur B. Holden, all of whom had pleaded guilty and were called as government witnesses.

Defense attorneys were balked at every turn by Judge Welsh when they sought to introduce the cry of "politics" into the trial. The defense offered no testimony to refute the government's case.

Unofficial estimates placed the cost of the trial at not less than $50,000.

Constance Denies Divorce Reports

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Constance Bennett, of the movies, and her husband, the Marquis de la Falaise, will celebrate their second wedding anniversary tomorrow at a gathering of friends. Scouting persistent reports that the two plan a divorce, the Marquis announced the anniversary plans and said he had "just had luncheon with my wife." Miss Bennett added her confirmation.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Barbara Stanwyck Fay, stage and screen actress, and her husband, Frank Fay, actor, were named yesterday in income tax liens for $6,102.35 each, filed by federal revenue collectors. The amounts are claimed on 1932 earnings of the couple.

Nina Wilcox Putnam, author, was named in a lien for $323.98, representing taxes on 1932 earnings. She filed a petition in bankruptcy last week.

Other motion picture players named in liens are Hoot Gibson, $1,286.03, and Sally Eilers, his former wife, $1,335.38, representing taxes on 1932 incomes.

COURT BACKS CAVEAT VENDOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Federal Judge John M. Woolsey today ruled that the old Roman maxim, "Caveat emptor," freely translated as "Purchaser, beware," must be supplanted by a new maxim, "Caveat vendor," or "Seller, beware."

The ruling was contained in a 47-page opinion in which he upheld the indictment of five defendants charged with fraudulent use of the mails in connection with the sale of stock of the Manhattan Electrical Supply Company.

Judge Woolsey said it appeared to him "that where two or more persons engaged in a so-called pool operation on a stock exchange in respect to a stock, it is only by scrupulously maintained honesty of dealing that they may escape condemnation as a fraudulent conspiracy."

Russian Princess' Marriage Annuled

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—A striking 21-year-old woman, who identified herself in court as Princess Adia Elyana Karamzin, granddaughter of Leon Karamzin, Russia's noted historian, today was granted an annulment of her marriage to George Landsman.

She testified she married Landsman at Washington, D. C., in 1929, when she was but 17 years old. She said Landsman disappeared the following day and later sent her a letter advising her to get a divorce, saying "I am not fit to be the husband of any woman."

HOOVER REBUKE BY WIGGIN REVEALED

President Told 'To Mind Own Business' By Banker in '29

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Albert H. Wiggin, former head of the Chase National Bank, was so powerful a figure in December, 1929, he sent word to President Hoover to "mind his own business," William Fox, movie magnate, testified today at the Senate banking inquiry.

Fox said Wiggin sent this message to Mr. Hoover through Claudius H. Huston, then Republican National Chairman, when the latter attempted to placate the banker's enmity for the movie magnate.

REBUKED BY BANKER

Fox said Huston first had told the President about his troubles with the New York bankers. Then, Fox added, Huston went to see Wiggin, trying to rescue the Fox film empire from the bankers. Fox said:

"Mr. Wiggin told Huston to tell the President of the United States to please mind his own business."

Fox made a dramatic recital of the appeal to Wiggin. He previously told of a personal appeal to President Hoover in June, 1929, when the Department of Justice was threatening him with an anti-trust suit after the Coolidge administration had approved the merger of his Fox Film Company with Loew's, Inc.

Fox then recited how in the fall of 1929, a New York banking group was denying him credit. He charged the group was trying to drive him to the wall.

Then relating how he had enlisted to help of Huston and how Wiggin resented Mr. Hoover's interference in this matter, Fox added:

"Now, remember, gentlemen, that was in December, 1928. These bankers thought they drew their power from God Almighty. They were not working under conditions that prevail now."

His voice choking, Fox said dramatically:

"There was no 'new deal.' The common people were just common people then."

"The last thing Mr. Hoover wanted to have was a company like ours go into receivership at a time like that. Mr. Huston knew all these bankers and everything he did, he did to help. I considered him the agent of the President."

BANK SURETY LEAK BANNED

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Announcement by banks that they will become members of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation may not be made until the membership in the fund is officially published by the corporation, under regulations promulgated today by Chairman Walter J. Cummings.

Reports had been received that some banks have been advertising their prospective membership, thus giving them an advantage over other institutions.

Under the law all member banks of the Federal Reserve System automatically become members January 1, while non-member banks which meet the corporation's requirements may enjoy the benefits of the fund.

McCormick Cites NRA Move to Curb Press

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The right to a free press is "indispensable to freedom of speech, freedom of petition and freedom of religion," Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, declared last night in an address over the NBC network.

Col. McCormick declared:

"Religion could not be exercised freely if religious doctrines might not be printed, nor would the right to speak freely avail much if speeches could not be published.

"Nor is the right to petition our government of value unless the petition may be printed."

The speaker emphasized three recent incidents in the enforcement of the National Recovery Act, which he listed as follows:

"First, the threat to prosecute the editor of the Tallahassee (Ala.) Tribune if he continued to publish editorials objectionable to the bureaucrat, Donnegan.

"Second, the withdrawal of press privileges from Mr. True by Gen. Johnson for publishing letters objectionable to Gen. Johnson.

"Third, the withdrawal of the Blue Eagle from the tailor, Murray, of Lynn, Mass., for words published in an advertisement objectionable to the local NRA pro-consuls and the administrator, over the protests of Congressman William P. Connery, which was followed by the bankruptcy of Murray.

"In this instance the tailor was a publisher, and his right, which was infringed, was the right of free press."

Asserting the provision for licensing newspapers in the NRA blanket newspaper code violates the first amendment of the Constitution, McCormick added:

"Whatever opinion may be entertained as to the value of code control imposed upon industries, it is obvious that if the newspapers of the country are regimented together as a class under government authority, they will not enjoy the unlimited freedom that has been their lot since the expiration of the sedition law."

Pitt Journalists Gird For Battle on Gridiron

A football game is to be played by the Pitt News and the Pitt Panther staffs the day before Thanksgiving. Rivalry between the newspaper and magazine has been at fever heat for weeks. University of Pittsburgh students say, and the football game may determine once and for all the university publications championship.

Both the editor of the Panther, Omer Kronenwetter, and the editor of the News, John D. Paulus, promise a strictly amateur contest. Rules established for the fray forbid practice outside of the Cathedral of Learning, and the boys will enter the crucial battle as dumb about football as the average freshman co-ed.

Although Varsity Coach "Jock" Sutherland has issued strict orders against smearing up the field with too much blood, the Pitt practice football field has been tentatively selected as a site for the game.

NURSE, CLEARED IN GRACE KILLING, EMBRACED BY JUROR

CONNELLSVILLE WOMAN WILL JOIN KIN

Returning to Penna. In Search for Health

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Acquitted of a murder charge, Frieda Wilhelmina Weltz was free here today to seek again the health and happiness she claims were shattered by the man she was accused of slaying, Francis J. M. Grace, retired capitalist.

The 43-year-old nurse, a veteran of the World War, was acquitted last night by a jury, whose foreman and only woman member) Mrs. Ruby Enemark, embraced her after the verdict was read. Mrs. Enemark said:

"I never had any doubt as to what our verdict would be, but I was surprised it took so long."

OUT 10 HOURS

The jury was out more than 10 hours and had been ordered to bed for the night when agreement on a verdict was suddenly announced.

Miss Weltz was so overcome with emotion she was unable to issue a statement but her attorney, John Duggan, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Pa., said she will go to Connellsville, Pa., to be with relatives.

Grace, 58, and a nephew of the late W. R. Grace, founder of the shipping and commission concern, was fatally shot in the garden of his Santa Cruz summer home, September 9. Miss Weltz, apparently in a daze, was taken into custody a few minutes later and charged with slaying the man she had formerly nursed.

ATTACK CHARGED

Police quoted her as saying only that she had a "good and sufficient reason" to shoot Grace and not until she took the witness stand at her trial did she amplify the statement. She asserted that Grace, while she was in his employ, attacked her and induced her to take measures to avoid motherhood.

Miss Weltz told the jury that as a result her health was wrecked and that she had gone to Grace seeking aid; determined to shoot herself and "fall dead at his feet" if he refused. She declared the pistol accidentally went off as she drew it from her purse.

DUGGAN VICTORY

A Pittsburgh attorney, John Duggan, Jr., of the Grant Building, headed defense counsel for defense Miss Weltz. Attorney Duggan made two trips to the coast by plane—the first to aid in preparing Miss Weltz's case and the second to conduct the trial.

STORE ROBBERY FOILED; 4 HELD

The looting of a downtown dress and millinery shop at 326 Fifth avenue was frustrated early today by police, who said they arrested four suspects.

Surrounding the building after the watchman in the Warner Theater said he had heard a noise in the Changor Millinery Shop, adjoining, police arrested Nick Terlaski, 20, of 39 South Thirteenth street, on the roof.

Near him was a bundle of 111 women's dresses valued at $1,000, according to Miss E. C. Davis, manager of the store. Police said four other bundles were found in the store.

After questioning Terlaski, police made their way to Diamond street where they arrested John Husak, 18, of 34 Eynon way, as he sat in an automobile.

Later Mike Rudden, 31, of 124 South Eighteenth street, said to have been the owner of the automobile used by Husak and James Bova, 30, of 134 South Eighteenth street, were arrested.

GOULD CASINO RAZED BY FIRE

NICE, France, Nov. 24.—(INS.)—Frank J. Gould's magnificent casino, the Palais de la Mediterranee, was destroyed by fire today.

The casino, long one of the most popular gambling houses on the Riviera, was built at a cost of $5,000,000.

The Palais de la Mediterrance represented the most ambitious attempt ever made by any American to capture the fancy of visitors to the Riviera.

Lavish in its decorations and boasting one of the finest restaurants along the Mediterranean, The Palais was situated on a little neck of land putting out into the sea.

Despite the tremendous investment Gould put into the casino, it never was a financial success and was known generally as his "ivory elephant." The casino was due to open for the winter season tomorrow.

TEACHER DEFIES DEATH PROBERS

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—A thin, drawn little Chicago school teacher, for 10 years a resident in the Wynekoop house of mystery, today drew an accusation from the police that she was hampering their investigation of the operating room murder of the pretty girl-wife, Rheta Gardner Wynekoop.

And the little school teacher, Miss Enid Hennesey, close friend of the murder victim's mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, was not content merely to sit back and take the accusation without a retort. She fired back:

"I suppose the police will bungle this case like they did the Loeb-Leopold case at first.

"You know, the police arrested a professor at that time and beat him terribly trying to get confession out of him.

"And he was proved innocent.

"This is my first murder, you know. There is a lot of psychology to a thing like this. As a matter of fact, a person with a strong psychosis did it. It was probably one of those persons who exhibit themselves so frequently in Garfield Park."

Roosevelt Held Avoiding Inflation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt apparently is trying to avoid inflation, Speaker Rainey of the House said today.

Rainey, expressing the hope that the President will authorize silver coinage, said that a strong battle will be waged in Congress by the "silver bloc" for considerable use of silver as a part of the nation's currency.

Glass Eye Irks Wife, Husband Asks Divorce

Because his wife objected to the removal of his glass eye at night, Herman Eidinger, of 2228 Carson street, asked Judge Samuel H. Gardner to divorce him from Anna Ida Eidinger, of 5510 Black street, at a hearing in Divorce Court today.

Eidinger, a World War veteran, explained that he lost the sight of an eye in France and that physicians had advised him to remove the artificial one at night in order to rest his other eye. His wife, he said, objected strenuously.

KAMONS SEES PARDON

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Awaiting return to prison in Pennsylvania after having been acquitted of a charge of arson here, Louis J. Kamons, of Pittsburgh, said today he had been notified Gov. Pinchot will pardon him.

Kamons was brought here from Western Penitentiary for trial in connection with a fire last year in which 12 persons lost their lives. He was acquitted last night.

The tall Pittsburgher also said he had information his son, Aden, also would be pardoned. Both were convicted in Beaver County on a charge of having set fire to an Ambridge, Pa., shoe store. The son now is serving his term in Pennsylvania.

Woman Doctor Admits Surgical Room Slaying

Confesses She Shot Daughter-in-Law After Drugging Her

Then began the final questioning that resulted in the doctor's statement, with which Capt. Stege still professed to be unsatisfied.

Stege said he had found a blood-stained blanket in the house and had concealed this discovery from Dr. Alice.

Capt. Stege asserted that the large amount of blood soaked in the blanket led him to disbelieve that Rheta had been chloroformed before she was shot, and that physicians had sustained his theory.

'GIVE HER THE LIMIT'

When Burdine H. Gardner, father of the slain woman, was informed of the mother-in-law's statement, he said:

"All I can say is, give her the limit."

The Coroner's inquest was reconvened this afternoon to hear the new evidence.

Previous to the confession of Dr. Alice, admissions of conditions surrounding the slaying of Rheta were made by Earle, but he did not confess any guilt or knowledge of who slew his wife.

His mother denied in his presence that she had killed the young woman, although Earle said she had a motive, as his wife was mentally unbalanced.

The police had announced that a partial confession had been made, but later withdrew the announcement.

The husband detailed his life with the Indianapolis girl, said the marriage was a failure, that the wife had attempted to poison the family and had developed tuberculosis.

The son said he could see where his mother had a motive for doing away with Rheta to help him to get free from a sad marriage, but was assured by the 62-year-old doctor that she had not slain Rheta.

EARLE HYSTERICAL

Earle, who returned from Kansas City yesterday to face inquisitors, was questioned all night. He was hysterical when his mother, after a short sleep, was brought face to face with him. He cast himself on her shoulder and wept. The physician calmed him and said that while circumstances pointed to her, she was innocent.

The mother, fagged by an exhausting ordeal of questioning, told her son:

"Don't worry, I did not do it!"

When Dr. Wynekoop was told that her son had "confessed," she dropped her head in a gesture of torture and exclaimed:

"My poor boy. He couldn't have done it, for he was out of town. A mother's sacrifice is no greater than that of such a son, who offers himself to save that mother, even though falsely accused."

When she was taken to her son, he pleaded with her to confess if she had done such a thing, but the aged physician, always calm, replied:

The son threw his arms around his mother's neck and sobbed:

"Yes, the evidence does point to you. And you had a motive."

TELLS OF MOTIVE

Of that motive he told the police in a statement. He had talked of his married life with Rheta and of his friendly relations with other girls. As he led to the tragic denouement in the surgical office of his mother, where Rheta was killed, Earle was asked if he suspected his mother was the slayer. He sobbed:

"I have a great fear."

It was only a month after their marriage that Earle and Rheta "knew the feeling was not there for either of us," he said in the statement made public by Capt. Thomas Duffy. He was quoted:

"During our married life there was no great desire for companionship between us. My wife's health began failing last year and she became finally tubercular.

"An examination by a physician disclosed that she was slightly mentally deranged. At times Rheta had put drugs in cooking kettles, and portions of filings from a knife sharpener. This concerned mother very much. She became highly nervous about these conditions in our home."

GIRL DECLARED 'PERFECT'

The police asked Dr. Frank Chauvet, who had examined Rheta a month ago, concerning Earle's statement that the physician had found her tubercular and slightly deranged.

Dr. Chauvet, the police made known, replied that the young woman did not have tuberculosis and her mental condition was "perfect."

Rheta and Earle, who was closer to his mother than any other of her children, lived with Dr. Alice in the gloomy house of death on West Monroe street, scene of three deaths in recent years. Earle was quoted:

"I believe my mother had a motive. She was unhappy because she knew I was unhappy over my married life. My wife and I were incompatible a month after we were married."

At the door of the room where mother and son met, Burdine Hugh Gardner, of Indianapolis, the father who had opposed Rheta's marriage to Earle, awaited the outcome.

Gardner announced funeral services for Rheta would be held today at a mortuary on West Jackson boulevard, not far from the Wynekoop home. He said the body would be returned to Indianapolis. Burial services will be arranged at Indianapolis.

AIMEE READY TO FREE DAVE

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, the evangelist, is ready to agree to a divorce from her baritone-singing husband, David Hutton, Jr., if he "waives any claims to community or other property."

Mrs. McPherson-Hutton said here today that she had signed papers in Fort Worth, Tex., which will make possible a divorce from her husband on the stated grounds of settlement.

Papers signed before a Fort Worth notary authorized her attorney, E. A. Adams, of Los Angeles, to appear in her behalf in the divorce suit brought by Hutton at Los Angeles with the provision that Hutton must waive community and property claims.

Hutton's attorneys have said that a property settlement was proposed to the evangelist.

MULLS TO FACE GRAND JURY

Roy Mull and his wife, Grace, today faced murder charges in connection with the mystery death of Margaret Schwickrath, packing house employe, whose nearly nude body was found stuffed in a sewer on the Allegheny River boulevard, near Verona, on October 30.

The two Mulls were held to face the grand jury by a coroner's jury late yesterday.

SURGERY DEATH CONFESSION OF DOCTOR

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The alleged confession of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop as made public today by Capt. John Stege and Dr. Harry Hoffman, of the Cook County Behavior Clinic, follows:

"On the twenty-first of November, about 1:30 or 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon, Rheta decided she would go to the Loop and buy some music.

"She went down to my surgical chamber to weighe herself when she changed her clothing. I went down there with her. When she had removed her clothing I told her to get up on the table and let me examine her side.

"She got on the table and I got a bottle of chloroform and began massaging her side with it. Since this particular portion of her body was sensitive to pain, I suggested that she take enough chloroform to deaden her senses. This she agreed to do.

"I continued massaging her side for about 25 minutes. At the end of this period I noticed that she seemed to be passing out. After a hasty examination I decided the girl was dead. I was stunned. My entire past and future flashed before me. I realized my career was at stake.

"Suddenly I remembered there was a gun in the room. In a flash I decided to make it appear as though the girl had been murdered in a robbery. Seizing the gun from the drawer, I held the muzzle within five inches of her skin, and pressed the trigger.

"When the shot was fired I nearly faintcd from the sudden noise. I can't explain why I did it other than the fact I was terror-stricken to discover that Rheta had died from the chloroform. I'm sorry.

'RECOVERED SENSES'

"When I recovered my senses I realized that something would have to be done. I placed the gun near Rheta's head and ran and got a blanket from another room in the basement, using it to wrap the body.

"After I had wrapped the body up, I started to run upstairs. Suddenly my mind cleared and I thought I could make the whole thing look like a robbery. I went back and wiped the fingerprints off the gun and opened the basement door to make it look as though someone had come in that way.

"Then I went into the office and stole my own $6 out of the desk. Afterward I went upstairs and got my coat and hat and left the house. Going over to Madison street, I walked up and down for a long time; it seemed like hours."

'ALONE IN HOUSE'

Capt. Stege asked her at that time who was in the house at the time of the killing, and she replied:

"No one. The house was empty except for Rheta and me."

Dr. Wynkoop then asked the police captain for permission to tell the story to her family herself, saying:

"I don't want the police to break the news to them."

Stege refused, however, to let her see her son, Earle, husband of the dead woman, because he was being held in close custody.

During the confession Dr. Wynekoop broke down and cried for the first time. Police said her tears ended the greatest exhibition of control they ever had witnessed.

A waste basket containing absorbent pads the woman physician allegedly had used to sop up blood from the wound was one of the final bits of evidence that resulted in the statement.

ROUND UP DOGS IN MT. LEBANON

Life for swanky Mt. Lebanon dogs is a dog's life indeed, with no fewer than 72 of them having been "arrested" this month for venturing out of their own backyards.

That is, they were being taken to the police station until the cells became so crowded with pups and what not that Chief of Police William J. Kane was obliged to have them all taken to the Greentree kennels.

The dogs remain at the kennels until indignant owners claim them and reimburse the keeper for boarding them.

In this manner—take Chief Kane's word for it—the township's school children are being protected from dogs that are apt to snap, bite or annoy them. About a half dozen children were bitten this month, he said.

Guard Takes Slain Dog's 'Job,' Store Robbed

It was bad enough when David Bloomfield yesterday discovered that a robber had killed his police dog and stolen $50 from his store at 2138 Wylie avenue.

Bloomfield hired a watchman immediately. But last night, the watchman's first night, somebody tossed a brick through a window, grabbed a supply of hams and bacon and sped away.

To the $50 robbery, an employe, Walter King, 19, Negro, confessed today, but he denied killing the dog, which Bloomfield valued at $500.

Slain Wife 'Inferior' Wynekoop Complains

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Although an accomplished musician and talented in the arts, pretty Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, 23, was "mentally inferior" to her husband, Earle Wynekoop, he told police today in explanation of the five months' estrangement that preceded the girl's strange murder.

The tall, handsomely dark Wynekoop, graduate of Lewis Institute here with a bachelor of arts degree, complained under rigid police questioning:

"Rheta just had a high school education, while I am a college man. That's why we did not get along very well. She wasn't up to my scholastic attainments."

U. M. W. BEATEN IN BALLOT AT FRICK MINES

Workers committee, which two weeks ago was received by President Roosevelt at the capital. Lynch was cut about the face and head and after being treated by a physician was taken to his home at Lemont. He was unable to identify his assailants.

DISORDER BREAKS LOOSE

While there were no serious disorders at the polls during election hours, "all hell broke loose" in the words of one of the federal supervisors, as soon as the polls had been closed at 6 p. m.

After the first wild outburst had died down, the celebration was continued with considerable less boisterousness, but the effect on the terrorized United Mine Workers' minority was the same. For the most part they went to their homes and stayed there while occasional scare bombs and sporadic gunfire rent the otherwise quiet night.

At Maxwell, where the United Mine Workers' slate came out victorious, the Brotherhood group toasted the success of their movement generally with frothy beer and freely predicted:

"Now that we've won the fight, it won't be long before we'll get rid of the United Mine Workers' men."

Some of the loquacious Brotherhood adherents who claimed to be "in the know" went so far as to predict that the unwanted United Mine Workers' men would find themselves without jobs shortly after the Frick was going to shut down their mines.

Officials of the Frick company denied they had any such thought in mind.

VOTE IS CLOSE

At the Frick owned Edenborn mine the vote was so close that only an official recount in Washington will determine the majority and minority groups. The "unofficial" tabulation by the federal supervisor gave these figures:

United Mine Workers' candidates—John L. Lewis, 290; Phillip Murray, 289; Thomas Kennedy, 288; William Hynes, 290; C. C. Boner, 289; John Kurtz, 288.

District Four officials declined to comment on the election results until the official returns are certified by the National Labor Board at Washington. Scores of complaints must be heard before this can be done.

It was understood prior to the elections that district and international officers of the United Mine Workers, should they be chosen as representatives of the various groups, would attempt to negotiate contracts with the various captive mine operators.

OPERATORS' STATEMENT

Captive mine operators, in a joint statement issued several days ago, made it plain that they would not recognize the representatives as a union, merely as individuals.

Philip Murray, international vice president at Pittsburgh, was expected to make the first move towards United Mine Workers' recognition within the next few days.

The Frick company is the only one of the captive mine operators whose employes voted so strongly for Brotherhood or "independent" candidates. The first day's voting resulted in a 15-to-1 victory for the United Mine Workers in 14 captive mines of the Pittsburgh district.

RESULT OF VOTE

"Unofficial" results of yesterday's turbulent elections were announced as follows by National Labor Board executives:

GIRL, 13, BALKED ON N. Y. TRIP

Thirteen-year-old Dolly Bruno, who was found a stowaway on the Gotham Limited when the crack flier stopped at the Pennsylvania Station yesterday was to be returned to her home in Chicago today by railroad officials with her wish to "see New York" unfulfilled.

The girl, without a ticket or money, was found hiding in a berth. She explained to railroad officials that she "wanted go to New York."

She was turned over to Travelers' Aid workers who placed her in the Juvenile Detention Home pending arrangements for her return to Chicago.

Relatives, notified of the girl's detention, reported that she had taken several similar trips, railroad officials said.

TRUCK MINES SET PRICES

Representatives of approximately 1,000 truck coal mines in Western Pennsylvania have appointed a committee to aid the Code Authority in enforcing the minimum prices set up under the National Recovery Act.

One hundred and fifty representatives of the truck mines met yesterday at the Code Authority rooms in the Farmers' Bank Building. They were addressed by J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and chairman of the Code Authority.

The committee of the truck mine owners, headed by C. F. Hosford, Jr., will meet tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. All of the truck mines are now under the same minimum price control as the rail mines in the respective districts.

HARD COAL MEN SEEK PEACE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's anthracite fields, the largest in the world, looked to Washington today to avert another strike.

The United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, new union born of controversy which has hampered the collieries for months, has asked the National Labor Board to compel mine owners to re-hire men involved in walkouts a few weeks ago.

Thomas Maloney, district president of the organization, who yesterday threatened to call another strike "within 24 hours," halted one district strike last night and urged the miners to remain on the job pending new peace negotiations after the Labor Board has studied the situation.

FAIL TO PLACE LEWIS ON COAL BOARD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Why John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, was not recommended for appointment to the National Bituminous Coal Industrial Board has coal men here puzzled.

Usually well informed quarters close to both operators and union officials said omission of Lewis' name from the recommendations Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, sent President Roosevelt came as a complete surprise.

It was generally understood the three presidential appointees were to be Lewis, Fred Berquist, coal expert at the administration, and Judge George W. Anderson, of Boston.

JOHNSON NAMES SELF

Instead, Johnson announced that he had recommended appointment of himself, Fred G. Tryon, of the Bureau of Mines, and Anderson.

By the terms of the coal code, Johnson would have been an ex-officio member of the board without Presidential appointment.

Upon reliable authority, it was said, Secretary Perkins of the Labor Department had taken an interest in the appointments, and felt labor should be represented on the board. Miss Perkins denied with a laugh today, however, that there was any rift between her and Johnson. They conferred for some time this morning before Johnson left to see the President at Warm Springs, Ga.

LEADERS SURPRISED

Mine union leaders were particularly surprised at Johnson's failure to recommend Lewis' appointment. They desired Lewis' presence on the board which is to make a report on operation of the code December 31, together with recommendations for changes. Those changes are to be considered January 5 at a conference of operators and union officials with Johnson.

They felt that their interests in the labor provisions would best be safeguarded by representation on the board.

It was understood the operators had raised no objection to Lewis' appointment.

Deputy Administrator Kenneth M. Simpson, who had a hand in making the recommendations, declined to discuss them.

Women Charge Terrorism at Mine Election

Jessie Lloyd O'Connor, secretary of the Civil Liberties Union, and Rose M. Stein, executive secretary of the League for Social Justice, today sent a wire to Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, protesting yesterday's elections at the H. C. Frick Coke Company's mines in Fayette County.

The telegram:

"The undersigned who have functioned as observers, protest yesterday's election at H. C. Frick Coke Company. A mine superintendent was permitted to sit at the polling place where miners voted at Colonial mine at Grindstone, Pa. At Colonial Mine No. 3, armed deputy sheriffs in plain clothes, along with armed members of the Independent Brotherhood, displayed firearms immediately in front of the polls, pointed guns at women and children and attacked a member of the United Mine Workers as he passing through in his car. Miners state they were approached and offered $10 to vote for company unions, while rumors were being spread that if the United Mine Workers would win, the company would shut down its mines. We charge that terrorism, intimidation and reported attempts to buy votes invalidate the election at these mines."

BOND REJECTED IN SLAYING

International News Service.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 24.—Frank Romano, 32, of Pittsburgh, and a companion, suspects in the slaying of ex-Mayor Benjamin Oliver, of Yorkville, O., today were remanded to jail when security offered by four local property owners for their release on bond was rejected.

The name of the second man is Thomas Viola, 32, of Follansbee, W. Va.

Held on charges of first degree murder, the pair are under bonds of $8,000 each, fixed by Judge J. C. Olglevee.

Both were taken into custody at Bridgeport, just south of Yorkville, where Oliver was shot down by men in a car as he emerged from his home, supposedly en route to a picture show. Oliver, who formerly lived in Pittsburgh, was a political power in the Ohio city.

MEAT STRIKER SHOT IN CAR CHASE

Strike pickets near the William Zoller Company meat packing plant, North Side, ran into the line of fire of a policeman shooting at an alleged stolen car last night, and one of them was hit, according to the victim's testimony today.

Harry Schlessman, 23, of Spring Garden Borough, who said he had been employed at the Zoller plant for seven years, said that he and a dozen other strikers ran from a garage in Spring Garden avenue when they heard someone shout for a speeding car to halt.

TWO SHOTS FIRED

At that moment, other testimony disclosed, Patrolman Harry Lindner fired two shots at the fleeing car. Schlessman fell with a bullet wound in his arm. He was treated at Allegheny General Hospital and later lodged in North Side Police Station on a suspicious person charge. He was held over by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider today until his story is corroborated.

Constable A. L. Schleiden had pursued the car, alleged to have been stolen from J. K. McClements, 734 Bayridge street, and had cornered it near the Zoller plant. Two of four occupants leaped out, he said, then the car got away. Policeman Lindner, on strike duty, took up the chase after being nearly run down.

BULLET FROM CAR

Patrolman Linder said he believed one shot had been fired from the rear window of the machine as it sped away.

Operating conditions were reported normal in all packing plants of the city except those of the Oswald and Hess Company and the Zoller company.

Sixty per cent of striking employes were back at those plants, according to company officials. Both companies are under the receivership of State Senator Frank J. Harris.

BELFAST BARS DE VALERA

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—If President Eamon De Valera, of the Irish Free State, crosses the border to take an active part in the forthcoming South Down elections, Northern Ireland authorities said today, he is to be served with an exclusion order.

This order, if ignored, would mean imprisonment or deportation or both.

President De Valera twice has been held in Northern Ireland jails.

He is running for a seat in the House of Commons as a representative of South Down.

North Side Man, Hit by Auto, Dies

William Ramsey, 29, of 1232 California avenue, North Side, died today in the Presbyterian hospital, the coroner's office reported. He was injured November 15 when struck by a hit-and-run driver at Allegheny avenue and Juniata street.

FIGHT ON RUM CLUBS LOOMS IN ASSEMBLY

By G. EVERETT BOYING
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—Concrete measures were taken by Pennsylvania's state officials today to prepare for the rebirth of legal liquor while shadows of another fight next week over provisions of regulatory legislation hung in the House of Representatives.

The body that gave a 144 to 61 approval to the McClure control bill is ready to voice its resentment if the Senate restores restrictions on private club sales that the lower chamber previously eradicated.

Confident that his liquor program will be accepted, Gov. Gifford Pinchot summoned members of his cabinet and three persons he has agreed to appoint to the Liquor Control Board to the executive mansion for luncheon today. There the vital problem of setting up machinery for the sale of liquor on and after December 5 will be thoroughly discussed.

Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., Butler, who refuses to accept appointment to the liquor board, has not accepted the luncheon invitation. Robert S. Gawthrop, West Chester, and A. Marshall Thompson, dean of the University of Pittsburgh Law School, other choices for membership on the board, will be present.

So also will Attorney General William A. Schnader, Secretary of Revenue Leon D. Metzger, John L. Hanna, secretary of Property and Supplies; Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of Public Instruction; Maj. Lynn Adams, superintendent of State Police, and Capt. Wilson C. Price, of the State Highway Patrol.

A Senate committee holds the McClure bill for amendments placing restrictions, suitable to the Governor and legislative leaders, on the sale of liquor by clubs. In its present form the bill leaves the door open for persons to evade the law by establishing a club merely as a subterfuge for operating a "legitimate speakeasy," administration officials contend. Club sales could be made in any manner and at any time.

How successful leaders will be in getting the House to concur in amendments placing clubs in the same classification as hotels and restaurants is problematical. Representative Robert J. Cordier, Lackawanna, sponsoring the administration floor tax bill, asserted:

"The House never will concur in amendments putting clubs back in the class of hotels and restaurants."

In successfully urging removal of restrictions on fraternal organizations before the bill passed the House finally, Representative Fred C. Gartner, Philadelphia, voiced the sentiment of many representatives. He argued a club is "a man's second home and should be above regulation."

Gov. Pinchot, according to friends, fears that no control over clubs offers too many opportunities for persons to defeat the primary purpose of the law. They claim he can see no reason why club members should enjoy privileges not extended to the average man desirous of a drink.

SOCIAL REFORM BILLS PENDING

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—With relatively plain sailing forecast for the balance of Gov. Pinchot's liquor-control program, the special session of the General Assembly turns next week to even more controversial social legislation.

Returning Monday, the lawmakers will come closer to many problems of the special session.

Two bills to permit payment of a $50,000,000 soldiers' bonus will be up for final House action, while the Senate considers finally bills creating a State Milk Control Board and repealing the four mills tax on money at interest.

Among measures Gov. Pinchot has introduced for committee action in one or both branches are those providing:

State supervision of private banks and affiliates of all state banks, and expedition of closed bank liquidation.

Prohibition of heavy trucks on highways Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays.

Prohibition of public utility rate increases until approved by the Public Service Commission.

Appropriations of $55,000,000 for unemployment relief, old age assistance, school relief, public construction, etc.

Ohio to Stay Dry 2 Days After Repeal

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Ohio is assured it will have state constitutional prohibition for two days after national prohibition is repealed.

All set to declare immediately the end of state aridity by executive proclamation, Gov. White and state officials found the state constitution they were altering prevents effectiveness of the rescinding amendment until 30 days after the November 7 election.

K. C. Maps Program For State Meet

Nineteen Western Pennsylvania Knights of Columbus councils will meet this evening to discuss plans for the state convention in May and Easter Ball Week in July. Albert A. Scholze will preside.

Big Distilleries Closed to Balk Taxes on Liquor

It was an uprising against a 7-cents-a-gallon tax imposed by Congress that brought 13,000 federal troops into the state to quell that early insurrection. Now, the protest is against liquor tax laws being pushed through the Legislature by the state's life-long dry Governor, Gifford Pinchot.

This week saw a tax of $2 a gallon levied on all liquor in storage between enactment of the measure and the day of repeal. A permanent tax of $1 a gallon, after repeal, is planned.

Distilleries from all parts of the state rushed to the capital in an effort to avert the taxes they term ruinous, but failed. Then they asserted removal to states where taxes are more favorable was the only course open.

Wet legislators, fighting to prevent enactment of Pinchot's program calling for a system of state liquor stores, accused the Governor of trying to become "whisky king" and "ride into the United States Senate on a whisky barrel."

Already several of the largest distilleries have closed their plants and prospects are that Pennsylvania, home of some of the largest distilleries in the world and long famous for its "rye," may have to import a large share of the intoxicants it drinks.

BANDITS SLUG 'GAS' EMPLOYE

A Wilkinsburg youth was slugged in the face with a gun butt and knocked unconscious during the alleged holdup and robbery of the Shell gasoline service station at Penn avenue and Center street, Wilkinsburg, shortly before last midnight, police reported.

He staggered to a nearby restaurant after regaining consciousness, and reported the robbery.

Lee Heitchue, 22, of 1517 Center street, Wilkinsburg, attendant at the service station, told police that he was struck in the face when he reached in his vest pocket for the cash register key demanded.

Police said that the man apparently thought Heitchue was reaching for a gun.

Heitchue said the holdup occurred when he stepped from the station to give the man directions for reaching the Lincoln highway.

4 DISTILLERIES GET CHARTERS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's new liquor taxes hold no terrors for three men who have obtained charters for four distillery companies.

J. P. Murray and L. E. Gray, of Philadelphia, and F. S. Saurman, of Churchville, yesterday were granted charters for the Lexton distillery, Ken Penn distillery, Franklin distillery and Armstrong distillery.

All of the companies, with the same address—123 South Broad street, Philadelphia—were chartered to manufacture, distribute, bottle, sell and deal in whiskies, high wines, alcohol and "gins of all kinds."

Under pending legislation, a distillery permit for each company would cost at least $5,000—more if the annual capacity exceeds 500,000 gallons.

W. VA. PROPOSES RUM MONOPOLY

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—A state monopoly on the sale of liquor written into the fundamental law of the state was offered the Legislature today as a substitute for the proposed state repeal amendment.

Senator Hodges (Dem.) of Monongalia, introduced a proposed amendment containing the state monopoly clause to replace the proposed state repeal amendment that the Legislature voted to submit at the 1934 election.

Reconsideration of that amendment which has a provision barring saloons, was made one of the subjects of Gov. Kump's call for the present special session.

REALTORS URGE TAX RELIEF

The community research bureau of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board asked its members to demand of members of the Legislature that school taxes be removed from real estate and that schools be supported by state taxes.

R. L. McKallip, chairman, suggested as means of state revenue graduated income tax, flat income tax, liquor taxes, sales tax, per capita tax and diversion of road funds if necessary.

Beer Baron Freed Of Vagrancy Charge

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—(INS.)—Joe Saltis, beer baron and country gentleman of Saltisville, Wis., was enjoying his liberty today without a charge of vagrancy hanging over his smiling brow.

Arraigned with two assistants, Patrick Sullivan, bodyguard, and Nick Cramer, his chauffeur, Saltis and his followers were freed when the state nolle prossed vagrancy charges brought against them.

LIQUOR TRADE CODES RUSHED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The federal government plans tight regulation of the three important branches of the alcoholic beverage industry through three separate codes to be promulgated by December 5, the date of prohibition repeal.

Administration-approved codes are being rushed for President Roosevelt's signature. They provide a Federal Alcohol Control Administration to supervise domestic distillers and brewers and joint control of liquor importers by the Treasury and Agriculture departments.

Hearings opened today on a pact for distillers. Those for the brewers were set for Monday and importers for Wednesday.

The administration took into its own hands the drafting of the codes after virtually discarding all important parts of tentative pacts submitted by the industries.

Heretofore, the administration had permitted industries to set up their own code authorities. It decided to keep its hand on the liquor business.

SEAL SALE AIDS WHOLE DISTRICT

The county-wide spread of health work and hospital care given by the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh is shown in the fact that 12,786 free days and 585 part-pay days' care had been given to patients from outlying communities. Only 886 days' care was paid for by patients, according to Mrs. William P. Witherow, women's chairman for the Christmas Seal sale beginning next Tuesday.

In the list of the more than 11,000 persons who used the dispensary during the past year almost every community is represented, according to Mrs. Witherow.

As for the hospital itself, thousands of free days have been given to patients from scores of outlying communities. Some of the smallest communities where funds from Christmas Seal sales are meager have received a tremendous amount of service according to the records of the hospital.

FIVE WEST PARK FIREMEN HURT

Five volunteer firemen today were nursing cuts and bruises suffered when the West Park Independent Fire Company's truck struck an iron pole while speeding to a fire in Stowe Township last night.

Capt. H. D. Porter swerved the fire truck against the pole when a motorist backed into his path at Island avenue and Adrian street, Stowe Township, the firemen said. The firemen, hurled to the street, were treated at Ohio Valley Hospital. They were Assistant Chief A. P. Smith and Hosemen C. L. Kreps, John DeAngelis, and his brother, Nick DeAngelis, and William Douglass.

The fire was in a small office building of the Pressed Steel Car Company. Damage was estimated at $100.

FARMERS MUST PAY HOG TAX

David L. Lawrence, collector of internal revenue in the Pittsburgh district, comprising the counties in Western Pennsylvania, has been advised that many farmers and others are slaughtering hogs and selling the products to consumers without payment of the processing tax, provided for under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The act provides that any person who slaughters hogs for market must file appropriate returns with the Bureau of Internal Revenue and pay the processing tax, Lawrence said the tax applies even in the case of the farmer who slaughters his own hogs and sells all or any part of the product.

He said heavy penalties are provided for violations of the act and evasion of the tax. Any person, Lawrence said, who slaughters hogs and sells any part should confer with deputy collectors of internal revenue for his district, who will assist him in preparing and filing the required returns.

LITHUANIANS PLAN AIR SHOW

Preparations were being made today at Bettis Field for the air show which will be held there next Sunday under the auspices of Lithuanian clubs in the Pittsburgh district.

The air show is part of the campaign to raise $15,000 to finance a trans-Atlantic flight next June by Joseph R. James. The campaign is sponsored by the Lithuanian Trans-Atlantic Flight Association.

James will take a prominent part in the show Sunday. The events of the day will be dedicated to the memory of Capt. Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas who were killed when they crashed near Soldin, Germany, last July while attempting a flight from New York to Kaunas, Lithuania.

M'CREADY REELS INTO COURT, OUSTED

McCready Off Beer Diet; Loses Auto

Harrison McCready's troubles increased today.

He hired a drive-it-yourself auto last night, parked it somewhere downtown, forgot he was on a beer diet and, when he returned, couldn't find the car.

He has a faint impression that he may have parked it too close to a fire plug.

Two minutes later it again was interrupted by talking. Eyes turned half fearfully, to behold McCready standing and talking to a tipstaff. Judge Patterson motioned, and McCready was led out.

'GONNA STAY DRUNK'

The dapper playboy weaved down the corridor, sat down in a room and had a drink for himself, commenting:

"I lost my car last night. Don't remember where I left it.

"I've been sober every day of the trial. But the — trial has gone fluey.

"I got disgusted when my second wife blew off like that. So I went out to celebrate.

"I was gonna take the stand myself—but phooey. I'm gonna stay drunk for a month.

"If they're gonna prove I'm crazy, why don't they? They're taking long enough."

McCready was dapper, and his face wreathed in a wide, genial grin, except when he recalled how his second wife, Margaret Heasley, yesterday had testified she wanted him put in jail for abusing her.

CABARETS IN MORNING

As McCready was led from the court room, Dr. Louis G. Ignelzi, of the West Penn Hospital, who attended the Fox Chapel playboy, was testifying that the youth was egocentric, and that his only concept was what was happening to him. He wanted to go to cabarets at 10 in the morning, he said.

Dr. E. E. Mayer, psychiatrist, took McCready in tow, with orders to allow no one to see him.

In the mental health clinic in the City-County Building, the playboy asked friends to get him a bowl of soup and gett him out of there.

To illustrate McCready's concentration on himself, Dr. Ignelzi said that McCready, if he gets the trust fund upset, plans to provide $25,000 of it for his daughter's education, with the principal to be returned to him later. The physician added:

"I am well acquainted with the functions of his mind. He is insane, but he is not crazy. He has dementia precox, his mind is not well enough developed to understand legal transactions. He has delusions that Mr. Long, his first wife's father, and Attorney Eaton have taken away his social standing. He has a split personality, quiet and glum when he is sober, genial and agreeable when drunk."

LETTERS READ

Asked if he thought McCready was dangerous, Dr. Ignelzi declared he was not, adding:

"He is mentally unstable and resorts to drinking. He also told me he had a fear of courts, or that a guardian would be appointed. This he felt would reflect on him and his daughter. He has an above average memory for details, however."

Attorney Oliver K. Eaton read into the record two letters from McCready, one to his first father-in-law last July and one to his first wife. In the letter to his first wife, Margaret Long McCready Welfer, in 1931, he declared he was remorseful, but that when he returned from a cruise he would "be much better."

In the letter to James N. Long, he advised against giving a three-year lease on his Fox Chapel property.

Dr. Ignelzi said the letters did not change his opinion.

Dr. C. C. Wholley, psychiatrist at St. Francis and West Penn hospitals, testified since August 30, 1929, McCready had been in St. Francis 58 times, and in the West Penn eight times, the visits ranging from overnight to a week.

Dr. Vernon D. Thomas, of 5537 Hampton street, who said he has known the playboy since 1924 and treated him for alcoholism, revealed much of McCready's personality, if not his mental state, during the detailed questioning yesterday by Attorney Charles J. Margiotti.

McCready's one-time $750,000 estate now amounts to about $125,000, chiefly in real estate, it was learned earlier in the case. His income has been reduced to $200 a month—the rental from the Fox Chapel mansion.

Raps on Court's Door

HARRISON R. M'CREADY . . . THE JUDGE ORDERED HIM OUT

Young Mr. McCready, Pittsburgh's playboy, today politely removed from the courtroom in which Judge Patterson is hearing his suit to upset a $150,000 trust fund. This was after he had knocked on the door for admittance, talked aloud during the proceedings.

Thes hip was a roaring mass of flames but Rinker managed to extricate himself from the cockpit without injury.

The plane was 800 feet over the airport when the fire broke outf rom an undetermined cause, according to Pennsylvania Airlines officials.

2 BEAVER BANKS SEEK TO OPEN

International News Service.

BEAVER, Pa., Nov. 24.—Banking officials in two Beaver County boroughs—Beaver Falls and Ambridge—today were engaged in drafting new methods for the reopening of closed banks in both communities.

Reorganization committees have been working on plans for resumption of unrestricted business in the Ambridge Savings and Trust Company and the closed State Bank of Beaver Falls.

Former suggestions in the case of the Ambridge institution called for liquidation of that town's bank and its subsequent absorption by the Economy National Bank. Proceedings now reported under way lean toward organization of a new state bank.

A petition has been presented by members of the Beaver Falls banking house for authority to regain and liquidate the affairs of the bank themselves, instead of under the jurisdiction of Banking Department.

Missing Sewickley Boy Writes Letter

James Pitzner, 20, of 215 Ferry street, Sewickley, missing from his home since Tuesday, is being sought by police.

His father, Joseph, received a letter, postmarked on North Side Wednesday, saying:

"Do no worry, I am going to Newport, R. I."

DEPUTY TELLS OF SALE RIOT ROPE THREAT

When Samuel Jessop, 44, of Turtle Creek, chairman of the Unemployed Council in that district, attempted to take all the blame for assembling a crowd of 400 at a sheriff's sale, forcing the deputy sheriff to sell 23 cows and other chattels for $1.10, and five others were held over by Judge James H. Gray, in Criminal Court.

Jessop pleaded guilty late yesterday to a charge of obstructing a legal process.

Deputy Sheriff Benjamin Schugar told the court he had been threatened with a noose suspended from a tree limb when he tried to adjourn the sale.

He said that during the sale Philip Frankfeld harangued the crowd, saying:

"The minute men of 1776 saved America. We are the minute men of 1933 and it is up to us to save America now."

Frankfeld had been in the courthouse earlier in the day, but could not be found when Jessop pleaded.

Judge Gray asked that he be found and brought in, so the court could question him, postponing sentence on Jessop. The judge refused to nol pros the charges against the other five men, saying he would act on all the cases at once.

Five other defendants, arrested with Jessop when they came to the sheriff's office at the courthouse, demanding a bill of sale, were discharged, when they said they were only spectators.

Schugar said he went to the Annie McGregor farm in Patton Township September 1 to conduct the sale of cows, chickens, farm implements and household goods of Abraham Omar, a tenant, who owed Mrs. McGregor, $1,327 rent.

GOLLMAR LEADS BY 516 VOTES, COUNT SHOWS

With returns in for all but 161 districts, Sheriff Frank I Gollmar had a lead of 516 votes in addition of official to unofficial figures.

The return board canvass so far shows:

Gollmar	147,746
Heinz	147,310

60 RECOUNT PETITIONS

Attorney A. L. Wolk, representing the Democrats, yesterday filed eight more recount petitions, six for districts in Homestead. This make a total of 60.

The matter of the "hijacked" Eighth District of the Seventeenth Ward, which Democrats claim will add to Heinz's total, will not be considered until the recount is completed, recount judges said.

BRADDOCK CONTEST

Attorney Leo Kostman, representing Fred Seim, candidate for burgess of Braddock, today said a recount of three districts had made Seim a victor by six votes in the total vote of the borough.

Burgess James H. Rose had been returned a winner by 16 votes in the initial count of ballots.

Kostman contended the result of the recount would make Seim a winner even though 11 disputed ballots went to Rose.

A petition for recount in the first district of the Fourth Ward of Braddock also was filed in behalf of Rose today.

3 TOWNS SAVED FROM FLAMES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The disastrous brush fire in foothills northwest of Los Angeles roared on today completely out of control. It crossed the ridge into thickly-populated Earl canyon and was headed toward the Arroyo Seco, source of the Pasadena municipal water supply.

The flames moved along a jagged five-mile front fanned by a treacherous wind.

The towns of La Crescenta, Tujunga and La Canada apparently were saved when the wind veered.

A number of houses in Tujunga were destroyed when the flames ate their way into the northern section of that city. Just how many homes and cabins have been destroyed has not been determined, but some estimates by fire officials place the number at 150. The county fire warden's office placed the damage today at $4,000,000.

Falk School Toy Exhibit Planned

As part of its progressive educational program, the Falk Elementary School of the University of Pittsburgh is presenting a toy exhibit at the school Monday and Tuesday, November 27 and 28. This display will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The toys have been assembled into five general categories: The constructive type, the informative type, those that encourage dramatic play, physical development, and socialization. The children at the Falk school will take individual votes on each of these groups.

OPPOSE SLICING TEACHERS' PAY

A reduction in teachers' salaries to bring about a small reduction per family in school taxes in Pittsburgh would bring about tremendous losses in teacher morale and educational opportunity for Pittsburgh children, the Pittsburgh Council of Parent-Teacher Associations declared today. A statement issued by Mrs. E. E. Brosius, president of the council, reads:

"We feel sure teachers will be called upon to carry heavier burdens this year and that they will be under an increased nervous strain. In view of this certainty we look upon a reduction in teacher's salaries as a most unwise and unwarranted measure."

STOCK IN BANKS LEFT TO SONS

The will of the late John C. Schmidt, of Southern avenue, probated today, leaves stock in the Western Savings Bank and the South Hills Trust Company to three sons, J. Clinton, A. L., and Ralph C. Schmidt. Real estate in the Nineteenth Ward was left to the sons and two daughters, Mrs. Margarett Zipf and Mrs. Blanche Caldwell.

George Kay, a son-in-law, receives $2,000 in cash. The residue of the estate, valued at $29,600, is to be distributed among the children. J. Clinton Schmidt is executor.

BRANCHES OPEN TO SPEED CWA JOBS HERE

Three new avenues for hastening the placing of 33,600 unemployed on CWA jobs were opened today with the setting up of three county-wide branches of the Federal-State Employment in McKeesport, Coraopolis and Tarentum. Unemployed in these districts are requested to register at the branches for appointments after December 1.

Locations and branch managers, announced by H. F. Bucher, manager of the main office at 108 Smithfield street, are:

McKeesport—Penn-McKee Hotel, first floor, C. Arthurs, includes Jefferson, Mifflin, North Versailles, Versailles, Elizabeth, Lincoln and Forward townships, Clairton, Trafford, Pitcairn, Wilmerding, Wall, East McKeesport, Port Vue, Glassport, Liberty, Duquesne, Dravosburg.

SPEED URGED

Tarentum—First National Bank Building Annex, H. A. Jones, includes Fawn, Harrison, Frazer, East Deer and Harmar Townships; Springdale, Cheswick, New Kensington and Parnassus.

With more than 6,000 unemployed and 55,000 relief recipients already on file at the Federal-State Employment Office, Allegheny County's Civil Works Administration today appealed to boroughs and townships to speed up their applications for works projects.

About 10 preliminary applications from outlying districts have been returned for additional specifications, it was learned at the administration's headquarters, 544 Oliver Building.

JOBS FOR THOUSANDS

The county's proposals to grade Pearce Mill road and Catfish Run road were forwarded to State CWA Administrator Eric Biddle last night and are expected to be put into execution within a few days, giving employment to more than 1,000 men, according to James L. Stuart, county administrator.

DETAILED ESTIMATES

Charles M. Reppert, city engineer, told Council yesterday that it was the intention of the local CWA to spend at least $2 for labor as against $1 for material.

Joining with Pittsburgh, the tri-state district is putting added thousands back to work, according to reports received here.

Kaufmann Urges Business Basis On Relief Work

An extension of the Federal Civil Works program to cover work which might be done on a business basis for corporations and individuals, is favored by Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc.

Kaufmann, whose ideas on replacing direct relief with work relief have largely been followed in the Civil Works plan, says he believes the government should expand the Civil Works plan to include other worthwhile projects besides those of municipalities.

TAKEN TO WASHINGTON

Last spring, a group of Pittsburghers, headed by Kaufmann, took a plan to Washington. After months of study, Federal officials have made use of the greater part of it in the plan directed by Harry L. Hopkins, which will spend $400,000,000 in an effort to put 4,000,000 men to work by December 15.

Work rather than a dole is the keynote of the Kaufmann plan and this is also the goal of the Civil Works effort. Civil Works, however, are confined to public works which may be undertaken quickly.

Much of the machinery of the Civil Works idea is patterned closely on the Kaufmann plan. An order and estimating department recommended in the original suggestion is seen in the office which has been set up under County Administrator James L. Stuart.

AID TO UNEMPLOYED

The selection of workers from the unemployed on relief was suggested. Also the use of the federal and state employment offices was advised.

On rates of pay, the Kaufmann plan of "Work versus Relief" recommended the payment of the current wage by occupation in the locality, and this idea also has been utilized.

As to the extension of the plan, Kaufmann suggests that work by private individuals and corporations might be financed by loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation against financially sound contracts.

Works Projects Offered by Towns

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 24.—Seven municipalities in Westmoreland County have submitted projects for approval under the federal civil works program, E. J. Presby, of New Kensington, county civil work administrator, announced here.

So far projects have been submitted from Jeannette, Hyde Park, West Newton, North Huntingdon Township, Mt. Pleasant, North Belle Vernon and Salem Township.

BANKS URGED TO PAY CWA CHECKS

ATLANTA, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt has called upon all banks to be prepared to cash immediately at par pay checks issued to Civil Works Administration employes for their first week's labor on November 25.

The President suggested most of the holders could be identified by cards given them by the local Civil Works Administration and no delay would be necessary in giving the workers cash for their vouchers, which will be drawn on the Treasury of the United States.

The order to banks was made public by Oscar Newton, Federal Restrve agent for the Sixth District here. It was dated at the executive office at Warm Springs, Ga., November 22, and said:

"All banks:

"The nation-wide civil works program which the government launched in order to give men and women employment in place of relief is now under way. More than 1,000,000 employes of the Civil Works Administration will receive their first week's pay at the end of this week, on Saturday, November 25.

"They will be paid by checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States. To prevent delays in the payment of this initial week's wage, it is essential that our banks throughout the country co-operate to the fullest extent, cashing these checks at par upon proper identification. This identification will, in most cases, be an identification card given the payee by the local civil works administrator.

"I urge bankers to communicate with the local Civil Works Administration to make certain that checks will be cashed promptly and in full.

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

CITY TO SHIFT RELIEF FUND

City Council today was to pass an ordinance repealing the allocation of funds for work relief and allocate to the Civil Works Administration the staff now engaged on work relief projects. The materials and money set aside for the city's relief project, totaling about $81,750, will be turned over to CWA management. The projects are limited to street, park and sewer improvements.

Charles M. Reppert told Council yesterday that it was the intention of the local CWA to spend at least $2 for labor as against $1 for material.

BARBARY COAST REOPENED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Lower Pacific avenue has gone Barbary Coast again. The famous dance hall block between Montgomery and Sansome streets is lighted once more. Repeal has opened the ancient headquarters of the dancing Frisco Jennies of the pre-prohibition days.

The old Hippodrome is alive. The sculptured satyrs adorning its front are white and clean after more than 15 years of neglect. The "Hip" is now the Diane, with a blue crescent to welcome the expected profession of after-repeal celebrants. There's an orchestra, a blues singer, a pair of Negro tap dancers and even a "pony chorus," and, of course, a bar the whole length of the room.

Its neighbor across Pacific, that other Hippodrome which rivaled its tawdry splendor in the Barbary Coast era, is having a beauty treatment, too. The broken porch is being replaced, new doors installed, a new roof hammered on and lots of paint daubed around the inside.

Kickless Mule Wins Champion's 'Crown'

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Before you say "as stubborn as a mule," consider "Dixie," the grand champion mule of the American Royal Livestock Show.

When she isn't pulling a plow or wagon on the George Hineman farm, near Dighton, Kan., "Dixie" is giving 4-year-old Herbie Hineman a ride in the barnyard. The other Hineman children walk between her legs to show visitors how tame she is.

County Employe Not in Rum Case

John C. Cancelliere, of Stanton avenue, an employe of the county assessors office is explaining to friends today that he is not the man with a similar name who was involved in a bootlegging prosecution in local courts. The man who ran afoul of the law is a North Side resident. He is not a relative of the Stanton avenue man.

WOMAN DODGES GRIND BY REST

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—What the college woman now working in New York City is doing with her leisure time ranges from tropical fish breeding to "just resting" as shown by a questionnaire answered by 100 college and university women.

The inquiry was made of guests in a residential club for former students of institutions of higher education.

The one young woman who "just rests" during her leisure is an accountant.

One girl "sews a fine seam" and has developed her skill to the point of selling "sets" for $85 each. Fifteen knit.

Writing is the most popular avocation, and novels, scenarios and poetry are the side interests of 25. Ten study various kinds of dancing.

SHANK TO MAKE INSANITY PLEA

AKRON, O., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—An insanity defense will be offered for Mark Shank, Akron attorney, who is scheduled to be tried at Malvern, Ark., Monday, on a charge of murdering four persons.

Attorney George Hargreaves, counsel for Shank, said he has been obtaining depositions intended to establish that Shank is subject to violent emotional outbursts.

Hargreaves also will submit records of the Toledo State Hospital for the Insane, intended to show that five relatives of Shank have been confined there.

Injuries Embarrass Insurance Agent

CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 24.—(INS.)—"Practice what you preach!" Richard E. Fleming, local insurance agent, repeated that adage over and over again today as he recovers from a broken leg.

Fleming, according to hospital reports, fell downstairs while leaving the office of a man to whom he had just sold an accident policy. He is said to have embarrassingly admitted he hasn't any insurance.

GIANT RABBIT SHOT BY SLEUTH

"I raised my gun and Tom says 'Don't shoot, that's a lamb or somebody's calf,' but I know it's a rabbit. I can tell by its ears. We bag him and bring him back and weigh him, and he's right on to 16 pounds."

COUNCIL TO LET 1-YEAR GARBAGE CONTRACT

Pittsburgh is going to let another one-year contract for the disposal of garbage and rubbish next year.

Council's decision to let the one-year contract once more came late yesterday afternoon after a public hearing at which representatives of civic and business groups pointed out that it is now too late in the year to offer prospective bidders a long-term contract.

Following the hearing Council met as a committee on health and affirmed an ordinance providing for a one-year contract, beginning January 1.

Final action on the contract ordinance was to be taken at a special meeting this afternoon or the regular meeting Monday.

FAVOR LONG CONTRACT

Each representative of the various organizations participating in yesterday's hearing went on record as favoring a long-term contract, but also held that the letting of a long-term contract would necessitate an intensive study of collection and disposal methods. The contract, they said, would have to be of sufficient length to allow the contractor to amortize any investment in reduction plant or collection equipment.

Speaking at the hearing were Councilman-elect William A. Magee, John M. Rice representing the Civic Club of Allegheny County; Mrs. J. O. Miller, of the League of Women's Voters; J. W. Bamford, Building Owners' and Managers' Association, and R. C. Miller and Albert A. Maidlof, of the Independent Rubbish Men's Association.

Mrs. Miller, heading a delegation of several league members, charged that City Council was no nearer letting a long-term contract now than it was a year ago, because Council had withheld action until it was too late to let the long-term contract for 1934.

CRITICIZES WAGONS

Mrs. Miller also charged that rubbish is often blown from the collection wagons and litters streets. The garbage wagons, she said, "were a stench in the nostrils of the citizens" and urged that they be washed at the end of each day. Mrs. Miller pointed out that a metal-covered garbage wagon would be superior to the type now in use.

Complaints as to collection methods were also filed by the Independent Rubbish Men's Association. R. C. Miller, of the association, accused some drivers of rubbish wagons of removing refuse from commercial establishments, such as restaurants and stores. Such a practice is outlawed in the specifications attached to the contract ordinance. Miller said that some of the drivers received gratuities for removing commercial house refuse.

The association asked Council to rewrite the specification dealing with the removal of rubbish from stores attached to private living quarters. Council agreed to the change in wording, making it clearer that rubbish is not to be removed from stores of that type.

MILK BOTTLE TILT

The collection of milk bottles in rubbish and garbage met with sharp criticism from H. R. Birmingham and J. W. Imler, representing the Allegheny County Milk Exchange. Both averred that in 1932 milk dealers paid more than $6,000 for the return of bottles collected as garbage and rubbish. The tonnage of bottles in 1932, they said, was 1,800. Council indicated that it would prohibit milk bottle collection in the new year's specifications.

Councilman-elect William A. Magee told Council that in his opinion a one-year contract was the only reasonable action that could be taken at present. It is necessary, he said, that definite contract be given in order that the contractor could secure a bond. Magee's remarks were partly in answer to Councilman Charles H. Anderson, who had asked if it was necessary to make any contract for 1934.

Mayor-elect William N. McNair's budget representative, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, was present at yesterday's hearing, but did not enter the discussion. Councilmen-elect John M. Huston and Walter R. Demmler were also present.

Man Not Guilty In Firing of Store

Jacob Spirer, 5532 Baywood street, was declared not guilty of arson in a verdict directed by Visiting Judge I. J. McKendrick, of Cambria County, after the state had failed to prove charges that he had set fire to a store owned by him in South avenue and Railroad street, Verona, August 13, 1932.

COLDS

Go Thru 3 Stages

—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist. 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

SOVIET ENVOY IN NEW YORK ON WAY HOME

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Amid great secrecy, Maxim Litvinoff and his party came to New York last night by automobile from Washington.

The Soviet commissar at once retired for the night. His whereabouts was kept secret and Russian quarters professed ignorance as to his plans for today, except that he would attend the banquet of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce.

The automobile trip from the capital was described as "uneventful."

Among those expected to attend are Owen D. Young, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Winthrop Aldrich, John W. Davis, Paul D. Cravath, John Bassett Moore and William C. Bullitt, the ambassador-designate to Moscow.

Several thousand persons will attend the banquet. The commissar plans to sail Saturday. To give the Soviet government first-hand information on conversations before and after Russian recognition.

Litvinoff accomplished in Washington the prime purpose of his visit—the restoration of diplomatic relations between the United States and Russia—but odds and ends remain for further negotiation.

Among them are governmental debts and claims against Russia by American citizens growing out of the confiscation of private property by the Soviet Union and other incidents attending the communist revolution.

Stalin Before Voters Again in January

MOSCOW, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Joseph Stalin and all his fellow officers of the Communist party, from the all-powerful "Political Bureau" down, will come up for re-election in the seventeenth all-union congress of the party, summoned last night to meet in Moscow next January 25.

Unusual importance attaches to the congress, which will be the first since 1930, because by the time it will be held a countrywide party "cleansing" will have ended its exhaustive examination of the worthiness of the highest officials to the lowest workers to be members of the party.

Stalin himself will report to the congress in one of his rare speeches which is expected to deal mostly with accomplishments of the five-year plan and the general state of the country.

Other high party leaders are scheduled to outline the program for the second five-year plan, which has not yet been made public.

THIRD FRENCH CABINET FALLS

PARIS, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Official sources said today they expected President Lebrun to ask Georges Bonnet, minister of finance in the cabinet of Albert Sarraut, overthrown last night, to form a new cabinet and serve as Premier of France.

Lebrun is known to admire Bonnet and was said to be hopeful of a quick selection of a competent financial cabinet in order to avert danger from the franc.

Friends of Edouard Herriot, former Premier, insisted that the time was not ripe for his resumption of power.

Herriot was said to be sure to refuse because of his health and a dislike for being in the ministry on December 15, the anniversary of France's default on payment of its war debts to the United States when he was Premier.

A scant four weeks after he formed a government to supplant that of Edouard Daladier and hammered together a budget-balancing, franc-saving program much like that on which his predecessor toppled, Premier Albert Sarraut himself went down fighting in the Chamber of Deputies early this morning. His was the third cabinet overthrown this year.

Before his defeat, M. Sarraut pictured the drain of gold from the Bank of France as "a financial hemorrhage." He said:

"This is the twenty-third of November, and the budget is not even started. The financial hemorrhage continues. Bonds are going down. Treasury bonds are not renewed."

HITLER BANS MONARCHISTS

ESSEN, Germany, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Two more vehicles for the possible return to power of the Kaiser have been disposed of in Nazi Germany.

They are the Hohenzollern League and the Imperialist Front League for the promotion of the Hohenzollern idea, both suppressed it was announced yesterday, in "a serious stroke against reaction."

Nazism's action, said the national Zeitung, in announcing the dissolution, prevented "sabotage to the New Germany."

That the monarchist issue now is a dead one has become apparent from Nazi leaders' oft-repeated phrase "we recognize no other leader in Germany except Hitler."

The national Zeitung cited the Nazi regime's "magnanimity" which permitted a number of organizations to continue but suppressed but said the two monarchist leagues turned into dangerous center reactionaries."

U. S. Effort to End War Told by Lloyd George

British Peace Terms Revealed in Memoirs

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The word "probably" may have changed the entire course of the World War, David Lloyd George says in the second volume of his war memoirs, to be published today.

In February, 1916, Col. Edward M. House visited London with the suggestion that President Wilson summon a conference of all the belligerents to discuss peace terms, writes Lloyd George. Adding:

"I was opposed to the summoning of a conference without some preliminary understanding with the President as to the minimum terms which the Allies were to insist upon with his sanction and support.

"In my opinion, therefore, it was undesirable to take such a risk unless we were practically assured beforehand that if Germany proved intractable on these terms, the U. S. A. would throw in her lot with us."

MINIMUM TERMS

The minimum terms, says Lloyd George, included:

"The restoration of the independence of Belgium and Serbia, and the surrender of Alsace and Lorraine to France, provided that the loss of territory thus incurred by Germany would be compensated by concessions to her in other places outside Europe, as well as as some less sweeping adjustments.

"Col. House promised to cable President Wilson a full report of the proceedings and to obtain his assent to the conclusions arrived at before the British government notified their acceptance of President Wilson's proposal. Why was this conference never summoned?

"Was the fiasco due to Sir Edward Grey's reluctance to press the idea upon our French Allies, or was it attributable to the insertion by President Wilson of one final word in the gentlemen's agreement suggested by Col House?

WILSON COMMITTED

"The document as cabled by Col. House definitely committed of course, to the assent of Congress—in the event of rejection by Germany of a conference into which he was prepared to enter with a pledge to the Allies to support their minimum terms.

"The President in his reply inserted the world 'probably' in front of the undertaking. The real explanation probably is that President Wilson was afraid of public opinion in the U. S. A. and Sir Edward Grey was frightened of our Allies.

"Looking back on this period it is clear that if Col. House's plan had been acted upon, the most that could have been hoped from such a conference would have been the earlier entry of the United States into the struggle and the shortening of the war which that event would have brought about."

BORDER GUARDS SLAY GERMAN

International News Service.

MUNICH, Germany, Nov. 24.—The latest and apparently most serious of a series of Austro-German border incidents occurred today with the fatal shooting of a Reichswehr private by Austrian border guards.

The victim was skiing with five other members of the Reichswehr regular German army, in the Bavarian Mountains, near Feenalmkogl. The soldiers were dressed in civilian clothes, according to German authorities.

Suddenly, according to the German version, the Austrian frontier guards fired three shots into the group, even though they were on the German side of the border.

Jail Hazard Past, Singer May Put 'Heart in Work'

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—A two-year-old order directing that John Steele, singer, be jailed for nonpayment of alimony was suspended today when Steele pleaded he could not put his heart into his work while playing "hide and seek" with deputy sheriffs.

Justice Close, who issued the original commitment order, suspended it with the observation that "this man cannot employ his unusual ability with the constant thought in his mind that the Sheriff is in the wings waiting for the finale."

The order had been obtained by Steele's first wife, Sidonie, who claimed he owed her, at the rate of $150 a week, more than $16,000 in back alimony. Under the new order she is to receive 15 per cent of Steele's gross earnings.

GREEKS STUDY INSULL OUSTER

International News Service.

ATHENS, Nov. 24.—The Greek government, after receiving representations from the American government, today studied the possibility of finding some way to deport Samuel Insull without arousing hostile public opinion in Greece.

It was understood Lincoln MacVeagh, the American minister, on instructions from Washington, pointed out to Greek authorities several ways and means of deporting the former Chicago utilities magnate, who twice has been freed by the Greek courts in American extradition attempts.

The Greek government was seriously considering the suggestions made, but feared the public, in sympathy with Insull ever since he first fled here, would raise cries of scandal if Insull were to be deported.

If the Chicagoan were forced out of Greece, he would be taken to the United States instantly to face trial on fraudulent bankruptcy charges in connection with the collapse of his $2,000,000,000 public utilities empire.

Baker Will Attend Litvinoff Banquet

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, was in New York today to attend a dinner tonight in honor of Maxim M. Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs of the Soviet Republic. The dinner, sponsored by the American Chamber of Commerce, will be given in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

HELP SPREAD EMPLOYMENT

SHOP EARLY

That Others May Have a Merry Christmas

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING EARLY has a greater significance this year than ever before. It means the employment of thousands of men and women who otherwise might be forced to face Christmas Day with empty purses and hearts filled with sadness.

Many are accustomed to delay their Christmas shopping until after Thanksgiving. Heretofore that has not been a matter for concern, but this year it so happens that Thanksgiving comes on the last day of the month. If the public intends to pursue its usual tardy policy by waiting until after the Thanksgiving turkey is eaten before considering trimming the Christmas tree, it means a drastic curtailment of employment because of the shortness of the season.

BUY NOW FOR CHRISTMAS—it will be a boon for the unemployed. It will also enable you to have choice of COMPLETE CHRISTMAS STOCKS, leisure to choose from them. Don't wait until the last days before Christmas for the mad rush which creates hardships for you and for the salespeople. Be a practical and humane Santa Claus by supplying your Christmas needs NOW and bring cheer to thousands of homes whose members may obtain jobs.

Pittsburgh merchants have organized for the opening of the Christmas season in a dramatic way on Saturday, November 25. Stores are completely stocked with Christmas merchandise and are organized for the advance guard of Christmas buyers. The merchants have done THEIR part—now it rests with the public to do their part. SHOP EARLY AND MAKE A MERRY CHRISTMAS FOR OTHERS.

DEATH PARTS 'OLDEST' PAIR

Death separated Florida's oldest couple, according to word received here, when Mrs. Mary Smith Thomas, 88, wife of Daniel F. Thomas and native Pittsburgher, recently died at their home in Orlando. Mrs. Thomas died November 16.

The couple, who left Pittsburgh 12 years ago, had been married 67 years and their combined age was 184 years, Mr. Thomas being 96. Mrs. Thomas was formerly a member of the Wilkinsburg Presbyterian Church.

Besides her husband, she leaves three daughters, Mrs. C. D. Rowell, of Leechburg; Mrs. C. W. Shearer, Wilkinsburg, and Mrs. F. S. Rush and one son, Edgar F., both of Orlando.

Junior Patrol

We are looking for fellows who can think, fellows!

We want fellows who are not only smart at doing their lessons, but who are smart enough to think of many other things to be interested in.

A Junior Patrol is just as successful as the fellows in it. It's up to both the officers and the members to think of ways to help others and to think of many things to do.

Some boys and girls we know have a lot of fun playing "town." It's an elaborate game in which each girl and fellow keeps some kind of a store, selling the things he makes himself. Try it sometime, and see if you can make it work!

We have a letter today from Priscilla West, of 2208 Lehigh street, Swissvale. She is sending in two more pledges.

And another letter from John Yakanick, of Weirton, W. Va., who sends in two more pledges. He says he is going to be a 100 per cent member.

Sorry, Raymond Lucas, of 79 Sylvania street, Pittsburgh. It's too late to try out for Junior's football team; isn't there a team near you which you could practice with this next week or so?

Now look at this swell letter from Leo Welsh, of Duncan avenue extension, Allison Park, Pa. He says in his note:

"I am just writing a few lines to tell you that I am starting a club. I received my pin about two months ago. We have 13 children in our family, five girls and eight boys.

"I do not need to hunt members for my club. I am sending nine pledges, counting myself. I will have 10 members too, so please send me an armband. I lost my pin so please send me another one.

It's okay with us, Leo. If you can have a Junior Patrol right in your own family, that's swell. We surely hope that your Patrol is a successful one, and we will be expecting to hear from you some more with more news.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment, which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¾ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly 90 per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

Stoopnagle And Budd Coming

By AIRCASTER

The date decided upon for Stoopnagle and Budd's return via CBS-WJAS is Saturday, December 16. Jacques Renard will baton the event and Vera Van will warble.

The ingenious inventors tell me they've worked out a few new gadgets while traveling about the country from theater to theatef:

A ladder that does away with fly swatters. One of those pyramid affairs such as are used in dog acts. But the bottom rung on one side of this one is missing.

The flies walk up one side and down the other. When they come to the place where the rung is removed, they fall off and dash out their brains:

An upside-down mail chute, so that the postman can drop your incoming letters in it on the ground floor, and they'll drop up to your office, or sump'm.

* * *

Five-a-Week

Seems as if Wayne King and his waltz wafters are out for a record number of times on the air.

Along comes word that a Wednesday night NBC-WCAE half-hour will be added to Wayne's present schedule of four broadcasts a week—three on NBC and one on CBS.

* * *

He promises to produce the missing "Elmer" at the radio jamboree, Motor Square Garden, Saturday night.

As master of ceremonies at the dance and floor show, Louie will trot out a dozen or more radio acts.

* * *

Pittsburgh

A history of Pittsburgh will be dramatized over WCAE tomorrow at 8:30.

Highlights of industrial, musical, civic, social progress will be pictured in half-hour programs. Pittsburgh is 175 years old.

I'm delighted to see Zoel Parenteau getting a break he deserves at CBS. His orchestra, sponsored by a salt concern, will be heard every Friday night at 6:45, over a Columbia network stretching from Maine to the Carolinas to Detroit, but skipping Pittsburgh. December is the night of the debut.

* * *

Leading members of the medical profession in Pittsburgh will be heard over WCAE every Tuesday, beginning November 28.

The doctors, speaking for the Medical Society of Western Pennsylvania, will suggest health precautions.

Naughty

To Ed Wynn: It would be nicer to keep 'em clean.

May Singhi Breen is the first NBC artist to bust the rule requiring artists to use the freight elevator, if carrying an instrument.

Jimmy Long On WCAE

James J. Long, Sun-Telegraph sports columnist, gives his weekly review of athletic events over WCAE this evening at 6.

The Sun-Telegraph Family Children's program is heard over WCAE at 4:45.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the day's news over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.; over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Collecting old newspapers is one of the popular hobbies of Globe Trotters. Mrs. C. D. Matison, seeing a notice of the Charles Campbell collection of Benton Harbor boasting the ownership of a New England newspaper of December, 1805, reports that her collection has a copy of the Kingston Gazette of January, 1800. In its pages are found the European condolences sent the United States at the death of George Washington.

Mrs. Owens—The matter you reported to me ought to be taken up with the Pittsburgh police department of missing persons. They have the connections to effectively conduct searches for missing people.

Mrs. James, Carnegie—No; Christmas seals were not originated in Pittsburgh, nor America. A note from Harry Stanley, West Penn Hospital, informs that the seals are of Danish origin. In 1904 a Danish postman conceived the idea of fighting tuberculosis by affixing a special stamp to letters. Today in Pittsburgh practically all the money to fight this dread disease is realized from the sale of seals.

Pinchot Not Becoming Ally of Machine

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

The concord and unity which have existed between Gov. Pinchot and leaders of the Republican state organization during the Legislature's consideration of a liquor program have set in train some unique stories about alliances for the next state-wide campaign.

One which has been given general circulation about Harrisburg is that the organization, in an effort to secure fusion of factions within the party in order to present a united front to the Democrats, would support Mr. Pinchot as a candidate for senatorial nomination.

As on exchange for this graciousness Mr. Pinchot would be expected to aid a gubernatorial candidate with an organization stamp. Some gossips have even gone to the extent of naming the gubernatorial candidate as they have sent the story on its rounds.

The two names most prominently mentioned are Lieut.-Gov. Edward C. Shannon and Attorney General William A. Schnader.

That in itself should be sufficient to cast doubts on the authenticity of the story. Mr. Schnader is something of a conservative, and has been a factor in state government when regulars were in control. However, he is not unanimously acceptable to the organization.

Gen. Shannon has friends and foes in the organization, and there have been some to think that he was becoming more and more friendly with the present administration.

A ticket containing the names of Mr. Pinchot and either of the other gentlemen would not give much edge to the organization. It might be a good one, perhaps a combination which could face the Democrats with some hope of success, but it would have too much of a Pinchot tinge to be acceptable to the unreconstructed regulars.

* * *

Accord Not Likely To Survive Session

There is now no evidence whatever that anything resembling an alliance exists between Mr. Pinchot and the organization for future political activity. The understanding the two wings of the Republican party have enjoyed during the liquor consideration is not apt to stand through the conflict of opinion certain to arise on other phases of the legislative schedule which Mr. Pinchot has laid before the assembly.

The Governor and the Republican leaders when the session began realized that it would be fatal to any substantial group which delayed legislation on liquor. Each could see the danger which would follow should repeal arrive without Pennsylvania in position to control and license the liquor traffic.

This thought of self-preservation brought them together to shove the bills through. It was no easy job, for there was no hearty approval of the legislation either passed or about to be passed. But for united action and an occasional swinging of the whip by the Governor and the regular leaders, the liquor program would have fallen into chaos.

Regular leaders assert that when stories involving Mr. Pinchot and the organization in an agreement to extend through the next campaign are traced to their source, their impetus is found to have been within the Pinchot circle. Certainly it is true that the Governor's friends rather than the organization leaders do the talking on the subject.

* * *

Political Dynamite In Governor's Program

Some of the Pinchot program yet to be considered is full of political dynamite, from an organization standpoint, and it will be strange if the session ends without warfare. Within a couple of weeks there can be expected some of the familiar Pinchot statements castigating the organization.

Meanwhile the Democrats are adhering to their social legislation program. They are at war with the Republican organization, but some also are even more at war with Mr. Pinchot. It was noticeable on the floor of the House this week that the target of the most bitter utterances of Representative Sarig, of Berks, Democratic floor leader, was the Governor.

That is something of an anomal in view of the friendly inter changes between the Governor and David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Allegheny County Democratic organization. Mr. Lawrence wants to have a say in naming the appointee to the County Court vacancy which will be created when Judge M. A. Musmanno steps up to Common Pleas.

Mr. Lawrence and Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's, already have asked the Governor to appoint Austin L. Staley, who was defeated for County Court in the last election. The Governor's reply was that nothing would be determined until after the Legislature adjourns.

PINCHOT'S WIFE RAPS MELLON, COYNE, REED

State's 'First Lady' Flays Steel Trust, Controlled Courts

If the ears of Senators James J. Coyne and David A. Reed, industrialists Charles M. Schwab and Myron C. Taylor and Citizens Andrew W. Mellon and J. P. Morgan are burning today, it is no wonder!

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Pinchot, raked them over the coals on two occasions yesterday and will probably not spare them today or tomorrow in her eight scheduled speeches to labor groups in Western Pennsylvania and Ohio.

And if steel trusts, corrupt political machines and controlled courts had ears, they would be burning too, for they also came in for a goodly share of scathing denunciation from the first lady of Pennsylvania.

URGES UNION

More than 6,000 people packed the Polish Falcon's Hall in Braddock yesterday afternoon and the Eagles Hall in New Kensington last night to hear Mrs. Pinchot in her favorite role of champion of the working classes.

To the steel, iron and tin workers at Braddock, she preached organization; to the fraternal brotherhood and townspeople of New Kensington, social legislation . . . old age pensions, unemployment insurance and other remedies for workers' ills. She told the Braddock group:

"I want to see the day when every man in the steel industry belongs to a union. I'm here today to help the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers to get you organized.

"Union organization is the American way to get things done. Workers have a right to have something to say about hours, wages and working conditions."

REPEATS PLEDGE

Mrs. Pinchot reiterated for Braddock listeners the pledge she made to 10,000 Vandergrift townsfolk Wednesday night, of personal intervention in behalf of any man who loses his job because of union activities. She said:

"Nobody can do anything to you for joining a union now-a-days. In the old days, steel trusts had spies all around to terrorize, use violence on and even kill men for organizing.

"That day is over. The United States government says workers have the right to organize. The whole power of the United States is behind you.

"If any one is dismissed for joining a union, he should go at once to the union officials and they will go to Washington. If need be, I will go, too, and we shall see if the steel trusts are stronger than the government. My guess is they are not."

DAYS OF CZARS GONE

Although she named no names at Vandergrift, Mrs. Pinchot was not content with hints at Braddock. She declared:

"Men like Schwab and Taylor need a whole lot of education and you can give it to them.

RUNAWAY AUTO PERILS SOCIETY WOMAN

Car Guided Into Tree To Avert Serious Accident

The socially prominent Mrs. J. W. Marsh, of Woodland road, escaped injury last night when her runaway automobile struck an iron pole in front of 4357 Center avenue.

As the car rolled down Center avenue more than a block, Mrs. Marsh from the back seat, although she had never handled the wheel of an automobile, managed to steer it against a tree. The car snapped the tree and came to a stop after hitting the pole.

Mrs. Marsh's chauffeur was delivering a message in the neighborhood when the machine ran away. Witnesses said that the woman's presence of mind probably averted a serious accident.

Suffering only from shock, Mrs. Marsh was taken to Homeopathic Hospital and then to her home.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Cubans sent a big delegation to Montevidio, South America, to attend a peace conference that leaves 'em kinder shorthanded in their war at home till these get back.

Will Rogers

There certainly is not much incentive for anything to be done right nowadays. A U. S. stamp printer made mail stamps (had it turned crosswise) and they brought $12,000. If he had had it plum upside down it would have brought a hundred thousand.

We get another illustration of an "expert." This fellow Sprague that left the Treasury in such a huff, has been all this time finding out Mr. Roosevelt had already inflated. Yours, WILL.

According to Frank W. Sh parade director, favorable weat for the event has been forecas Meteorologist W. S. Brotzman, extra street cars will be put i service to accommodate the rade-goers. Police reserves wi on duty to handle the crowds.

The event will inaugurate t 1933 Christmas shopping seas in Pittsburgh in accordance wit a movement recently launched t extend the shopping period, usually confined to the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas, to approximately a week before the former holiday this year. The movement is based on the fact that 1933's Thanksgiving Day falls only 25 days before Christmas, shortening the period about 30 per cent and providing only 20 shopping days before Christmas.

Success of the "Buy Early" drive, dependent on public response, would, by lengthening the shopping season, provide extra working days for hundreds of Pittsburgh's unemployed now anticipating seasonal openings. Public co-operation has been urged almost unanimously by business and civic leaders throughout the city.

Police Measuring Nudist Newlywed Pair for Barrels

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

First nudist wedding at Lake Elsinore, California.

She should have worn a bale of hay.

The bridegroom wore no boutonniere. He had no lapels.

We will be around on their fiftieth anniversary and shower them with golden California sunshine.

No old shoes were thrown at the happy couple. The best they could do in the nudist colony was a pair of pearl grey spats and three bunion plasters.

The bride and groom will spend their honeymoon in San Francisco, where the police are getting ready to measure them for two empty flour barrels.

Girl, 12, Sits on Cousin To Save Him From Car

Ask her cousin, Bobby Ladley, 5, same address.

Bobby was returning home with candy from a nearby store late yesterday as Betty was on her way home from school. A parked car, whose brakes had failed to hold, ran down the steep grade of Hazeldell street.

Seeing Bobby in the path of the car, Betty promptly seized him, threw him to the street, and to make sure he would not get up and run in front of the car, she sat on him.

The car sped by—missing the children by inches. It crashed against the back porch of Jacob Miller, 202 Lutz avenue, wrecking the car and damaging the porch.

DOG RUNS OFF, GIRL GRIEVES

She is Charlotte Tanoff, of rear 45 Obey street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Tanoff.

The 2-year-old dog that was raised from a pup by Charlotte broke its leash in the yard Tuesday night and disappeared. It was wearing a 1933 license tag.

From that time on little Miss Tanoff has failed to attend school, sleep, eat and, said her dad, become so ill that bed was the only safe place for her. He added:

"If only that dog would return, how happy she would be. Why she would be better the minute she saw Fritzie."

Operator 13 by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Gail Determines To Take Pretty Enemy Captive

Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Capt. Cadwalader turned on the unseen speaker with an oath, demanding what he meant by insulting a Confederate officer. At that instant Operator 13 wriggled out of his grasp and vanished in the darkness.

Whoever it had been that had dared to challenge a Philadelphia Cadawalader subsided, grumbling. Nobody else ventured to question him.

Very cooly the lancer-captain rode on a little way, then turned his horse and rode leisurely back again and out of the fatal village, followed by his corporal, who was almost fainting in his saddle.

Ten minutes later, a company of the Sixth Pennsylvania lancers might have been seen skedaddling for life and limb toward Frederick and salvation, headed by their chastened commanding officer, Capt. Charles E. Cadwalader. Which seemed likely to solve their immediate problem, but offered no solution whatever to the perplexities that beset Operator 13, who was skulking along under the lilies inside the picket fence of the Morris house.

Afraid to Run

She dared not run—although her legs implored her to make vigorous use of them. She scarcely ventured, even, to glance over the fence toward that column of horsemen which had now begun to move off slowly through Main street.

But what most alarmed her was that the dark street had become crowded with the kindly citizens of this old Maryland town. They appeared from everything, carrying lighted candle-lanterns, crowding about the Rebel cavalry and offering pans brimming with buttermilk, strips of bacon laid on corn bread, fruit and blue china bowls full of fragrant cider and homemade wines.

In the vague light of candlelit windows and of flickering horn lanterns, Operator 13 caught a glimpse of Lady Greensleeves just entering her picket gate. At the mere sight of her, a swift, hot flush of excitement swept the girl, and she crouched among the lilies watching her as a young panther watches quarry unattainable—yet always crouches to stare and watch.

Slowly Lady Greensleeves mounted the veranda steps and stood there as though awaiting the arrival of somebody from the dark street. There was noise and laughter in the street, where the hungry Confederate troopers were eating and drinking in their saddles, and where the horse-raiding details of the Ninth Virginia were riding in with more Pennsylvania nags, captured outside the Maryland border.

For a little while Operator 13 squatted low among the lilies, her dark eyes fastened on Lady Greensleeves. At last, very cautiously, she began to creep toward a better position among some rosebushes which grew near a stable.

As she reached these, somewhere near her a horse whinnied in the darkness. Soundlessly, on naked feet, she made her way to the building, unlatched the doors, and, leaving them wide, peered into obscurity.

Time to Act

Starlight made of the inner darkness a silvery-gray gloom; she crept inside; the velvet lips of Skylark, still saddled and unfed, muzzled her cheek and bare throat; and she knew the mare instantly. Then a low nickering from Lady Margrave; but a third horse—a big hunter—remained silent in his stall.

Operator 13 hesitated, frightened yet exultant; trembling with that strange thrill which is a kind of delicious terror. Then she took Skylark and Lady Margrave by the heads and led them out into the grass. Their hoofs made an alarming noise on the stable floor, but nobody in the house seemed to hear.

Through the thicket of roses she could see the street where candle lanterns faintly revealed gray-jacketed cavalry moving slowly out on the road to Frederick. The fitful light revealed something else, also—a trooper of the Ninth Virginia dismounting at the picket gate. And instantly Operator 13 knew he had come for her stolen horses.

The grounds around the Morris house were set with stately trees. To the right stretched a lawn leading into a large orchard in the rear. As Operator 13 led her two horses thither, keeping within the shadow of the trees, she saw the cavalryman and Lady Greensleeves walk toward the stables.

Terrible as was the girl's situation, a kind of fierce and triumphant madness possessed her. The superb role she was playing, the unknown denouement, whatever it was to be, fiercely obsessed her with intense emotion that only an artist, and a great one, can ever know.

From the shelter of loaded fruit trees she watched her enemies, and saw them, presently, retreat from the looted stable, stand helplessly and look about them, then walk back to the gate, where the trooper mounted his horse and trotted off after the Confederate rear guard, now riding to the fords of the Potomac.

Prowling Huntress

As the last gray trooper and the last Pennsylvania-led horse trotted out of Emmitsburg, the wild heart of Operator 13 beat more wildly. In that second she tied her horses to a tree and stole toward the dark house to settle her affair with my Lady Greensleeves.

Every window, door and shutter in the Morris mansion was locked and bolted. There seemed to be no way of getting inside that Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service could discover.

Noiselessly, as a skulking lynx, she made the tour of the silent house, exploring keyhole, knob and lattice, and examining the interstices of shutter, blind, persienne and door. She climbed to the pillared gallery and stole cat-foot along it, probing with slender fingers every window ledge, sill and threshold, flitting to and fro under sagging trumpet vines and clematis.

No sound came from within the mansion; the venerable town around her remained as still as its own graveyard. But the girl was as persistent as a cat at a rathole, utterly determined to get at that golden-haired woman of angelic eyes and stature who had sent thousands of Union soldiers to red destruction at Manassas, and who had so nearly delivered her to the military gallows.

Whether it was moonlight or starlight that filtered through vine and tree-top, the darkness seemed more silvery gray, and the heavy scent of phlox and lilies grew fresher. Dawn could not be very far away now. And, with dawn, the good farmer folk

Gail Loveless, experienced actress at 20, was sent into the Confederate lines as a Union Spy. Disguised as a quadroon laundress, she deceived everybody, including Capt. Jack Gailliard, gallant spy in the Confederate service, who was ashamed to find himself deeply stirred by her saffron loveliness. Vespasian Chancellor, chief of Confederate spies, presently exposed her and she fled for her life. She stole the clothing of a farm boy to make herself appear to be a Negro stable boy.

Outwitting the pursuing Chancellor and Gailliard, she captured them, one at a time, and led them toward the Federal lines. On the way they stumbled upon the dreadful spectacle of a Union Army hanging a Confederate spy, and Operator 13, sickened, freed her prisoners. Before he rode away, Gailliard kissed her. Then she rode into Emmitsburg, Maryland, at dusk.

Exhausted, she met a young man who spoke the pass phrase of the Northern secret service and, at his advice, lay down under a tree to sleep. The man, a Southern spy, betrayed Operator 13 to the beautiful Lady Greensleeves, Confederate spy, who was living in Emmitsburg. Lady Greensleeves promised to "take care of the young Yankee actress" until the Confederate cavalry should arrive to hang her.

Fleeing into the country, Operator 13 met a troop of Federal lancers, riding toward Emmitsburg. She told their commander, Capt. Cadwalader, that the town was full of enemy cavalry, but he insisted on going to see, taking one soldier along and dragging terrified Operator 13 by her collar. In the dark he spoke to the Confederate riders and one of them exclaimed: "He sounds like a Yankee!"

WELLES TO QUIT CUBA TO SPEED STABILITY

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is changing ambassadors at Cuba in the confidence of the early establishment of a government there meeting his conditions for recognition through stability.

Apparently satisfied that the provisional government of President Grau San Martin will reach some peaceful agreement in the near future which may result in general support of a government, he announced his diplomatic transfer suddenly late last night.

Ambassador Sumner Welles after a return to Cuba to complete the understanding is returning to the United States as Assistant Secretary of State and Jefferson Caffery, present Assistant Secretary of State, is going to Havana.

COMPROMISE SOUGHT

Mr. Roosevelt said in his statement:

"We earnestly hope that in the near future through a spirit of compromise on all sides, the Cuban people themselves will reach some peaceful agreement which may result in general support of a government and thus avoid continued civil disturbance."

Whether the new move means recognition of the Grau San Martin provisional regime was left to speculation but significance was attached to the presidential declaration urging "a spirit of compromise on all sides."

The apparent solution of the Cuban upheaval which has brought two revolutions in the last six months and as many new governments comes, incidentally, upon the eve of the Pan-American conference convening in Montevideo.

RELATIONS STUDIED

The President is giving the most careful attention to American relations—North and South. His statement declared that:

"On the economic side, we have been hopeful of entering upon a discussion of such measures as might be undertaken by common consent between the two governments which would redound to the benefit of both the American and Cuban peoples."

Referring to the lack of recognition of the existing provisional government, the President said:

"We have not believed that it would be a policy of friendship and of justice to the Cuban people as a whole to accord recognition to any provisional government in Cuba unless such government clearly possessed the support and the approval of the people of that republic."

The Cuban declaration was issued dramatically last night just before midnight through Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary to the President. Only last Sunday Welles talked with Mr. Roosevelt here. He then was given the assignment to return to Cuba and help settle things.

It all adds to the intense interest already aroused in the coming of the World's Fair attraction that was seen by more than a million and a half persons. It Lies in YOUR Hands to Make a Merry Christmas for Others

The stores of Pittsburgh stand ready to put on additional Christmas help the instant the public starts buying Christmas merchandise. Early buying will insure Christmas cheer for additional workers to whom otherwise Christmas would be just December 25th. The period from Thanksgiving to Christmas is so short this year that early buying alone can account for equal volume with previous years. And to get that volume any merchant would be delighted to employ the additional help necessary. Harris' has its Christmas displays out and ready for your visit tomorrow. In every department—Men's Clothing and Accessories, Women's and Children's Wear, etc., our stocks are now at their Christmas best—assuring you NOW of complete selections of fresh, fine gift goods—and none of the hurry and bustle of last-minute shopping. Please note:

Our Credit Office Will OK The Account of Employed

—men and women, upon proper identification and suitable reference. They need not continue to do without needed clothes, either for themselves or their families, if they use our Budget Account, payable in many months, in small, negligible sums. No extra charge beyond our regular cash prices is made for this service. And our iron-clad guarantee is back of every purchase—namely: IF you can buy Harris quality merchandise for less than Harris prices, we will refund your money.

Our Toy Shop Opens To-morrow!

Little Annie Rooney, famous cartoon comic, will appear in person in the Toy Shop, from 11 A. M. to closing. Ask for her caricature.

OPERATOR 13

By Robert W. Chambers

Relentless Search

Gail Loveless lifted her ragged shirt and drew from its soft sheath the knife which was belted around her supple body. With the long, thin blade she probed the cracks of windows, shutters and doors, and accomplished nothing.

But the patience of one woman bent upon the undoing of another knows no obstacles; and the girl's resolve to get into the house and take my Lady Greensleeves, as well as Jeb Stuart's horses, to Frederick became a fierce obsession.

As she worked tirelessly at hinge and sill her overheated imagination of a thespian pictured the amazing scene at headquarters with herself the center of an incredibly dramatic climax, while astounded generals clustered around her in respectful admiration and the whole army cheered.

To triumph! And what astonishing spoils of war to offer to her bleeding, distracted country!—the most beautiful, most dangerous and most dreaded woman spy in the Confederate service; and the two favorite horses of the cleverest cavalry general in the world!

What spectacle could equal it in history except the pageant of a returning Roman conqueror bringing some lovely heathen queen in chains?

Her knife blade availed nothing; there was no getting into the aged colonial mansion that way. She paced the gallery on naked, stealthy feet, to and fro, to and fro, until it became plain to her excited brain that there was no getting into the house by any violent means or device within her compass. And dawn was very near.

Very well, then, she would wait until some early yawning servant opened a door, and then drag the golden one out of bed.

She slid down the trellis to the ground and hurried around to the orchard, where Skylark and Lady Margrave were nipping leaves from all the fruit trees within reach. Then she ran to the barn, where the doors had been closed again, but where there was no lock; and she entered, cast a quick glance at the big hunter, filled a bushel basket with oats, and ran back to her stolen horses.

Reads Letters

Once more she returned to the barn, where were two zinc pails; and these she filled with water at the trough across the street and lugged them back to the orchard.

She herself was nearly starved. She found and ate some fruit—great ripe peaches with dripping white-and-pink flesh and a golden apple as sweet as honey.

While she ate she pulled out the two letters she had abstracted from the Morris box at the postoffice, and contrived to read them in the grayness of the October dawn. One of them dated from Mercersburg, October 10, was tragically brief:

MRS. AUGUSTUS MORRIS,
Madam:

Two Confederate Secret Service agents, Col. Williams and Lieut. Dunlap, were discovered inside the Yankee lines at 11 o'clock last night, wearing Federal uniforms. At half-past 4 this morning a military court found them guilty. They were hanged at 10:30 a. m. Inform Lady Greensleeves, Miriam C., Rachel Lyons and Mrs. Phillips.

V. CHANCELLOR.

The other letter was briefer:

LADY GREENSLEEVES:

The blockade runner Miranda, at anchor off False Cape, will send a boat ashore for you if you signal with a white handkerchief in each hand.

GASTON.

Operator 13 needed to read the note from General Lee's chief of military telegraph only once to understand it completely. Either now, here in Emmitsburg, or somewhere on the long, dangerous road between Baltimore, Back Bay and False Cape, she, or others, must stop and arrest the beautiful Lady Greensleeves before she could take ship for England and bewitch a meddlesome ministry already inclined to recognize the Southern Confederacy as a new autonomous nation among the powers on earth.

Dawn seemed very near; the air grew fresher; and already a mocking bird ventured a timid call note or two. Not far away a convent bell sounded three strokes.

She put the two letters into her pocket, gathered from the picket fence a great sheaf of Madonna lilies, and began legging it along Main street and the crooked lane toward St. Joseph's.

"Operator 13" is the type of story that appears regularly in Cosmopolitan Magazine.

To EVERYONE WHO HAS TAKEN THE SAME LAXATIVE OVER TWO MONTHS:

An important discovery has been made about the bowels.

This condition can be caused by any laxative you have taken very long. It can never be cured by larger doses. It can be helped by a cathartic change.

This new knowledge is what started the stampede to Chocolate Cascarets. You never tire of their honest-to-goodness chocolaty flavor. Cascarets are the form of help you should adopt at the first sign of laxative staleness.

Are you laxative stale? Take a Chocolate Cascaret and see! Let it melt in your mouth and enjoy that chocolaty goodness till the last morsel is gone. Then an unhurried but thorough emptying of the bowels. Just a natural, muscular movement that cleanses thoroughly, and leaves you feeling fine. There is nothing in this formula to upset the system.

Children, as a rule, dislike taking a laxative but you will find that they need no coaxing to eat these luscious chocolaty squares! They're good to the very last morsel—no medicine taste at all. Their flavor compares with the finest chocolate candies made!

All drugstores have Chocolate Cascarets now. Those that were sold out have received more, in all three sizes. Ten, twenty-five, and fifty cents. In the new brown boxes.

A cathartic change may give you a new lease on life; find out for a dime!

WHEN LAXATIVE STALE: "Don't increase the dose"

When your favorite laxative lets down, the system has become "laxative stale." Larger doses, or a stronger laxative only makes matters worse. Simply changing to Cascarets has helped thousands who thought they had chronic constipation. Cascarets are as effective as medicines two and three times as strong! Chocolate Cascarets are a delightful form in which to take a stimulant for the bowels.

CITY LEADERS TELL SANTA WANTS

The question is: What do you want for Christmas?

Mayor Herron wishes Santa Claus would supply jobs to those of his followers who will be ousted by Mayor-elect McNair.

But the Mayor-elect himself wants Kris to turn chef. Here's Mr. McNair's request:

"Well, I never did have a good dish of Schnitz and Knepp in this town. What is it? Schnitz is Pennsylvania Dutch for apples and Knepp is dough. There's ham in it, too. It's like olives; you've got to learn to like it."

LITTLE ASKS JOB

Harry A. Little, president of Council who was ousted in the recent Democratic landslide, lifts his hand to the skies in a prayerful attitude, and makes a wish in two words:

"A job!"

"Peace and quiet."

District Attorney Andrew T. Park can hardly be blamed for his letter to Santa. The Republican prosecutor, who feels mighty, mighty lonesome—like a lone wolf—since the election, pleads:

"A recount, Santa don't fail me."

WILL WANTS TRACTOR

Recovering from his defeat in the mayoralty primary, Councilman P. J. McArdle asks for this help:

"A lot of receipted bills."

ANDERSON'S WISH

Annd Councilman Charles Anderson, long the apostle of the people's and Anderson's rights, trains his guns on the mythical gent with a demand for "good government."

One other gentleman in politics asked for jobs for all the unemployed in his voting bailiwick, laboring apparently under the impression that the campaign hadn't ended yet.

Outside of Pittsburgh: Will Rogers wants a tractor, but the missus says no. Schuman-Heink would appreciate perfume. Janet Gaynor wants, among other things, a ticket to Scotland. These are a few of the wants expressed by a score or more notables in an article in the December issue of Good Housekeeping. The article is titled: "What Typical Americans Want for Christmas."

TWO FAMILIES ROUTED BY FIRE

Two families were forced to flee from their homes at 4 Gaskel street, Mt. Washington, this morning by fire of undetermined origin.

The fire was discovered by James Brashear, who lived on the third floor. Brashear, his wife and two sons, James, 3, and Joseph, 1½, made their way to the second floor where they awakened L. E. Bethune, his wife, Mary, and their two children, Mary Louise, 9, and Clyde, 10.

The damage was estimated by firemen at $750.

Rosedale Civic Body Backs School Bills

A resolution urging support for legislation in the State Legislature to have the commonwealth assume the costs of education was adopted last night by the Rosedale Civic Association of Penn Township. The resolution was adopted following addresses by C. V. Shoup, executive director of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League, and Attorney Harry Shapera, member of the league's executive committee. John Lloyd presided.

3-Alarm 'Fire' Lands 'Robbed' Man in Cell

There wasn't a policeman around and John Curry, 25, felt that he had been robbed, so he pulled the fire-alarm box, not once, nor twice, but three times. And in a minute a dozen police showed up. Of course a lot of fire engines showed up, too, but they weren't needed. This happened at Clark and Colwell streets.

John told the law that he felt he had been "touched" for a five-spot in a Shomin street house.

Luckies draw easily — burn evenly

It's easy to see why so many women prefer Lucky Strike. Luckies are fully packed with long strands of choice tobaccos, round and firm to the very tips. That means Luckies always draw easily, always burn smoothly. It also means no annoying loose ends to cling to lips or mess up the nice things in a woman's purse. And every day more and more women are showing their appreciation by saying "Luckies please".

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Pittsburgh is entertaining a many-titled countess, who was born a Russian princess, has the right to the title of countess and was a baroness by a former marriage. And now she also has the "title" of Mrs. Victor Franklin Blakeslee. She's known as the Countess Irina Skariatina under which name her novels appear.

The countess or Mrs. Blakeslee with her husband, Lieut. Victor Franklin Blakeslee, United States Navy, retired, is the guest of Mr. Blakeslee's brother and sister-in-law, the Elmer F. Blakeslees.

Last week they dined and spent the night at the White House. The countess' most recent book is "The First to Go Back." She was in Russia during the revolution, and was the first of the exiled class to return.

On her recent visit to South Bend, Ind., on a lecture tour, she was guest of honor at a tea given by Lieut. Blakeslee's cousin, Mrs. John Studebaker III.

After a lull Monday and Tuesday—giving the deb time to become reacquainted with their families—the deb season is gaining momentum.

Debuts Of Week

Likeable Gretchen Lappe, daughter of Mrs. Charles B. Lappe, who came out Wednesday at a luncheon her mother gave in the Twentieth Century Club, is the only bud to bow this week.

But next week there'll be three—Frances Frampton, Sally Jane Fields and Anaiana Beeson.

The first to come out will be Frances Frampton, daughter of the D. B. Framptons. She'll be presented at a tea her mother will give from 4 to 7 o'clock Monday afternoon in the Longue Vue Country Club.

Frances has asked Margaret Griffiths, Alice Ladley and Anne Brown, three sister debs, and Jane Dowler and Josephine Cadman, to be her aides.

Debut Aides

Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Stewart Dennis, Mrs. Q. S. Snyder, Mrs. Elder W. Marshall and Mrs. George Hays, Jr.

With three debut parties next week and the Cinderella Ball and non-coming-out parties for the debs, too, it's going to be a thrilling whirl.

* * *

Tomorrow afternoon the junior Wallace Hurtte Rowes will entertain with a tea in their home for Mrs. Rowe's debutante sister, Vardi Helene Marshall, daughter of the Lee Holmes Marshalls.

The junior skating club will open its season the first Monday afternoon in December. Skating will begin as soon as school is out.

Miss Ward to Address Ben Avon Woman's Club

Among the numerous lecture engagements which have been made for Miss Mary Ward, of the Civic Repertory Company, this week is one before the Ben Avon Woman's Club on Tuesday afternoon. She will speak at a meeting in the United Presbyterian Church, in connection with which there will be a sale of blind-made articles. Tea will be served by the social committee of which Mrs. Roy Hardtmayer is chairman.

Mrs. George A. Dimling, of Burchfield avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Carry Nichols, of Squirrel Hill, to Howard Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Barry of North Negley avenue, which was solemnized in New York on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Barry will reside in New York.

Gossipy Chat

By NANCY JANE

Joseph F. Guffey Miller, youngest son of the Carroll Millers and a junior at Yale, is one of the only two Yale juniors to be made a member of Tau Beta Zi, honorary engineering society.

His brother, William Gardner Miller III, received the same honor when he was a junior at the Stevens Institute of Technology at Hoboken, N. J. Yale student Miller is taking a mechanical and technical course at Yale, one of the most difficult in the scientific school.

* * *

And here's a bouquet for Shady Side Academy — young Mr. Miller was graduated with honors from Shady Side. And Shady Side is solely responsible for his preparation for Yale.

All four of the Miller "boys" are Shady Side graduates by the way. And they all are expected home for Christmas and a family dinner, to be held probably at the Miller country place, Wolf Creek Farm.

Have you heard that the Hotel Schenley has donated "itself" for the supper dance the Children's Hospital social service committee will give December 8—for the Children's Hospital of course.

And this is the committee's first "party" benefit. Formerly the flower day had been its sole means of raising funds.

Decorations Draw Comment at Tea Of City Club

Probably not one of the several hundred guests at the tea given yesterday by the Woman's City Club failed to comment on the usual tea table decorations. Small yellow and bronze chrysanthemums were combined in a most graceful and effective arrangement with long-stemmed California dried grasses, and the whole profusion was set into a soft, full base of black and orange celophane.

Mrs. Carl L. Peirce, Jr., president honor guest, received with Mrs. Edmund W. Mudge and Mrs. Clark Hammond, each of the trio wearing black. Mrs. George Scott Baton, in a particularly striking gown of black with silver bead trimmings on slashes along the back and sleeves, and Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, looking lovely in black crepe with a lacery of white pearl beads, presided at the tea table.

Swissvale Girl Weds Pittsburgh Man in East

The marriage of Miss Nancy May Bullions and Edward A. Kitzmiller II, was an event of Wednesday in New York.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bullions, of Schoyer avenue, Swissvale, and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kitzmiller, of Beechwood boulevard.

Mrs. Kitzmiller is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Mr. Kitzmiller is a graduate of Lafayette College. After a honeymoon in Bermuda they will be at home here.

Books of Victorian Era Contrasted With Today's For Epoch Members

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

"A Victorian Rose Jar" was the poetic and promising title of Mrs. Henry Burrell's paper given yesterday before the Epoch Club at its meeting in Mrs. E. E. Baker's home, Ellsworth avenue.

Although her subject was a "rose jar," Mrs. Burrell said it might better have been a "ginger jar," as she went on to reminisce about Victorian magazines and books and to contrast them with those of today. She showed prints from some of the old Godey's and Peterson's magazines.

As "musicale moments," Mrs. Baker discussed several musical current events, chief among which was the fact that Mme. Eugene Ysaye, widow and pupil of the famous violinist, is to make her debut this month. Mrs. Calvin C. Burgess in speaking of the growth and development of the mystery story, spoke of this type of writing as "the literature of escape."

A group of beautifully chosen poems, read by Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, who was a guest, completed a thoroughly delightful program.

The next meeting, on December 7, will be at Mrs. Fran' H. Rea's home in the Schenley Apartments when a play will be read by three of the members.

* * *

The regular meeting of the Women's Historical Society will be held on Monday at McCreery's instead of the Historical Building as previously announced.

A thanksgiving round table talk will be participated in by the members and later they will tour the exhibits and have tea as guests of the store.

The first in a series of bridges will be held this evening by the Turtle Creek Junior Woman's Club. This affair, which will take place in Mrs. Paul Rutter's home, Chestnut street, will be, like the remainder of the series, benefits to provide Christmas cheer for local needy families.

Miss Connolly Has Church Nuptials

At 8 o'clock this morning, in St. Bede's Roman Catholic Church, Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Connolly, daughter of Mrs. M. F. Connolly, of Wilkins, avenue, and Dennis Arthur Casey were married.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Andrew Connolly. She wore a gown of pansy blue velvet with a small white velvet hat and a corsage of white gardenias. Miss Gertrude Connolly, as her sister's maid of honor, wore wine velvet with a matching hat. William Moorehead was the best man.

After a breakfast in the Connolly home, Mr. and Mrs. Casey left for New York, where they will attend the Carnegie Tech-New York University game tomorrow. Tomorrow evening they will sail on the Mauretania for the West Indies and South America. Upon their return they will be at home in Beechwood boulevard.

Heel- and toe-in to these and away you'll go with the knowledge that your feet can bear the most critical scrutiny on the dance floor. White velvet . . . tintable to match gowns.

* * *

You've all been hearing about "giving the little glove a hand" until you are doubtless determined to NEVER, NEVER do anything of the kind. But we'll wager that after an eyeful of these blue, pink, brown, or black velvet ones we've spied, you'll not only want to give them YOUR hand, but a home as well! Simply darlings . . . shirred 'way up to your elbows . . . and the cheapest we've found anywhere in town for their like—$3.00!

* * *

The day of the blush being pretty well over . . . we can come right out and say that most of us don't like to wear any more than absolute! necessary under our evening gowns! (To which you agree, of course . . . being women!)

And so look pleased, my children, when we state that there is a happy hunting ground in town where dwell beautiful evening slips which are three-in-one garments . . . for $3.95 (hitherto unheard of!). They're slips of pure dye silk in white or tea-rose with brassiere tops (net lined) . . . generous pantie bottoms made to insure the slip's being shadow-proof . . . and are 53 inches long! Sizes 32 to 38.

Or if you want them without the panties . . . they come in satin, which costs a trifle more, but is worth it! Sizes 32 to 38 here also . . . $4.95.

* * *

But . . . it's about time you got yourselves dressed! In one of the $17.50 or $19.75 jobs which grow in fertile fields not far away and are the cause of a beaten path to their door!

If you see what we saw you'll lay eyes on the following—a heavy diagonally crinkled crepe of tangerine color with a surplice effect and large squishy black velvet flowers at the front of the belt . . . $17.50.

A white satin on simple lines . . . dotted with twinkling rhinestones here and there, and great ruffs of American beauty velvet crushed about the shoulders! $17.50. And an apricot satin with burnt rose flowers at either shoulder, $19.75.

What more could you ask for a nickel . . . or $19.75!

* * *

Your wrap! It's to be of velvet, of course, either long and sweeping or short and perkily gay! Those that we've viewed are a candlelight-red—one with corded sleeves set squaringly into the shoulders. And next, black velvet ones with white satin linings . . . buttoned across at the throat as if you were going skating instead of the theater (and very captivating, therefore) . . . $22.50.

And lastly the long sweeping black velvet wrap with scarf collar ending in ermine tails . . . and largish sleeves to give it the most graceful lines . . . $25. Sally forth in any of these, and feel that "the world is your oyster!"

* * *

Here is some information which is going to leave you panting, goggle-eyed and a-twitter! We have found a place where you may take your old coat, suit, or dress to have it remodeled . . . for almost nothing!

There is a woman tucked away somewhere who will not only make all your NEW clothes ($7 for coats and suits, $5 for dresses) . . . but will remodel last year's things which are too good to throw away . . . but not good enough to make you feel happy in them as they are! She will also pin-fit or baste-fit if you're smart enough to follow through from there on yourselves! If you're as much bull-in-a-china-shop with your hands as we are, you'll welcome this news!

THANKSGIVING DRESSING

The big fur cape is silver fox; so is the impudent pom pom on the pert velvet beret.

Even the color of this frock is in the holiday spirit, for it is cranberry red crinkled crepe. The buttons are brilliant rhinestones. Note the clever seaming of the princess line skirt, and the flattering low neck.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE high spot of all the Old Home Weeks in any year comes on one day—Thanksgiving. And what a problem it often is to know just what costume will see you through a formal midday feast, a drowsy afternoon, and a buffet nibble before you can get back to town, and perhaps to a night club for a few minutes of hoydenish fun far away from the family circle!

* * *

NOT only all these requirements must be met by one outfit, but it must also be foolproof against sticky little fingers of the ambitious lap crawlers in the family who must be at the party.

So what we want is an afternoon gown of some stuff that does not spot or crumple easily, and which nevertheless looks festive.

* * *

ROUGH crepe is swell; waterproofed velvet, perhaps fur trimmed or touched a bit with lame is another good bet; and a handsome suit with a luxurious blouse is third idea. Models like these are dressy, but they behave well under a coat for the trip to the old homestead, and they can take a lot of punishment indoors.

Health Education Courses Open Monday in Central 'Y'

The health education department of Central Branch, Young Women's Christian Association, is to begin the eight-week winter term of classes on Monday. Sun lamp baths administered by a trained attendant are available by appointment on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings or Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at noon.

A request for instruction in basketball has resulted in the organization of a basketball class, but since the "Y" does not promote competitive athletics, games will be played by various teams within the class itself. A decided interest in badminton has been developing recently and Central Branch is again offering classes in this sport. Regular gym classes that appeal to young and older women alike, housewives as well as business girls, dancing (tap, social, or ballroom) and last, but by no means the least popular, the swimming classes, are all offered by Central Branch.

Classes in beginning and advanced swimming are given, as well as classes in junior and senior life saving. The pool is available at certain hours every day in the week.

Truth

First Division Exchanges recently received a letter from a picture distributor in Hungary who wrote inquiring about their screen product. The letter read, in part:

"We are not looking for 'names' but for good, wholesome entertainment — pictures that depict American society life or gangsterdom."

Grandma Delilah

Samson Raphaelson, one of our favorite playwrights, tells about the time he took the net profits from his "Jazz Singer" and invested them in a yacht which he anchored off his Maine farm. Immediately after acquiring the boat he went to Abercrombie's and fitted himself in an elegant Captain's cap—the realization of a lifetime.

The cap was Samson's pride, and he wore it both on and off deck and at all hours. One morning he went out into the woods to chop trees and before long he spied his aged grandmother—up for the weekend—coming toward him.

"Samson, my boy," she said, "What is this cap you're wearing?"

"It's my captain's cap, grandma," he explained. "When you own a yacht, you become its captain."

The aged lady looked at him fondly.

"You know, Samson, my son, by me you're a captain, by your wife you're a captain; and even by yourself you're a captain, but by the captains," she nodded wisely, "you're no captain!"

The Real Thing

Which reminds us of the time that Tom Mix purchased his first palatial sea hack and joined a Southern California yacht club. Flushed with Hollywood prosperity and imbued with a flair for showmanship, Mix attired himself in a Rear Admiral's uniform, braids, epaulets and brass buttons.

One day the Commodore of the yacht club sought Mix and attempted to tactfully discourage the use of the gaudy outfit. Approaching the star, he said:

"Brass buttons, my eye!" retorted Tom. "Every one of them's 14K gold."

Look It Up

In Need, Indeedy!

Paul Sabin hurries in to say:

Extra! Extra!

At last we've found a man who has been able to stop Milton Berle from lifting material, and we recommend that Phil Baker and Lou Holtz have a medal struck in his honor. The lad's name is Mickey Bond and until last Monday he had been serving Berle in the capacity of interpreter, stooge, handy-man, and bodyguard. But a very intelligent lad for it all!

Last Mon. Berle called him to task for a supposed error and flatly told him he was fired.

"But before going send a few telegrams of congratulations to the cast of the 'Follies' for their opening tonight," he instructed.

"What shall I say in the wire?"

"Yes," Bond shouted back. "But today I'm not getting paid."

Tracy Stunt Affects Raft

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24.—Lee Tracy's famous "blanket" indictment of the parading Mexican cadets echoed in at least one other studio besides his own.

Mr. Raft

Fearing the effect of the episode in the southern capital, Paramount has abruptly cancelled the location trip planned for "The Trumpet Blows" company. Arrangements had been made for George Raft and a troupe of Hollywood players to go to Mexico City in January to film bull-fight scenes for the picture.

Hollywood, in general, saw the funny side of Tracy's balcony scene. The one who really took it to heart was Isabel Jewell, who had planned a flight to visit the actor. Isabel loves Lee more than any average man deserves, and she alternated between tears and wanting to do something right away to help.

* * *

"It couldn't have been an actor who took it," flips Chick, "because the size was only 6⅞s."

* * *

The gossips are dirging that love has died between Sally Blane and the crooner, Russ Columbo, who have ben holding hands for weeks in Hollywood late spots.

If you can believe Russ, however, it never was love.

"Sally and I have known each other for years, and I like her very much, but we weren't serious," says he.

And judging by the separate dates the two are having these nights, it's not even as serious as that any more.

With Marguerite Churchill preparing to go to New York for a play (as per their pre-marriage u n derstanding), George O'Brien threatened to be at loose ends. The athletic star has figured a way out of this, however. He and his trainer, Frankie Dolan, will get up a physical education act and do a series of personal appearances. Many of George's fans are youngsters and he figures to give them some good advice as well as entertain them with the routine.

Miss Churchill

Some time after the holidays, the star will return to Hollywood for a picture. Then he and Marguerite will tour Europe together.

Comedy Film In Fulton

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

"Beauty for Sale," film in the Fulton, presents a comedy triangle whose angles tickle your funny boy one moment and make an about face to seriousness in the next.

Madge Evans, as Letty Lawson, the cultured young Southern girl who takes to working in a fashionable beauty shop when the family money runs low, handles her part with a finesse that prevents it from becoming tawdry. To her chum, Una Merkel, is accorded a technique that, like Midas, brings in gold from whatever it touches, so long as the object is male.

Amusing interludes in the picture are provided by the snapshots of beauty parlor gossip which cuttingly present the life of the woman of ease, money and an apparently undeveloped supply of gray-matter.

Eddie Nugent is the boy with a wisecrack for every moment, who, however hard he tries, cannot put himself over with the one girl for him, Letty. Also in a comedy role is Alice Brady, as the neurotic Mrs. Sherwood who gets herself into endless situations.

Otto Kruger plays the part of Mrs. Sherwood's husband and he creates the expected triangle when he buys an expensive hat for Letty to replace the one his wife's pekinese, Ming Toy, has chewed up. One meeting follows the other between the beauty shop worker and the prosperous lawyer, with Letty refusing to continue with the affair.

In the end virtue is its own reward, the nervous Mrs. Sherwood, herself, solves the problem, and pure love is triumphant.

Ann Harding In M. D. Role

By HI HOWARD

There comes a time when the public tires of "problem" pictures—when we weary of the strenuous drama, crowded with tragedy, heartbreak and suffering.

"Right to Romance," new Warner film is a picture for those who are ready to be entertained in a quiet, wholesome way, in the good old Hollywood smart manner complete with a happy ending.

Although it is plain that the picture is R. K. O.'s contribution to the "woman doctor" theme, the director was wise enough to let Ann Harding be her own sweet self most of the way.

Ann, it seems, is famous as a plastic surgeon. Miraculously, thanks to her skill, lovely faces, mangled in automobile wrecks, are restored to beauty. But although she recaptures romance for others, she misses it in her own life. She leaves her science, and the quiet love of Nils Asther, bacteriologist in the hospital, in search of her own romance.

She finds it with Robert Young. Their courtship is swift and breath-taking. They discover in each other those opposite characteristics which often are so dangerously attractive.

But plainly their marriage is a mistake. Ann is sought by her old love—science; Robert is attracted again to Sari Maritza, his playgirl sweetheart before Ann came along.

A handy airplane accident puts the destiny of all of them into Ann's keeping. Sari's beautiful face has been torn. What will Ann do?

Singer's Opera Debut Lauded

The perennially beautiful "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" made up the bill of the San Carlo Opera Company in the Nixon Theater last night. There was an unusually good house for these twins of the opera and it gave well earned applause.

Mr. Lissfelt

Particular interest centered last night in the debut of our Pittsburgh soprano, Marguerite Lang, and as we watched her we wondered why the Pittsburgh Opera Company had missed so fine a talent when making up its roster.

Miss Lang's voice seemed more vibrant than ever before with the orchestra as accompaniment, and instead of showing the usual nervousness which disturbs most debuts, this singer was remarkable for her poise and real skill in acting. Her singing is full of nuance and her gesture is always intelligent.

The accompanying cast too was one of the best of the week. Elsa Hottinger was a somberly mischievous "Lola," and Marion Selee's "Mama Lucia" was a good picture.

Sidney Rayner's "Turiddu" evinced a clear dramatic voice and Stephen Kozakevitch's "Alfio" was sung with distinction. The cast as individuals and in ensemble with the chorus gave an outstanding performance. Carlo Peroni was again in the director's desk.

Leoncavallo's dramatic "Pagliacci" followed with a remarkably dramatic presentation. Chief Caupolican sang Tonio with comedy grimaces that accentuated the tragedy. Marie Zara was a Nedda who put real terror into her last scene; Arnoldo Lindi played Canio with intense but restrained power.

It was the best-acted opera of the week, and was admirably sung besides. Even an accidental fall for Chief Tonio near the close could not mar the illusion nor spoil the tragic effect. Kozakevich as Silvio and Francesco Curci as Beppo commented the ensemble while the chorus showed much spirit in the closing scene.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Riggoletto," Verdi's extremely lyrical work that will be the offering of the San Carlo Grand Opera Company in the Nixon tonight, will have Mario Valle, baritone, in the role of the court jester of the Duke of Manutua, a part that ranks as one of the most dramatic in opera. Other prominent male voices to be heard in it will be those of Leon Rothier, baritone, and Dimitri Onofrei, lyric tenor.

Rudy Vallee, who will have a part in the film production of George White's "Scandals," will leave for Hollywood December 8. While he is there the air programs that he gives regularly each week will be broadcast from the Fox studio, which will make the film. Lilian Harvey and George White, himself, will be in the picture.

Marjorie Rambeau has been assigned the third femme lead in Richard Barthelmess' "A Modern Hero," by Louis Bromfield, in which the other two leads are played by Jean Muir and Margaret Lindsay . . . Herbert Marshall draws one of the featured roles in "Rip Tide," in which Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery will be co-starred . . . Greta Garbo will have three weeks vacation before starting work on her next flicker, "The Painted Veil," based on the W. Somerset Maugham novel . . . The juvenile leads in "Heat Lightning" will be played by Ann Dvorak and Lyle Talbot, with Aline MacMahon and Glenda Farrell also in the cast . . . Russell Hardie, Broadway stage actor, has been handed a Metro picture contract . . . Arthur Todd, photographer on "Hell's Bells," declared that Joan Blondell is one of the most easily photographed actresses in Hollywood . . . Bessie Barriscale, old-time screen star, will be seen again in "Beloved," Universal film.

Settlement Plans Plays for Sunday

A community entertainment is planned by Irene Kaufmann Settlement Sunday night. The program will include dancing and singing; two plays, "Red Riding Hood" and "In the Good Old Days." Miss Esther Nighbert is director.

Tech Dramatists To Present Play

"The Mountains of Bezer" will be presented by the drama department of the Carnegie Institute of Technology next Monday evening at the Chamber of Commerce family party and entertainment. The Chamber of Commerce Chorus will also sing.

Muni Is Star On Stanley Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Shadows of "Cimarron" and "I Loved a Woman," cross in the epic sweep of "The World Changes," photoplay in the Stanley. It is another long jump story of the winning of the West, in which the beginning is the rooting of a sturdy family into the rich virgin soil of Dakota, of the territorial era to which the covered wagon has carried hardy pioneer and his wife. Their arrival on land, from which they expect only a living, is marked by the arrival of a baby—a boy. A boy, who, like his parents, was to be a pioneer, but, who, unlike them, looks for riches rather than the blessings of providence, and rounds out his long life in the midst of tragedy. As his house of cards falls, and his fortune goes back to its source, so does a branch of himself touch the soil again seeking a new rooting there.

Paul Muni is the boy born on the far prairies, and when he has grown to young manhood, his ambition is fired by a trapper visiting their home, Buffalo Bill, by name. The determined young man sets out to drive Texas Longhorn cattle to Omaha, and succeeds in the face of tremendous difficulties. This so impresses a cattle drover from Chicago that he takes him into business with him, a business that Muni eventually owns alone. He weds the daughter of his partner, played by Mary Astor, and the family, all but Muni, goes high-hat with a vengeance. His sturdy honesty and fighting ability represents the peak of the family climb. Its descent is represented in his sons, and its rebirth in his favorite grandson, after that well-known crash of '29, in which Muni, now retired, throws his fortune to save the family name from wreckage in which the son has involved it.

There is much tragedy interwoven in the story, especially toward the last, but, as a whole, it is an interesting tale in which the wholesome seems more important than the depressing. It is well acted by a large cast, in which three especially stand out, Mr. Muni, Aline MacMahon, as his mother, and Mary Astor, as his rather snobbish wife. Symbolized years and the art of make-up make the long span of time covered by the film seem an actual living panorama.

Tech Students to Act In Coward Play

"The Young Idea," one of Noel Coward's earlier plays, written when the author was 21, or younger, will have the usual six-night run in the theater of the College of Fine Arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology, beginning Friday, December 8. "The Young Idea" was first presented in London in 1923 and it was revived there in 1931. The author played the part of Sholto Brent in this play when he was 21, in America, and afterwards in England. The Carnegie production is under the direction of Chester Wallace, with upper classmen from the department of drama in the acting roles.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

President of the Club

THE SCENE was in that small ballroom in the left wing of the Bon Soir Hotel. It was the weekly meeting of the "Smythe Children's Welfare Association," and a goodly crowd was there. Noble ladies, all of them. And greatly concerned with the toddling tots of the world.

Miss Louella Smythe, one of THE Smythes, was on her feet. A large woman, this Louella, and always filled with kindness and soups from hotel luncheons.

You've read about her—or women like her—any number of times. These charming souls devote their lives to worrying about the problems of others.

They hit the social columns with great regularity, and you you see their pictures in attractive poses in all the newspapers. Once or twice a year, they run charity shows and spend fortunes on costumes and dresses.

Well, our Louella was one of these charming women. About 32 years of age, she had founded the "Smythe Children's Welfare Association" some six years before. She was a bit young for such doings, and some of the older women resented the fact. But she did not have a huge fortune, she did grab a lot of space, and she did tell the most horrible stories at a luncheon.

On this particular day, Louella was at her very best. She was wringing her hands as she described a particularly harrowing incident that had happened that morning.

"Ah, my dear friends," she cried, "it would take a far better word painter than I to describe the scene as I saw it. There I stood in that terrible little flat in the slums of New York. I had been there many times before to help that family, and—sandly enough—they hadn't seemed to appreciate it.

"And now what did I see? Oh, ladies, the tragedy of it! The mother, a stupid little woman, was rocking mournfully in a chair. The father was out working. And there, in the bed, lay the little ray of sunshine—departed forever from this world.

"Ignorance had killed that innocent little ray of sunshine, dear ladies. Ignorance and stupidity. I swear to you that, if ever there was murder in my heart, it was there at that moment. Did that woman call herself a mother? Did she call herself a human being?

"I spoke to her rather severely, as any decent soul would have done. And what did she do, fellow members? I cannot speak of it without feeling faint. Do you know what she did? She ordered me from her home!

"And that's what we must be prepared to combat in the future, my friends. Our task now is more severe than it has ever been. We must combat stupidity and ignorance in these women who call themselves mothers. We must all stand together—so that other unfortunate, little rays of sunshine shall not perish without a fighting chance."

Amid tremendous applause—and four orders of plum pudding—she sat down. Louella never spoke of children as children. They were always little "rays of sunshine." And they never failed her when she felt like hitting the front pages.

Good old Louella!" . . .

That night, in Louella Smythe's duplex apartment on Fifth avenue, sat Reuben Rhinastor, II. You might feel just a trifle sorry for Reuben because he was desperately in love with Louella—and had been for some 10 years.

The sad part of it was that Louella had never given Reuben Rhinastor, II., any too much encouragement. She had been so busy with her career, as she called it. There were starving babies in Russia, in Algeria, in China, in New York—and Louella had to worry about them all. That was her career. That was her life.

Once again, Reuben was pleading his cause.

"Dearest Louella," he murmured plaintively, "I love you so deeply. For 10 years now, I have worshiped no one else. I want so terribly much to make you my wife. Why——"

Mr. Rhinastor got no further. He was interrupted by a statement that was to prove the shock of his life.

"Reuben," said Louella Smythe, "you have proposed for the last time. I have thought it all over—and I am going to marry you."

The man's eyes almost popped from his head. His lips made vague movements, but he was unable to speak. Finally he swallowed hard. The words came forth.

"Oh, Louella, you have made me the happiest of men. We'll be married whenever you wish—and then we'll take a long trip. Around the world, if possible. May I kiss you, my love?"

The woman held him back firmly.

"Just a moment, Reuben," she returned. "I don't want you to get any nonsensical ideas. I am not leaving for any long, pleasure trips. I have no intention of leaving my little rays of sunshine for any great length of time. A short honeymoon will be quite enough."

Reuben nodded. He leaned closer. This time he was able to maneuver an arm around her shoulders.

"All right, darling," he whispered. "Whatever you say. And just think, my love, how happy you will be. Before long, you can have a child of your own."

Louella leaped to her feet. Her eyes were blazing.

"Me have a baby, Reuben!" she exclaimed. "Why, you must be crazy! Would you want me to ruin my whole career?" . . .

SUPER-PERFORMANCE

SLAYER DIES CRITICIZING 'REVENGE'

International News Service.

McALESTER, Okla., Nov. 24.—"If Christ on the cross looked down and said, 'Forgive them, for they know not what they do,' why should I be bitter. You let your love for revenge overshadow justice."

With these words, Earl Quinn, one-time rum runner, sat down in the electric chair in the state prison here today to pay the supreme penalty for murdering Jessie Griffith, a school teacher, near Blackwell, Okla., December 28, 1930.

The body of Zexia Griffith, sister of Jessie, was found beside that of her sister. Quinn was charged with both murders but never was tried for the slaying of Zexia.

Executed with Quinn today was Tom Morris, Negro, accused of the ax murder of Mr. and Mrs. Joe House at McAlester. He was tried on only one of the charges however.

The only remark made by the Negro as he walked calmly to the chair was:

Man Twice Reprieved By President Electrocuted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Twice reprived by President Roosevelt, death by electrocution today overtook Charles Edward Washington, 25, Negro, convicted in the murder of a Washington taxicab driver.

The President's first reprieve came just four minutes before Washington was to have died last October 27. Later he granted another extension of time for further study of the case.

Last-minute efforts yesterday and today to have the Negro's sentence commuted to life imprisonment failed. Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District of Columbia penal institutions, joined in the move to save him.

William C. Robinson, Negro, was electrocuted for the same crime on the day Washington was first reprieved. A third Negro convicted in the crime had his sentence changed to life imprisonment.

W. Va. Prisoner Goes To Gallows Tonight

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Although he has not been told of Gov. Kump's refusal to stay execution, Leo Frazier said today he is resigned to death tonight on the gallows.

The Charleston automobile mechanic who was convicted of killing Deputy Sheriff Roy Shamblin spent his last day quietly in his cell.

MUSHROOMS AND POTATOES WITH SAUCE

Three and one-half pounds of rump from beef. Wipe thoroughly and place in kettle with five pints of boiling water and cook slowly and steadily, turning and lifting occasionally so it will cook evenly. If necessary to add more water, add only boiling water, using as little as possible. Cook this one hour, then add one heaping tablespoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon pepper. Smother gently two hours longer. When there is about one cup of sauce in the kettle add seven good sized potatoes, cover very tightly and steam 20 minutes. Do not allow to scorch. Remove meat, place in warming oven, and as soon as potatoes are browned and tender, lay on platter around the meat. Set kettle over fire, and half fill, or more, with cold water; carefully scrape sides, bring to boil, add one cup cold water, half cup top milk or cream, and heaping teaspoonful of cornstarch dissolved in a little cream. Stir well and bring to boil. Take mushrooms and place around the potatoes. Serve with sauce.

GRAPEFRUIT
64-70 Size
4 For 19c

We again offer the new Dairymen's Whole Milk, Chocolate Milk at 9c a quart with purchase of a quart of regular milk. We have yet to hear anyone say other than "The Best Drink I've Ever Tasted"!—and it is. Just as good hot as it is cold.

"DON'T LIE TO ME, WOMAN! YOU DIDN'T MAKE THIS CAKE!"

"OH, YES I DID, MR. SMARTY—AND ANY TIME I WANT TO, I CAN MAKE ANOTHER JUST AS GOOD. AUNT HARRIET TIPPED ME OFF TO SOMETHING!"

Now Janet, do be sure to use Calumet Baking Powder--and you'll never have any more sad stories to tell me about your baking. Calumet makes all the difference in the world in texture! The layers rise more evenly, too --on account of that Double-Action--one action in the mixing bowl and another in the oven.

Don't go putting in more Calumet than the recipe calls for! That small proportion is right for Calumet--it goes further, you see, than other baking powders.

CREAM LOAF CAKE--(2 eggs)

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1-4 cups heavy cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add sugar gradually to eggs, and beat well. Add flour, alternately with cream, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8 x 8 x 2 inches, in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 minutes. Spread chocolate butter frosting on top and sides of cake. (All measurements are level.)

I know you'll have marvelous luck with this cake—it's easy and it's delicious!

THE DOUBLE-ACTING BAKING POWDER

Prudence Penny's Recipes

Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake until golden brown in moderately hot oven. Makes 2 dozen. Nice for school lunch-box.

* * *

ARMA RITTA—Use 1 package rusks, rolling enough to make 1 cup of crumbs. To crumbs add ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Soak remaining rusks in 1½ cups evaporated milk, undiluted; then roll in crumb mixture. Brown slowly on well buttered griddle. Serve with custard sauce.

* * *

AUTUMN SALAD—If you are looking for something as crisp and stimulating as a November day, combine 1 cup each of raw sauerkraut and grated raw carrots with ½ cup each of mayonnaise and nut meats. Serve on lettuce leaves. Add a tablespoon or two of chopped green pepper if you like.

* * *

SWEET CRISPS—Spread 1 cup California walnut kernels in buttered pan. Bring 2 cups strained honey to a boil; boil gently 5 minutes. Pour over nuts. Set in cool place. When hard, crack in small pieces. Put some in the Thanksgiving hamper for the girls and boys away at school.

* * *

MULLED GRAPE JUICE—Beat 1 egg yolk. Add 1 tablespoon sugar, dash each of cinnamon and clove, then 1 cup grape juice. Heat over hot water until slightly thickened. Fold in beaten egg white, add little salt. Beat over hot water two minutes. Serve at once. Try it after bridge.

* * *

ORANGE MARSHMALLOW CREAM—Cut 1 package pink or green marshmallows in quarters. Add 1 small bottle maraschino cherries cut in halves, with syrup, and 2 cups orange pieces. Whip 1 cup cream until stiff; fold in marshmallows and fruit. Place in sherbet glasses. Chill.

* * *

PRUNE-COT WHIP—Wash 1 cup each prunes and dried apricots. Cook 10 minutes. Drain, discard prune pits; put fruits through food chopper, using medium blade. Add 5 tablspoons powdered sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Whip 1½ cups cream; fold in mixture. Chill.

* * *

STUFFED ARTICHOKES—Wash and trim the artichokes; cut off the tops about 2 inches deep so that the remaining portions may be eaten with a fork. Boil in salted water with 1 clove garlic and 2 tablespoons salad oil. This cooking may be done hours in advance if you wish. When the vegetable is nearly tender (usually in about 30 minutes) turn upside down on a plate to cool. When cool enough to handle, separate the leaves to form a cup and carefully remove the choke with a teaspoon. This makes a fine cavity for stuffing. Fill cups with creamed oysters, chicken or shrimp, or with steamed spinach cut fine, drained and seasoned with salt, butter and a dash of lemon juice.

Or make a stuffing by mixing together ¾ cup cracker crumbs, 1 small onion, chopped, 4 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of paprika and 3 tablespoons grated cheese. Add a little milk or water to bind the ingredients. (This amount of stuffing will fill 4 large artichokes.)

Place artichokes in a shallow baking dish. Pour over all a rich cream sauce to which cheese has been added. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and cook in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., until browned on top. Garnish with hard-cooked egg yolks, rubbed through a sieve.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

It Is Up to You Alone To Make Good

Eight years of work—and he's never been able to earn more than $23 per!

So, shall Earl call it off with the Girl Friend?

Or are there, maybe, better things "Around the Corner"?

And if so, can Earl connect with them?

Dear Miss Robinson:

Here is a problem I'd like a little help with. I suppose that, with a bit of logic, I should be able to work it out myself, and, in fact, I think I have. But I would like your opinion. I want to handle the problem right.

I am 22 years old. I have been working eight years for the same concern, and in all that time my salary has never exceeded $23 a week. Now it has been cut to much less than that.

I have been keeping steady company with a girl for the last few months. I've known her for five years, and I know she is a wonderful girl—all, in fact, that any fellow could ask for — and we are decidedly "that way" about each other.

But the Question in my mind is this. If, in eight years, I could not earn a better salary than $23 a week, what will another eight years bring — or another 10 or 15 years?

I have never been able to save any money so far. It has taken all I had to just live—and that none too well. But, granting that I might be able to save a few dollars in the next few years, can you possibly see where I will be in a position to offer this girl anything? Of course, as business gets better my salary is bound to go up some—but how much? And how soon?

IS DISCOURAGED

I think I have plenty of fight. I am not easily discouraged. But all this has me down. Wouldn't it be better to call everything off with this girl for the present at least?

Of course, she will no doubt say "We'll get by." But I don't want it that way. I don't want her to just exist. And I can't see her waiting years for me, either.

Please give me your opinion. I am anxious to know what you think of this problem. EARL.

I think that, in your discouragement, you're overlooking several important things, son.

You say you're 22. You've been working eight years. So you started at 14, before you could possibly know enough to boost you ahead in any work. Therefore, at least four of those years you can't count. You probably weren't worth 23 cents, much less $23, during that time.

Then, just when you were getting your swing, along came hard times. Since then the best any of us could expect was to just hang on. If you've managed to do that, with your youth and lack of education, you've made a splendid record, regardless of your present salary.

SHOULD FIGHT ON

So, instead of being discouraged, you should be proud of yourself, Earl, and filled with fine self-confidence. If you could do this much, against all these handicaps, nothing can stop you when the tide turns once more.

So hang on; fight on! And, if that girl's only half as good as she sounds, she'll hang on and fight with you. And you'll have all the more to offer her a year or two from now.

Then put away the glooms and get ready for the better days ahead. You've made a slow start, because you didn't have all the makings. Get them now. Study. Learn everything you can about the business. Learn everything you can about people—and yourself. There are night schools. There are libraries. Use them. Use your "logic" in preparing your own Good Breaks.

What the next eight, 10 or 15 years bring to you, is up to you and no one else!

Good Parents Are World's Chief Assets, Declares Fay King

By FAY KING

The world has reason to value above all else those persons who marry and raise a worthy family.

If for one generation there were no parents, the world would come to an end. All that mankind has contributed to world improvement can only continue through the men and women of the future.

But there is also a place of value in the world for those who have not married and raised a family. Many a good teacher and good nurse has never married, yet has helped countless little children.

Many great and good men in history never married, but worked nobly for its welfare and advancement.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Last Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

It is my understanding that the first dance and last dance are to be with the lady escorted to the dance.

I was recently at a dance and my escort had previously asked a lady for the next dance when it was announced that that particular dance would be the last one. I therefore, politely, advised him that as it was the last dance, it was our dance and should, therefore, be canceled with the other lady, which she agreed to, and which he did. Was I right in making such a request? L.

Although your understanding about the assignment of dances is correct, still, under the circumstances, it seems to me that it would have been more gracious if you had let things take the course that would have seemed more natural, since there was an indefiniteness about the dance. To you it would have been a disappointment, of course, but to the other young lady, it must have been a rather embarrassing procedure. Naturally, there was nothing for her to do but to "agree to" your suggestion.

After the Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When you have completed a dance and your partner escorts you to a chair and remains seated with you until you are again asked to dance by another partner even though one or more dance numbers have been played by the orchestra in the meantime, should you excuse yourself from your first partner before accepting the second invitation to dance, and if so, what would you say?

2—When your partner thanks you for a dance, is it necessary to say anything further that "You are welcome, I enjoyed our dance too," or is some other form preferable? T.

1—Say something like this: "Will you excuse me, please? I so much enjoyed our dance together."

2—Don't use the first part of your sentence. "You are welcome" is unnecessary, and provincial. The last part of your sentence is the right kind of thing to say, "I enjoyed that dance so much," or "It was a delightful dance."

A Sequel Heart Of a Wife

Dicky Tries to Tactfully Explain a Grievance

All the tenderness, all the charity of my mood engendered by Dicky's caresses and his lover-like compliments, fled incontinently at his request to "straighten out Ede" for him.

I had known that something disagreeable was crowding to his lips when he came into my room. And this was it—the necessity for quelling a temperamental tantrum of the woman who for so many years had been anathema to me, despite the outward amity between us, because of the hopeless love for Dicky which I knew had consumed her since her first association with him.

"What again!" I exclaimed, forgetting the suspicion that perhaps Dicky's caresses and tenderness had been but a pretense designed to put me in good humor for his introduction of the question concerning Edith Fairfax. "Whatever's getting into Ede, anyway? She didn't use to be so temperamental. She never has used me as an excuse before. Did I hear you aright when you said that she won't come to the wedding because she knows I don't want her here?"

"Your hearing was perfect, as usual," he said with a wry grin. "At that, maybe she's been keen enough to get an inkling of the truth—that you don't want her here any more than I do."

I was so startled that I forgot to be cautious.

"Any more than you do!" I repeated.

EDITH'S GRIEVANCE

"Don't tell me that's astonishment you're registering," he said, a bit unpleasantly.

"It certainly is," I told him spiritedly. "You never before have given the impression that—"

"That I wasn't anxious for the fair Edith's company, in and out of season, I suppose?" he said with a grin.

"All this is beside the point," I said. "Let's agree that we neither of us want her here, but that for the sake of conventions, old friendship, to say nothing of the speech of people, she ought to be present at every social function we give."

"Now just what do you mean by that, I wonder," Dicky said.

"Exactly what I said," I retorted. "Don't try to go beyond the returns. Just tell me what you want me to do. Or first, do you know just what particular grievance Edith has against me?"

To my astonishment, I saw a brick-red flush steal upward from his neck.

"I can't tell you exactly, because she didn't tell me outright, of course. She knows I wouldn't listen to any spiel of hers against you. But she ripped out something about trying to do you a good turn, and your turning her down. Then she followed it up by saying there was no use pretending any longer; you didn't like seeing her—"

NO TALE-BEARER

"Any more than she liked seeing me?" I inquired.

"Something to that effect," he said, the brick-red flush increasing.

"Would you like to have me tell you just what was the nature of the 'good turn' she was endeavoring to do me?" I asked; and then recoiled at the pitfall into which I had so nearly fallen. I should put myself upon the level of Edith, the tale-bearer, were I to retell to Dicky what Edith had said of the mysterious "Floss," even if I could have done the thing unthinkable to me by taxing my husband concerning this unknown girl.

With a rush I flung myself across the room at him and gripped his arm. "Please, please, Dicky, consider that unsaid," I pleaded. "I must have been mad to say anything like that. I am not a tale-bearer. It is all only a lot of nonsense of Edith's, anyway. What do you think I would better do? There isn't time to write her. Shall I get her on the telephone, and try to straighten her out?"

Dicky looked at me queerly.

"I wonder," he said, and instinctively I knew that he did not mean my last question, but was commenting upon my conclusions that it was only a lot of nonsense upon Edith's part. Then he shook himself exactly, I told myself, as might an uncomfortable puppy, which had been exposed to a heavy shower.

"I suppose a telephone would be best," he said. "But remember; don't do it because I ask you."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A corn on the little toe is evidence that the shoe is too narrow. No matter how often the hardened cuticle is removed, it will return if the same shoes are worn. Feet vary in outline as much as hands. For comfort and health it is necessary to wear shoes that permit a firm foothold.

What a lot of time will be saved when hope-to-die eyebrows come back again to grace the feminine brow with normal designs. The frenzy for freak eye lambrequins is abating, though maybe you won't believe it. They do not suit all faces. On some they look interesting, but as with every other beauty fad there are those who go to such extremes that the results are distressing. If plucking is on the beauty calendar, stick to it. Hirsute stubs sprouting forth from the alabaster skin look pretty messy.

Loud pedal on make-up, little one, and you'll dim the glory of good features. It is the truth. There's many a pair of lovely liquid eyes that go unnoticed because lips are redder than a stop light and cheeks have been given the raspberry twice over. Same thing happened when knee-length kilts were worn; the passerby saw nothing but legs, never looked at faces. Those crazy eyebrows claim too much attention. It isn't sense to play up one feature. The pretty lady should be a charming composition to be taken in by the eye with pleasure, every feature gracious to the next one, all in beauteous order and array. There is a tendency now toward ghastly white complexions; we wish the girls wouldn't do it. Why not be more natural, using artifices with the subtle touch, directing it in application with the seeing eye? Maybe it will be like that some day.

ANN'S SCRAP QUILT PATTERN 600

This Quilt Is Easy to Make

When a quiltmaker chooses a pattern, she wants more than an economical and easy-to-make quilt. It must be attractive as well and one which she will always be proud to possess. Ann's Scrap Quilt is just such a quilt. Economical, in that left-over pieces of material form the flower—it is best to use the same scraps in one block. Simple, in that the patches grouping themselves into squares and triangles are easy to join. The illustration shows how lovely a design it is, thus fulfilling all the needlewoman's requirements.

Pattern 600 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Rhinitis Is Often Due to Colds

From time to time I have told you about nasal sinus disease. You know that sinus involvement, or "sinusitis," as the doctors call it, is often traced to neglect of the simple cold. Today, I want to tell you about a similar disease that comes from the same neglect. I refer to "rhinitis," or catarrhal inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose.

Dr. Copeland

Rhinitis in the acute form is usually the result of exposure to cold and wet at a time when the body is overheated. Occasionally it can be traced to breathing hot, dry air or irritating vapors and dusts; errors of diet; and neglect of the general health.

As is true in sinusitis, rhinitis can be caused by the germs that produce a cold or sore throat. The victim has repeated attacks of sneezing and the nose becomes more and more inflamed.

As a rule there is complaint of a sensation of fullness and pain about the nose and forehead. The face is flushed, the eyes reddened, and breathing is difficult. The sufferer refers to his affliction as a "cold in the head" and usually he resorts to many home remedies for relief.

A good way to abort or shorten an acute attack of rhinitis is to take a hot bath and drink a bowl of hot lemonade at bedtime. This should be followed in the morning by a saline purge. While the resistance is low it is wise to wear warm clothing. If the nasal inflammation increases it is best to call your doctor who can advise the necessary medication.

I am often asked whether fruit juices are beneficial for a sinus infection. There is a common belief that they are useful because of their alkalinity. Certainly the fruit juices are harmless and they do aid in overcoming any acidity of the body. Perhaps the most important part of the treatment is rest in bed.

But I beg of you not to neglect the cold. Bear in mind that untreated rhinitis will lead to a chronic inflammation of the nose. Chronic rhinitis is difficult to cure and it tends to a general lowering of the resistance of the body against infectious disease.

Nasal deformities, such as deviation of the septum, and nasal polyps, increase the susceptibility to rhinitis. I recommend that these defects be corrected and care be given to a disease in this region. The nasal passages must be clear and free of germs if good health is to be expected.

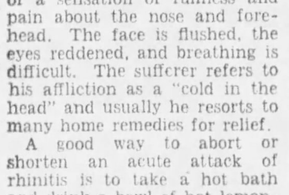
Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Helping the Declarer

One of the major objections to the doubling for penalties habit, characteristic of many otherwise good Bridge players, is that too often such Doubles furnish the Declarer the key to the correct play of the hand. Such was the case in a recent rubber Bridge game in Stockholm, Sweden, in which the Double by the North player gave Mr Ivar Andersson, one of Sweden's leading players, an opportunity to make a contract that without the illuminating Double must surely have been defeated.

The hand was:
West, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2 ◇	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
6 ◇	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

With West's unusual distribution the Opening bid of two diamonds cannot be criticized and the eventual Slam contract, no doubt, should have been reached. In a certain sense North's Double appears perfectly sound as ordinarily his trump combination should net him 2 tricks. However, with no other tricks upon which to base a Double and East and West's strong bidding, North would have done well to have been content merely with the defeat of the contract without seeking to enhance the reward for that achievement.

North's Opening lead was a heart, and when South played the Ace Mr. Andersson knew that North had all the missing trumps, as otherwise he would have had no reason whatever to double.

Basing his play upon this conclusion, Mr. Andersson trumped the Ace of hearts, cashed three spade tricks and two club tricks, then ruffed one of his high clubs in Dummy and followed with the ruff of a high heart in his own hand. He returned to the Dummy by ruffing the remaining club, and when North followed suit on this trick he could see the probability of success. Dummy's last high heart was now ruffed, and Mr. Andersson then led his last spade. This careful carrying out of a well conceived plan limited North to one trump trick and allowed Mr. Andersson to fulfill his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

I am told that on the following bidding:

South	North
2 ♠	2 NT
4 ♣

North may now pass because a game has been reached and his obligation is ended. This does not seem right to me and I should like your ruling.

Answer—Of course, the Forcing situation has not been ended and North must make some response to four clubs. The purpose of the Forcing bid is to insure hands being played at a game contract and neither member of the partnership can pass except when the final bid represented arrival at such a contract.

Hints for the Household

When making jam, grease the bottom of the preserving pan both inside and out before using; this effectually prevents burning.

Here is an economy tip for jelly makers. When you have made the jelly do not throw away the pulp left over. Get some early cooking apples equal in weight to the amount of pulp you have, add three-fourths pound of sugar to every pound of pulp and boil it all up. This makes a very firm jam suitable for steamed and boiled jam rolls or puddings, as it is not too soft.

If you have no refrigerator, lettuce can be kept fresh if it is placed in a stone crock, with an airtight lid, standing on the stone floor of the larder. Another way is to wrap the lettuce in cloths wrung out of cold water. Do not throw away the outer leaves of lettuce. They should be shredded and put into soup.

When cream is only slightly sour it can be served with puddings, etc., if it is first put into a basin with the juice of a lemon and a good tablespoon of sugar and whipped until quite stiff. This increases the quantity of cream and gets rid of the sour flavor. In fact, the home baker will find sour cream to be a very effective and economical substitute for butter and eggs, besides imparting a lightness and richness to scones and all kinds of cakes.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Big times are ahead this winter and we will all be dressing up. A lovely new evening frock is of heavy white satin. There are narrow shoulder straps of pearls, and an ostrich lei extends across the bodice all way round to the back decolletage. There is a tiara of pearl balls on gold metal bands, worn with a curled coiffure.

Waterlilies bloom on one of the prettiest frocks of the season. The dress, molded to the figure, with slim, lovely lines, is of heavy white crepe satin. The squared neckline is marked in front by a row of waterlilies in white with green satin leaves. The sectioned skirt has a train. There is a matching satin bolero with an edging of the waterlilies.

An old partnership is that of black velvet and ermine. It is used in a new evening ensemble, the trained skirt of the frock as well as its back decolletage being edged with a narrow band of ermine. The cape of velvet with a slit back reveals the low neckline of the frock. The neck of the cape as well as the slit panels are edged with the ermine.

They don't seem to realize that they are not living in the old days of the Czar. Let your union be their grammar school and college all in one."

Concerning unemployment insurance, Mrs. Pinchot said:

"When legislation provided workmen's compensation; when industry knew it would have to pay, it did everything in its power to provide safety devices to diminish accidents.

"If they had to contribute to unemployment insurance for workers, they would rake their heads to keep their factories open. The burden of depression should be carried by industry instead of the workers."

SEES RELIEF HINDRANCE

Industry did everything in its power to thwart federal unemployment relief, Mrs. Pinchot continued. She said:

"Senator Reed went to Washington and voted against federal unemployment relief to protect big business. The people of Pennsylvania would have starved if he had his way."

When old age pension legislation in 1923 was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court, five judges out of the nine were on the secret payroll of J. P. Morgan, Mrs. Pinchot declared. She said:

"Their decision was based, not only on the secret handouts they had received, but on those they were further hoping to get. Today, as always, big business is only too anxious to grab everything for itself and to use the NRA to its own advantage.

"Only a workers' wave of protest thwarted Swope's suggestion to turn the NRA over to the bankers."

"I served on a committee recently to study minimum wage conditions. We found women and children working for from $1 to $5 a week. One woman with six children got 85 cents for a 54-hour week. Think of it.

"And the men on the committee, serving Mellon interests, said these cases were appalling, of course, but that this was no time to pass a minimum wage scale. 'You've got to expect cycles of lean years and fat years', they said.

"I don't believe it. Social legislation can make that impossible."

SPENDING NEEDED

The main reason for the depression is that not enough money is being spent, Mrs. Pinchot said, continuing:

"The national income is badly divided. Small groups of bankers and industrialists have too large a share of the national income.

"Seventy-five dollars out of every hundred—five men out of every hundred—five per cent of the people own 65 per cent of the nation's income. That's bad from every point of view.

"Aside from its basic unfairness, it curtails buying power and, consequently, production. That is the real cause of the depression."

PRAISES LIBERALS

At New Kensington Mrs. Pinchot praised the progressive or liberal group of Pennsylvania Legislators as typified by Senators Frank J. Harris, William D. Mansfield and Benjamin H. Thompson, of New Kensington, and damned the conservative or reactionary faction as typified by Senators Coyne and Reed, who are pledged to serve Mellon interests and steel trusts, she said. She continued:

"Behind every corrupt machine there are what Mr. Pinchot calls the higher-ups, who don't believe in democracy in government or industry because they are using the powers of the government to make themselves richer, like Mr. Mellon and his aluminum corporation.

"Behind Coyne in Pittsburgh was Mellon; behind William S. Vare in Philadelphia were W. W. Atterbury and E. T. Stotesbury; behind the machine in Chicago, Samuel Insull. They maintained their power by handouts.

"That's part of the game the game you must break up if this country is to be a real democracy in fact as well as in name. The success of the old-age pension bill now seems assured. But this must be only the beginning of social legislation in Pennsylvania."

WELCOMED BY BURNS

In sharp contrast to Burgess William Dick's refusal to permit Mrs. Pinchot to speak in Vandergrift on Wednesday night, was Burgess Dan Burns' cordial welcome in New Kensington last night.

Mrs. Burns presented Mrs. Pinchot with a corsage of orchids, which she wore while she was speaking. In his welcoming speech, Burgess Burns said:

"I did say things about the Governor of this state that I thought he deserved. We may differ politically, but I can't help admiring him. He is closer to the common people than any governor we have ever had."

MEETINGS TODAY

The eight meetings scheduled for today and tomorrow are all sponsored by the Amalgamated Association of Steel, Iron and Tin Works, Mrs. Pinchot said.

At 3:30 today she is to speak in Duquesne; at 6 p. m. in the Moose Temple, McKeesport; at 7 p. m. in the Venetian Hall, Clairton, and at 8:30 p. m. in the high school auditorium in Monessen.

The Board of Public Education today granted a permit for a meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in South High School auditorium tomorrow night.

Mrs. Pinchot and Judge Ralph H. Smith will be the speakers. The meeting is scheduled for 8 o'clock, according to Edward King and John Stewart, district organizers to whom the permit was issued.

TOMORROW'S PLANS

Tomorrow's schedule includes a meeting at Martins Ferry, O., at 2 p. m., at Weirton at 3:30 p. m., at West Homestead at 7:30 p. m. and somewhere on the South Side at 8:30 p. m.

Motorcycle escorts of state police accompany Mrs. Pinchot's car to all her meetings. She receives glowing ovations, many handshakes and well-wishes.

Yesterday, after her meeting in Braddock, she visited the Federal Employment Bureau in Smithfield street. Today she planned to interview workers in local mills.

Bananas Are Nourishing And Delicious

Comparable to Potato in Food Values. They Are Recommended as Excellent Menu Item to Be Eaten With Other Foods in Both Cooked and Raw States—Not Merely as Fruit.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City,
United States Senator From New York.

In looking about for really nutritious foods do not overlook the banana. It is a really important food and a useful addition to the list. It is comparable to the potato in food values, particularly in carbohydrate and protein content. Both are deficient in fat.

Ripe bananas contain nearly 75 per cent of water. There is a trifle less than two per cent of protein, fat about one per cent, and the balance carbohydrates. This fruit does not constitute a perfectly balanced ration, so that no one would attempt to live on bananas alone. As a matter of fact they should be used with other foods.

The ripe banana has little waste. Three-quarters of it is solid food. It contains a sugar which is easily assimilated.

Bananas should be eaten only when very ripe. That is shown when there is a yellow color and black spots begin to show on the outer skin. Indigestion may be caused by eating bananas that are not fully ripe.

Bananas were known to some of the ancient people. The Greeks, the Latins and the Arabs appreciated their value. They are one of the most important foods in the tropics.

GREAT QUANTITY IMPORTED

Most of the bananas used in the United States come from Central America, South America and the West Indies. In a recent year, 100,000 bunches were brought into this country.

The banana tree is wonderfully productive. It is estimated that a greater quantity of food can be raised on one acre set out to banana trees than to any other food plants, like wheat or potatoes.

The tree grows to a height of 20 to 40 feet. The great bunches of fruit often weigh 100 pounds, and bear from 100 to 200 bananas. There are more than 150 varieties of this fruit, some yellow and some red in color.

PICKED WHEN GREEN

Bananas are of added value because they will ripen after they have been cut from the tree. For the market, they are picked when green, though fully matured. On this account they bear long transportation and storing before they become entirely ripe.

While ripe bananas are delicious eaten raw, many persons overlook the fact that they take on an added flavor when baked. Baking seems to bring out the delicate flavors contained in them. One way to prepare them is to cut them in halves and bake them in the pan in which your roast beef had been roasted.

Very nutritious and delicious desserts are made with ripe bananas in ice cream or mousse. They may be served in the form of banana whip, puddings, custards, or in cake fillings.

It is well worth your while to use this nourishing product, not so much as fruit, but as a very good food. It should be distinguished from some other fruits, such as apples or oranges, inasmuch as it is more concentrated.

GIRL ESCAPES ASYLUM GUARDS

A city-wide search was on today for attractive Carolyn Kois, 21, of Mammoth, who slipped away from two attendants returning her to the State Hospital at Torrance, police say.

The girl asked the two attendants to stop the automobile in which they were riding at Penn avenue and Carnegie place last night, telling them she wished to get her clothing from a home in Penfield Court, police reported. When she left the car she ran away.

The girl's "telephone complex" led to her arrest last November 8. She was arrested for breaking her promise to refrain from calling the Detective Bureau from 10 to 15 times a night, according to Detective Sergeant John J. O'Connor, tieing up telephone lines to the bureau.

ORANGE SHEER PIE—2 teaspoons gelatin, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup orange juice, ⅔ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, grated rind of one lemon, 4 eggs, few grains salt, baked pie shell.

Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Beat egg yolks until light; add sugar, orange juice, lemon juice and rind, and salt. Cook over hot water until slightly thickened, stirring frequently. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool. As it begins to thicken fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into baked pie shell and chill. (To bake an empty pastry shell so that it keeps in shape I placed a second pie pan, of exactly the same size, inside the pan lined with pastry. I allow the pastry to bake between these two pans until edges brown, then I remove the upper pan and finish browning.) Before serving, top with whipped cream and sprinkle with candied orange peel.

IMPORTANT!

One important thing to remember in buying a bran product for the relief of constipation—is to look at the label. The Food and Drug Administration has advised that bran products should state clearly on the package just what they contain.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—because it is all bran with only flavor added, gives you the generous amount of "bulk" needed to promote proper elimination.

"We kept well last winter"

THOUSANDS of people "kept on the sunny side of life" last winter. They kept themselves free from common constipation—the ailment that so frequently tears down resistance to "colds" and other winter infections.

Stand guard over the health of your family this winter. Correct common constipation the safe way—by proper diet. Serve them frequently with a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regularity. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. ALL-BRAN is also rich in blood-building iron.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. With each meal in severe cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, omelets, breads, etc. Sold by all grocers, in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Keep on the sunny side of life

CONSOLIDATION URGED TO CUT COUNTY TAX

Consolidation of 360 "overlapping governments" in Allegheny County into one unit is the best way to decrease taxes, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern told 300 persons attending a protest mass meeting called in the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday by the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League.

Otherwise, he said:

Declaring that the huge payroll of political hangers-on carried by every government subdivision in the county was bankrupting them, McGovern asserted that he has requested Gov. Pinchot to call an extraordinary session of the Legislature to meet immediately after the present special session for the sole purpose of "curing the fiscal ills of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia."

TO CALL SESSION

Pinchot, McGovern said, answered that he would.

Other speakers hammered at high real estate taxes. Between rounds of loud applause, T. J. Rawlings, first president of the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania said:

"There can be no property, NRA or no NRA, unless the cost of government is reduced. Right now the real estate I own is a liability.

"We have no fight with school teachers or their salaries. Our fight is entirely wtih the system — the tax system that bankrupts the owner of real estate."

He advised every real estate owner to "club the legislators into line for the state income tax and the Governor's township road program.

Other speakers were I. Leonard Aronson, president of the real estate league; G. L. Shank, president of the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania, and E. Lowry Humes, legislative adviser to the real estate league.

All advised real estate owners to be in the House caucus room at the state capitol in Harrisburg, September 4, at 1:30 p. m. to "impress" legislators.

SITUATION ACUTE

Dr. C. E. Dickey, county superintendent of schools, also backed up the advocates of more state aid and lower real estate taxes. Although school directors have cut every possible corner, many school districts face an acute financial situation, he declared.

Augmenting this argument, D. E. Crosby, state deputy superintendent of schools, was ready with a sheaf of figures to prove the dangerous plight facing state school finances as a result of the poor collection of school taxes on real estate. Basing their estimates on collections to date, he said, accountants calculate that school tax levies will be collected only 70 per cent this year. He advocated Gov. Pinchot's program for a special state equalization fund of $5,000,000 for school district relief, and passage of a graduated income tax to augment reasonable real estate tax rates.

At a meeting of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League yesterday the group voted to become the fifty-eighth county organization to join forces with the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania.

LABOR SCORES KING'S SPEECH

International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Laborite opposition in the House of Commons opened a barrage on the King's speech to Parliament today.

Clement R. Attlee, Laborite, declared the address, setting forth the views of the MacDonald government, was an "insult" to the electorate.

Attlee said the speech showed an "extraordinary air of complacence," and charged the government failed to appreciate the crisis confronting the world. He particularly criticized the fact the speech made no mention of the inter-allied and American debt and impending tariff wars.

The speaker moved an amendment to the King's speech which accused the government of "delaying the realization of peace and disarmament" and failing to contribute to solution of the economic crisis.

ROAD TO OPEN AT NADINE IN JANUARY

The Allegheny River boulevard through the Nadine bottle-neck wil be opened to traffic in January, the county commissioners announced today after a conference yesterday with engineers of the Jonn F. Casey Company, contractors.

A temporary slag road is to be constructed to carry traffic until spring, when the concrete roadbed will be put in place. The boulevard has cost $3,535,000 and has been closed for two and a half years during litigation to provide an opening through Nadine.

The Casey Company has razed three buildings and is ready to move the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The contractors also are now building the conveyor system under the boulevard and into the plant of the Pennsylvania Water Company, which will eliminate the present railroad siding.

County engineers this week will begin repairing the defects found in the Shades Run Bridge, where the curb has slipped and sidewalk slabs bulged. The curb will be reset and the slabs removed until a proper drainage can be constructed to prevent further trouble.

HART SUSPECTS COWED BY FEAR

International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 24.—Renewed threats of lynching the kidnapers and slayers of Brooke Hart, 22-year-old son of a wealthy department store owner rumbled through San Jose today.

Reports were flashed to the chief of police and Sheriff William J. Emig that "a vigilante committee of 100 responsible business men" was being formed.

Several salesmen told newspapermen that they had overheard the businessmen discussing final plans for the organization of the "vigilante of 100." Sheriff Emig immediately posted additional deputy sheriffs on guard.

How to Make "One-Dish" Meal Well-Balanced and Nourishing

Heinz Products Help Make These Recipes Time Savers

By Josephine Gibson

Casserole or top-stove dishes, combining meat and vegetables of the main course, produce nourishing, well-balanced meals with little effort in preparation and service. If the one-meal dish is baked, plan to serve a baked dessert such as custard, custard pie, cottage pudding or baked apples, for the same fuel will cook both dessert and entree.

PORK CHOPS EN CASSEROLE:—In a buttered baking dish place alternate layers of thinly sliced potatoes, using 2 to 3 cups, and ½ cup finely chopped onion, sprinkling each layer lightly with salt and pepper. Over potatoes and onions place 6 pork chops sprinkled with salt and browned in a skillet. Over all pour 1 small can or about 1 cup of Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup. Bake in a hot oven (400 to 450 degrees F.) for about 45 minutes or until potatoes are tender and flavored richly with the pork and tomato.

HEINZ home style SOUPS

HEINZ

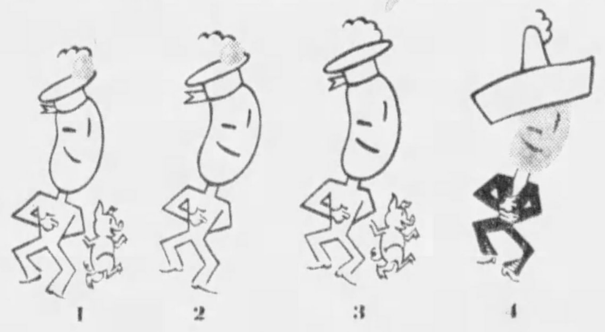

3 Saucy Sailors—and a Gay Caballero

KEY TO ABOVE CHARACTERS:

1. Navy beans with tomato sauce and fine bacon pork.
2. Navy beans with tomato sauce. No pork—vegetarian style.
3. Navy beans with molasses sauce—Boston Baked Beans.
4. Red Kidney Beans in savory sauce. Like Mexican Chili Con Carne.

—Who, as merrily they roll along, suggest the robust charms of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans.

For our Navy Beans have saucy manners and our Red Kidney Beans are alluring in a wholesome sort of way.

We buy the "hand-picked choice" and hand-pick from them the choicest, so that your eating-joy may be unconfined. We soak them long and bake them hot and saturate them with sauces. That is how they come to be such very delightful beans.

STOCKS MOVE UP ON MONEY OUTLOOK

With the domestic gold price again unchanged, and sterling and French francs dropping around 10 cents and 13 of a cent, respectively, equities that would not be especially benefited by inflation turned substantially higher, and even the so-called inflationary groups held their ground. United States government securities resumed their recovery and prime investment loans firmed. Grains and cotton were inclined to mark time, their price changes being narrow. There was a feeling in some quarters that the pegging of the dollar on a gold base was not far away.

Utility and rail shares made the best showing. The alcohols also rallied. The metals were a bit easier.

An advance of 21,613 freight car loadings for the week ended November 18 was about in line with forecasts. The total of 599,289 cars was 26,666 ahead of the 1932 week and 54,214 under the same period in 1931. Miscellaneous shipments were largely responsible for the week's increase.

Traders seemed to pay little attention to the fall of another French cabinet on the budgetary issue, to reports of expanding retail trade and a pickup in wholesale prices to the highest levels since the summer of 1931.

All eyes were turned on Washington and Warm Springs where tangible results of the currency controversy were expected to appear soon. While it was not believed the President would define his monetary plans in the speech he is to make tonight at a dedication ceremony, hopes were expressed that the Chief Executive might decide at the last moment to talk about the gold manipulation policy.

The defeat of the French government on the same issue which retired Daladier was not taken too seriously by foreign observers, notwithstanding the unsettlement of franc rates. Although nervousness over the fate of the franc has been noticeable in foreign exchange circles for some time, it was not believed the present political situation would result in the divorce of the gold standard. A new coalition cabinet was anticipated.

WHEAT VALUES TURN UP

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—An upward trend in grain prices developed early today. Absence of any material pressure to sell was an outstanding feature.

Opening unchanged to ¾ cent higher, wheat afterward rose all due, and that it has $2,340,500 advance, and subsequently showed a general upturn.

A tumble of more than 1½c a bushel from early top figures for wheat followed selling that came largely from eastern sources. This selling caught the market devoid of aggressive support, but purchasing enlarged on declines, and lifted prices again to around yesterday's close.

Relative strength shown by the corn market had at times a bracing effect on wheat and other grains, more than offsetting the sharp decline in sterling. Oats were governed mainly by the action of corn. Provisions were easy as a result of liquidation of December lard contracts.

Another Halt In Boosting Gold Prices

By B. C. FORBES

The price of gold was not raised by Washington yesterday. Only twice since Tuesday of last week has the metal been marked up, and then only a dime an ounce each time—from $33.56 to $33.76.

Mr. Forbes

This encourages bankers, who almost unanimously oppose Washington's gold policy, to believe that the hub-bub which is now being raised against further inflation is actually being heeded despite official assertions to the contrary.

The chorusus against further depreciation of the dollar is being swelled daily, almost hourly. Yesterday the advisory council of the Federal Reserve Board, consisting of well-known men from different sections of the country, issued an outspoken blast. It declared, among other things:

"As long as there is uncertainty in regard to the future value of the monetary unit, there can be no lasting or fundamental improvement in business."

It also warned that Government securities might suffer.

The issue is clearly drawn: Bankers want stabilization; Washington prefers to keep on "cheapening" the dollar for the time being.

THE CURRENCY warfare, naturally, does not tend to inspire confidence. Securities weakened yesterday. So did various commodities.

Pessimism is more rampant at the top than lower down. Not only does retail trade hold up, but most Wall street brokers are predicting higher stock prices. Here are the views of three firms quoted in an evening paper:

"The line of least resistance is upward.

"There is no reason to alter our view that stocks are a purchase both for near and long term.

"We think that within a reasonable length of time there will be a situation where increased fundsh will be devoted to the purchase of common stocks."

"The building industry is suffering more than any other in the country. Whereas in 1928-29, it was the biggest industry of all, now the charts show it is down to the lowest level.

"Under the present system of the NRA, if they don't change it, I believe it will be a complete flop. Gen. Johnson's original scheme of handling it was good, but before they got well started it was all changed. It is certainly a muddled mess now and very badly organized. With all these compliance boards they are talking of in different sections of the country, it is only going to make it worse. They ought to let the trade associations handle it, with a government authority on their board."

"What is going on now, in Washington and in many other directions, is, in my opinion, what the surgeons call 'an exploratory operation."

THE BUSIEST man at Washington is not the new acting Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., or even Gen. Johnson, but Harold Loy Ickes, persona gratissima with President Roosevelt—in other words, one of the President's whitest-haired aides.

Until recently a Chicago lawyer, interested in various worthy causes, he has had dumped in his lap no fewer than four gigantic jobs.

His first introduction to the nation was his surprise selection as Secretary of the Interior. Next Mr. Ickes was placed in supreme charge of the Public Works Administration, entrusted with the spending of $3,300,000,000, a larger sum and greater responsibility than handled by even the most important of business executives. Next he was put in charge of bossing America's colossal oil industry. More recently he was made head of a $200,000,000 enterprise to aid housing—buying, renting, selling, building homes and apartments which, supposedly, would not compete with private interests.

Since Henry Ford has been on the outs with NRA, perhaps Washington could not be expected to be remotely impressed by the motor magnate's recent observation:

"I have always thought that anyone who assumes to say how a business should be run ought to know something about it."

WISE ONES who have been "fleeing from the dollar" may not, after all, find the homecoming comfortable. What would it advantage rich men to store wealth in foreign lands if, by their unpatriotic action, they tore down their own country?

Let us stick to America through thick and thin!

BANKINSURANCE FUND BANS PUBLICITY

By CHARLES P. SHAEFFER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Banks will not be permitted to advertise their membership in the federal deposit insurance corporation until all members are announced simultaneously by the corporation.

A new regulation to this effect, just formulated by the corporation, was issued, it was said, to secure for all banks the same opportunity.

The ruling, it was said, will apply to all banks—national banks and member banks which automatically become members of the corporation, and non-member institutions which are privileged to join after making application and being subjected to examination.

It is reported that some banks have been advertising that they will become members of the corporation, and that their deposits will thus be insured within the limitations of the banking act which created the corporation This, the corporation said, violates the expressed purpose of Congress in passing the act.

The formal prohibitory regulation to banks reads:

"No bank shall hereafter advertise its prospective connection with the temporary fund of this corporation, by any form of announcement or publicity, nor shall any bank announce or advertise that it is, in fact, a member of the temporary fund of this corporation or that its deposits are insured within the limitations of the banking act of 1933 until announcement of the name of such bank as a member of the fund has been made under the authority of the board of directors of this corporation.

"The banks which qualify for membership will not be announced until all applications have been acted upon, and the announcements will then be made simultaneously."

BUSINESS HERE HAS SMALL GAIN

Business conditions in the Pittsburgh district have improved slightly in some lines, with sales of the larger stores increasing to some extent, and averaging from 10 to 15 per cent above the same period of last year, according to R. G. Dun & Co.

There is a slight improvement in wholesale lines, with dry goods sales materially larger than during last November, although under November, 1931.

Men's and women's wearing apparel and shoes are moving at about the same rate as last week, and there is a slight improvement in the volume of business transacted by wholesale jewelers, toys and novelties; with the volume of business in these lines higher than in November, 1932.

There is some buying of holiday merchandise in evidence with retailers, and there is more optimism prevailing over the prospects for a fair volume of holiday buying. The provision trade is being handicapped by a strike of packing house employes, and retail prices of meats have been advanced to some extent on that account.

OUTPUT DROPS

The rate of production of manufacturing plants in this district is down slightly, being placed at about 50 per cent of capacity, with production of iron and steel at less than 25 per cent of capacity, but the average rate is still close to 20 per cent higher than in November, 1932.

Demand for plate and window glass continues quiet, while there is a fair demand for household and tableware and also for liquor glassware. Other lines of industry continue at about the same level as last week.

OIL DECLINES

Production of crude oil in Western Pennsylvania has fallen off slightly and there has also been a moderate reduction in the amount of refined products on hand.

Production of bituminous coal continues to increase, with the rate of production higher than a year ago, and prices averaging from 50 per cent to 75 per cent higher, with run-of-mine coal averaging about $1.90 per ton at mines.

BROKERS LOANS DECLINE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve Member banks in New York City decreased $9,000,000 during the week ended November 22 to $698,000,000. This compares with $707,000,000 in the preceding week with the high record of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929, and the record low of $331,000,000 on July 27, 1932.

Bradstreet Editor To Talk on Radio

*Preliminary.

A REVIVAL in business activity took place last week. This followed three successive weeks of decline.

The improvement was reflected in nearly all phases of industrial and trade activity and was interpreted as an indication that the declining trend apparent since last summer has come to an end and the business will remain close to its present level during the balance of the year.

The index of business activity in the Pittsburgh district prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh stood at 57.5 in the week ended November 18. This figure is preliminary and subject to revision when more complete data are available.

This compared with an adjusted index of 56.1 in the previous week and an index of 56.5 in the week ended November 4.

Drops Below Level Of Two Years Ago

DURING THE PAST month the index has dropped several points below the level of two years ago. After being ahead of 1931 activity for several months. The index of 57.5 for the week ended November 18 compared with 61.3 in the corresponding week of 1931. It still is substantially above the corresponding month of 1932, when it stood at 46.6.

With the single exception of coal production, all the factors in the index now are below their level of two years ago. Coal output continued to expand last week under the stimulus of severe weather. The index for this phase of activity stood at 73.4 as against 68.7 in the previous week and 65.8 for the week ended November 4. It compared with 67.9 a year ago and 69.5 two years ago.

Steel Industry Continues Slump

THE ONLY FACTOR in the index which lost ground last week was production of iron and steel. The index for this industry dropped to 40.0 from 41.7 in the previous week. In view of the fact that recent estimates of production by the American Iron and Steel Institute have shown moderate gains for the country as a whole, it appears that the Pittsburgh district is lagging behind other parts of the country in this type of activity. This may be explained by the fact that the demand for lighter types of steel has been increasing while that for the heavier types has been declining. A major share of steel capacity here is devoted to the production of heavier lines such as rails and structural material.

FRIEND SPREADS YULE SPIRIT AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Already the Christmas spirit is abroad in the White House, brought breezily in by Miss Nancy Cook, furniture-fashioning partner of Mrs. Roosevelt.

From discarded White House rafters, she's carving exquisite paper knives, and making President Roosevelt's own gift "to order," as usual.

This year it's to be a hang-on-the-wall book-case, to hold 75 rare miniature volumes, part of his collection. In past years he has had tables and chests of Miss Cook's making.

Last year, and the year before, Mrs. Hoover had Christmas gifts of carved boxes and book-ends made of the wood taken from the White House when the Coolidges remodeled the roof. She wrote a poem to accompany the gifts, explaining their origin.

Miss Cook has added metal work to the wood-carving idea, making possible on her paper knives an engraved plaque which says:

DUKE CONVICTED IN LOTTERY

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The Duke of Atholl, one of the leading figures of the British peerage, was fined £25 (currently about $132) today for contravention of England's 110-year-old lotteries act.

Sir Rollo Graham Campbell, chief metropolitan magistrate, who presided over the hearing on the original summons, handed down his decision in the Bow street police station. The 66-year-old Scottish warrior's attorney, Norman Birkett, declared he would appeal.

In addition to the fine, the Duke also was ordered to pay the costs—amounting to 35 guineas.

The accusation was based on "a British Helpers Association appeal" sponsored by the Duke to "raise funds for the provision of the best medical treatment for people of moderate means."

A novel explanation for the origin of the idea was offered by the Duke. He said:

Pretender to Throne Of Afghans Gives Up

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Ghulam Dastgir, so-called pretender to the throne of Afghanistan, today surrendered with his companions to Zahir Shah, young Afghan king.

Dastgir's activities, coupled with those of two other agitators, a mad fakir and the Tor Malang, led up to troubles resulting in a British punitive air bombing expedition against hostile border villages in August.

First Lady Pictured As 'Envoy' to People

President Acquires Wide Views by Her Trips

Is the Nation's First Lady impairing the dignity of her position by her frequent interviews and photographs in the newspapers?

A negative answer to this frequently-asked question is given by Rita S. Halle, in the December Good Housekeeping. She bases her estimate of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's activities on an intimate study of the President's wife at a recent Washington conference.

In an article entitled "That First Lady of Ours," the writer says:

"I realize that Mrs. Roosevelt's much photographed trips were not for personal excitement or glory or pleasure, but rather because of her deep sympathy for and interest in every day people, and her genuine desire to help them. . . Because she can go places the President can't go, see people he can't see, and because of her rare gift of articulate expression she can bring back to him as no one else can, visualizations which result in benefit to you and all the masses of people who make up America."

Much of the publicity, the writer asserts, results from Mrs. Roosevelt's "honest desire to help newspaper reporters and cameramen get their stories." She adds:

"Her frequent posings and interviews are an accommodation rather than a vanity. . . She has eliminated a great deal of unnecessary formality, but she has not dispensed with any of the formal functions that are part of White House custom. She breaks precedent by doing things, not failing to do them. The difference between her and other First Ladies is not in the things she leaves undone, but in those she adds to what others have done."

PARTY BEATING CHARGE FAILS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Charges that Keith Carlin, government attorney, beat Mrs. Marue Frazer, wife of a retired Navy officer, after a party recently, were dismissed in Police Court today.

Assistant District Attorney Michael Keogh told the court his investigation caused him to believe the facts did not justify criminal prosecution and asked Judge Isaac R. Hitt to dismiss the $1,000 bond which Carlin had posted.

After this had been done Lieut. Com. Hugh C. Frazer, the husband, said he intends to bring further action against Carlin. He was not certain whether he would appeal Keogh's ruling to the Attorney General or institute civil action against Carlin.

Anna Dall Wins Argument to Ride 'Lower'

BOSTON, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—This is the story, as told at the South Station today, of how a President's daughter happened to travel back to Washington in a lower berth instead of a drawing room.

Certain an error had been made in the reservation, the conductor said:

"The President's daughter can't ride in an ordinary lower berth, so we have engaged the drawing room for you."

Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall was equally positive no mistake had been made in her reservation and dumped out the contents of her purse to prove it. She said:

"I've $4.53 here and that's all. If you want to give me a drawing room for that, I'm perfectly satisfied."

The conductor told the porter:

"Make up lower six."

'FIRST LADY' RECITES VERSE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt composed a bit of verse last night in the course of an address.

She was speaking to 800 Y. W. C. A. members on a topic assigned at the last minute.

Her "poem" paraphrased Robert Louis Stevenson's rhyme:

"The world is so full of a number of things
I am sure we should all be as happy as kings."

Mrs. Roosevelt's version was:

"The world is so full of a number of things
I find myself watching all three rings,
Wondering if our circus wild
Will meet the needs of next year's child."

"Things That Interest Me" was the topic assigned her.

Auto Crash Jails Man, Misses Wedding

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Instead of being married as he planned William Beckwith, 45, spent his wedding day in jail.

Unable to furnish $500 bail after his arrest on a charge of injuring a man with his automobile, Beckwith was locked up yesterday. His matrimonial predicament became known with the arrival at the jail of Mrs. Anna Potts, of Collegeville, and a clergyman.

LAYDENS AND SCOTS MUST HUSTLE TO WIN

Except for the post-season game in Miami on New Year's Day, Duquesne University will bring the best football campaign in its history to a close tomorrow with a battle against its old rival Geneva College, at Forbes Field. The Dukes will be striving for a percentage of .900 by scoring their ninth victory in a season that has seen them defeated only by Pitt, and, while the form charts indicate they will be successful, they can't hope to win without a hard fight. Returning as a coach to the field where he formerly starred as a player for Carnegie Tech against the Panthers and other foes, Jimmy Robertson will have his Beaver Falls machine in high gear for this final effort, and the traditional rivalry between the schools assures a tussle that will have no dull moments. The Dukes ought to win, according to the dope, but nothing is certain in present-day football, and Geneva must be respected as a dangerous opponent, even though weakened by the absence of Cliff Aultman, one of the best ends in the region.

Jimmy Robertson

Meeting New York U. in New York tomororw, while Pitt rests up for Thanksgiving Day, Carnegie Tech from one angle would appear to have little to fear from a team that has won only one game all season, that from Lafayette by a single point However, there is another angle that shows the Violet scored two touchdowns against powerful Fordham, and an eleven capable of doing that is not to be taken lightly The Skibos have not defeated N. Y. U. since 1929, but have a good chance to do so tomororw, though it may be a task to take the New York game and at the same time save something for the Panther engagement five days later.

FEATURE GAMES IN EAST AND MID-WEST

Though a number of other college teams will, like Pitt, remain idle tomorrow to rest up for Thanksgiving Day, the Saturday football card contains several feature events to be played in the East and Middle West. In Philadelphia, unbeaten Army will meet Navy in the annual service classic. Army has won 18 times to Navy's 12, with three ties. Navy has not defeated the Soldiers since 1921, though it got ties in 1923 and 1926. In Cambridge, Yale and Harvard will carry on a series that started in 1875. Yale has won 29 games, Harvard 16 and six times they finished on even terms.

In South Bend, Notre Dame and Southern California will stage their eighth meeting in a string that shows four victories for the Irish and three for the Trojans. Hunk Anderson still is striving for his first win over Howard Jones, having lost twice since he succeeded Knute Rockne. Though tied by Minnesota, Michigan can win the Western Conference title by defeating Northwestern in Evanston. Princeton, not yet beaten, tied nor scored on, will hardly be stopped by Rutgers. Undefeated Duke appears likely to continue its march at the expense of North Carolina State. Chicago and Dartmouth will put on an intersectional game in Chicago, and out on the Coast, Tiny Thornhill's Stanford team will meet California.

BOSTON SEES PITTSBURGH AS STANDOUT

Outside critics now admit that Pittsburgh has gained a place of special prominence on the football map this year by producing three college teams of the caliber of Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne. The Boston Herald says:

"You cannot blame Pittsburgh football fans for sticking out their chests this fall. What other city is there which can boast three such good college elevens as Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne? Each has lost only one game—Pitt to Minnesota, Carnegie to Purdue, and Duquesne to Pitt. And, strange to add, each of these outstanding teams boasts a great guard. Pitt has Doc Hartwig, the Dukes possess George Rado, and Carnegie Bunny Mirzio."

TARTANS DRILL AT SCENE OF VIOLET TILT

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Carnegie Tech's horticultural invasion of New York City reached Yankee Stadium stage today as the Plaid gridders, who tomorrow will attempt to do some posie picking, at the expense of New York University's football Violets, arrived on the scene of battle.

The Tartans came over from Pittsburgh last night, the trip being an uneventful one. Headquarters were established this morning at the Pennsylvania and a workout announced for the Stadium this afternoon.

Tomorrow's contest, which, a month ago, looked like one of those ho-hum ball games, has taken on an entirely different aspect. New York U. entered the game against Fordham conceded about as much chance of getting to first base against the Rams as an icicle in an open hearth. But what happened? Just this. The team drilled by Howard Cann and Luby DiMeolo pushed the Rams all over the ball park for three periods, led by 12 to 7 up to the final and then, out-manpowered and outclassed, were beaten 20 to 12.

TARTANS UPSET DOPE

Tech started the season with a new coach, a veteran line and a tough schedule. The Tartans exceeded the hopes of even their fondest admirers beat Temple and Notre Dame, lost a tough one to Purdue, were tied by Wash-Jeff and Michigan State and won over Georgetown and Xavier, minor opponents.

The outcome of the ball game tomorrow won't mean much when it comes to figuring out the national ratings when this helter-skelter old campaign draws to its well known close, but it is bound to be a nip and tuck, knockdown and drag out struggle, just as all Tech and New York U. battles in the past always have been.

Whenever a Tech-New York game is discussed, you can bet that bottom dollar that the famous 1928 game will be recalled. Remember, when Ken Strong led the powerful Violet machine of that year to Forbes Field, to take on Howdy Harpster and the unbeaten eleven of which he was the main cog?

The large Mister Strong proved to be entirely too much for the Tartans. Strong went berserk, giving a sensational exhibition of ball lugging, and he directed a defense that almost completely throttled Harpster's passing game.

This year's New York eleven is almost totally without outstanding stars, or was up until the Fordham game, when Smith, a right classy halfback, blossomed out in full bloom. Smith is an expert passer, and in Seigel, another halfback, has a fine target at which to throw. Smith-to-Seigel tomorrow may mean Tech-to-defeat.

But the Tartans are not without class themselves. They'll toss Bunny Burzio, stellar guard, at the Violets, and Burzio is good enough to cause the offensive of any eleven to quake and even shudder.

PASSING ANTICIPATED

In the backfield, there'll be Joe Mihm at fullback to batter the Violet line. Steve Terebus to confuse the New Yorkers trouble with his passing and running, and young Chuck Spisak and Angie Bevevino, the alternating quarterback pair, to add to the home eleven's woes with more passing.

The game may well develop into a brilliant aerial duel.

FRITZ ZIVIC WINS BY KNOCKOUT

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 24.—(AP.)—Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh welterweight, pounded out a three-round knockout over Don Miller, of Los Angeles, here last night. The Pennsylvania boy, weighing 141, spotted Miller six pounds.

PHILLY READY FOR CLASH OF ARMY-NAVY

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—The Army and Navy elevens both will take easy practice sessions today and rest for the big battle tomorrow. When the whistle blows the Army will have Kopsack, Hutchinson, Gooch, Bucknam, Jablonsky, Beall and Burlingame on the line and Johnson, Buckler, Sebastian and Stancook in the backfield.

Miller last night gave out two changes in the Middies' battlefront. James Fulp is slated to start at right end in place of Bob Dornin. Bob Johnson will be at right guard in place of Richard Burns.

The Army squad reached the city late last night. It was whisked off immediately to the Pine Valley Golf Club at Clementon, N. J.

Harpster Welcomes Grid Series With Duquesne

By HOWARD HARPSTER
Carnegie Tech Football Coach, All-American Quarterback, 1928

Judging from the great amount of favorable comment since Buddy Overend, Carnegie Tech's genial graduate manager, found a place for Duquesne University on our football schedule for next year and 1935, the move was a very popular one.

Speaking for Don Lovewell and myself, I would like to say that the Carnegie coaches were very much pleased with having Duquesne as one of our opponents, and we welcome the opportunity of resuming the friendly relations which we enjoyed with the Dukes while we were coaching at Geneva College.

During the three years we had charge of the Geneva squad, Don and I met Elmer Layden's team three times and each game resulted in one of the hardest fought, yet cleanest of the season. The games were closely contested and in none of the three did the winner outscore the loser by more than seven points.

Howard Harpster

The Dukes have made very rapid strides this season being the greatest in the school's history. Layden has built Duquesne from a small, unheard-of team with little or no following into one of the most feared teams in the East with a very large patronage. He has done a fine job.

Tomorrow, Carnegie Tech meets the biggest team we have played so far this season, New York University. Our scouts tell us the N. Y. U. tackles weigh more than 225 pounds each and that their entire team is made up of heavy men. The record of the New York team is none too impressive, but the few games which have been lost have been dropped to very strong teams.

The Violets led the great Fordham eleven by a 12-to-6 score with only three minutes remaining to be played, and then weakened to allow Jimmy Crowley's team to win by a 20-to-12 score.

SEES TOUGH GAME

If the New Yorkers are on edge, which I believe will be the case, we will be in a for a very tough afternoon. Since the two teams started relations in 1926, seven games have been played, and New York has come out on the long end of the score in six of them.

TURKEY SHOOT ARRANGED

The South Hills Sportsmen's Association will hold its Thanksgiving turkey shoot tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. The shoot is open to all comers. The grounds are located on Brownsville road.

DISTRICT RIVALS TO BATTLE AT FORBES FIELD

With Carnegie Tech in New York for its game with New York University tomorrow, local football interest this week-end is centered entirely on the Dukes' finale of the regular schedule, against Geneva College, at Forbes Field.

Even the Pitt players will be on deck, working out in the morning so they will be able to sit in as spectators after lunch.

LAYDEN LOOKS AHEAD

What would be the Dukes' last drill of the season but for the fact that they have that post-season battle with the University of Miami at Coral Gables, Fla., on New Year's Day is slated for this afternoon, when they will put the finishing touches on their preparations for the game with Coach Jimmy Robertson's Covenanters. The Bluffites had a good workout yesterday in which every detail was finished except the polishing process.

Ralph Daugherty, Pitt's All-America center of 1931, who has been scouting Tech all season, will see them play New York University. Yesterday's Pitt session saw the Panthers concentrating on ways and means of muffling the Tartans' passing game.

BATTLE AT GREENSBURG

SQUASH STARS OPEN SEASON

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Squash racquets and handball loom as features of extensive inter-club indoor sport program for the impending week-end, the racqueters being billed for tournament action on the Keystone A. C. courts this afternoon and the glove stars stepping to the mark in widely-scattered enclosures tomorrow and Sunday. The Keystone squash event is an invitation affair, while the hand-ballers mingle in City League lid-lifter, said inaugural having been redated after a false start earlier in the month.

Eight leading local luminaries will compete for squash racquets laurels of the one-day K. A. C. elimination. First round pairings pit City Champion McCook Reed against Bill Bickel; Jim Ebbert, against Charley Fagan; Joe Oliver, against Ed Seifert, lately of Princeton, and A. W. Schmidt, another talented Keystoner, against Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A leader.

The survivors of the Reed-Bickel and Ebbert-Fagan frays will clash in the upper semi-final, with the successful parties to the remaining contests tangling in the lower bracket. Ben Pope, K. A. C. professional, will supervise the play. Initial frame tilts get under way at 4:30 p. m.

The handball loop, with Y. M. H. A., Keystone A. C., Downtown Y. and P. A. A. comprising the top division and the same organization, plus Westinghouse Club, making up the B sector of the wheel, appears primed for interesting campaign.

The opening card calls for Keystone to encounter P. A. A. and for Downtown Y. to battle Y. M. H. A. in both sections. Westinghouse Club will be idle.

GEORGETOWN DENIES 'ROUGHNESS' CHARGES

TECH POSITION REFUTED BY OFFICIALS

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today is in receipt of "a statement of our defense in its entirety" as a result of the reports of rough tactics which are alleged to have developed during the football game last Saturday at Washington, D. C., between the Carnegie Tech eleven and Georgetown University.

The statement came direct from Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of Georgetown University. In detail it enumerates the various angles of the game and it includes expressions from the four officials assigned to the contest by Walter Okeson.

The expressions of the men who handled the contest absolve the Georgetown players from the charges that appeared immediately after the contest.

Prefacing the detailed statement of the officials was the following comment by Graduate Manager Murphy:

"Before the athletic authorities at Georgetown University make any defense concerning the unnecessary roughness and ungentlemanlike conduct of its football players, as alleged . . . they have obtained the unbiased opinions and observations of the four officials who were appointed by Walter Okeson, commissioner for the selection of Eastern Football Officials, to work the game."

Then follow the detail expressions of the four mentioned.

Referee P. P. Magoffin said, in part:

"I note considerable publicity in the papers concerning alleged unnecessary roughness in the Georgetown-Carnegie Tech football game played last Saturday. It seems to me it is no more or less than a 'tempest in a teapot,' and its effect only can be injurious to Washington football. As the referee of the game I wish to state it cannot possibly be classed as an unnecessarily rough game. I cannot recall a single complaint during the game by any Carnegie man. One Georgetown player complained on three consecutive plays of illegal use of the knees on the part of a Carnegie man, but I failed to detect the slightest unnecessarily rough use of the knees or unsportsmanlike conduct on the part of the Carnegie men. As a matter of fact there appeared to be an excellent feeling between the opposing players during most of the game, and there were numerous instances of opposing players helping opponents to their feet after plays.

"I was sorry over the incident after the game, and I feel that all teams before going on the field of play should be instructed to allow the officials to take possession of the ball after the game and bestow it upon the winning team, or in case of a tie, to the visiting team."

UMPIRE BACKS REFEREE

Umpire Paul Menton was just as emphatic in his remarks as to the cleanliness of the contest. Menton declared:

"I was greatly surprised when you said Carnegie Tech had accused Georgetown of 'rough tactics' in the game and after the game; it was hard for me to believe there was not some mistake."

Head Linesman S. J. Gass gave out a statement to the Washington Herald, which, among other things, stated.

"We're not supposed to speak out of turn, but I'm just itching to say that Saturday's game wasn't any rougher than any football game played here this year or anywhere else."

EGGS CHARGE DENIED

Field Judge J. G. Crowley, said:

"In regard to game played November 18 between Georgetown and Carnegie Tech, in which I was field judge, I can truthfully say that I didn't see any rough play or hear any abusive language."

Relative to the accusation that eggs were thrown at the motor coaches transporting the Tech players to their hotel, the Georgetown officials secured a statement from the 'bus drivers which denied this charge.

COACH GIVES VIEWS

"Concerning last week's game between Georgetown and Carnegie Tech, I saw nothing out of the way in regards to unnecessary roughness, and, if there had been such tactics used, the officials surely would have taken the necessary measures to prevent it.

"I asked our cheer leaders to have the students refrain from cheering while signals were being called. If they refused to comply with my request, there is nothing further I could do.

"In my estimation it was a hard-fought game. We received our share of injuries, as we always do in every game. After seeing that my boys were all right, I then went to the Carnegie Tech dressing room to pay my respects to Coach Harpster, but, upon being informed that he was not around, I then inquired for Capt. Stewart, to whom I apologized regarding the football incident. In reply, Stewart said: 'Aw, forget about it. It was just one of those things.' I presented him a new ball and congratulated him on the victory.

"There was a happy smile on all the faces of the Tech team and there were no indications of hard feelings existing. After the game some of our boys talked with a few members of the Tech team, and they gave our team only the highest praise for their excellent showing. One of the Tech boys, who participated in the game last year, said our team had improved 100 per cent.

"Prior to the game I asked Coach Harpster in the presence of an official, if he would consent to 12-minute periods for the third and fourth quarters in the event that the game was a one-sided affair. The score at the half was 6-0, nothing further was said concerning the time of the periods."

EDITORIAL LAUDS TECH

Graduate Manager Murphy said that he apologized to both Clarence Overend and Howard Harpster, Tech graduate manager and coach, respectively, for "the football player not giving the ball to your team."

Thomas X. Scully, editor of the Hoya, Georgetown student publication, writing editorially in the student newspaper, said:

"Georgetown always has considered Carnegie as a friend to be most highly regarded. We had thought her to entertain the same opinion of us. We would not, under any circumstances, risk that opinion."

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE REIGN OF THE BACHELORS—Even since the Turkish Empire was established in Constantinople, in 1453, the Sultans of Turkey were bound by iron tradition to refrain from marriage. The extensive imperial harems were filled with female slaves, whose status was that of concubines. The only exception was made by Sultan Soliman, the Magnificent, who raised his red-headed slave, Roxelane (1505-1561), to be the first and only Empress in the history of Turkey. Roxelane, whom Soliman named "Khorem" (The Joyous One), was a native of Rohatyn, a Ruthenian city, now part of Poland. She was carried to Stambul as a captive in a Tartar raid. Her beauty, combined with dark scheming and energy, finally prevailed upon the Sultan to break the ancient tradition. The Sultan's marriage was an unheard of sensation. THE MIRACULOUS POT—K'efr Kena, about four miles northeast of Nazareth, is believed to be the Cana of the Bible (John 2) where the Lord performed his first miracle. My cartoon depicts one of the original "six waterpots of stone," whose contents the Lord turned into wine at the celebrated wedding.

Boxers Squabble For Windup Spot

There is a squabble for position on the boxing card at the Moose Temple next Monday night. Jimmy Belmont and Joey Speigal were billed for the top 10-rounder, and now Joey Bazzone, who won a technical knockout victory over Belmont in the same ring recently, contends that he won't fight under Belmont and that it was his understanding his bout with Jackie Holt would be the windup.

Both of these battles are slated for 10 rounds.

Dominic Mancini has been promised a bout with Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, if he defeats Elmer Wilson in the second six-rounder Monday.

MAT REVIVAL DRAWS FANS TO GARDEN

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Wrestling got off to a good start in its revival under the banner of the Olympia A. C. in Motor Square Garden last night, close to 2,000 persons turning out for the fireworks.

It was the same type of wrestling which had been forced out months ago—grunting, groaning, kicking, punching and slapping and tossing and falling out of the ring, but the fans ate it up. They knew they were to see exhibitions and didn't expect anything else.

Gino Garibaldi, Italian Adonis, 215 pounds, outscrambled Vanka Zelezniak, bearded Russian, 225, in the main bout, pinning him with a body press after 38 minutes 37 seconds of entertainment, during which Garibaldi once was tossed into the newspapermen's laps, but managed to escape in safety and get back into the ring.

HERO BEATS VILLAIN

Paul Jones, of Texas, 210, finished Lew Plummer, of Notre Dame, 222, with a series of body slams followed by a body scissors, after 32 minutes, 17 seconds in the semi-final, limited to 45 minutes. It was a villain-and-hero act, with honest virtue triumphing in the end, as a result of which Jones may be seen in the main bout of the next show, which will be held in two weeks, plans for staging a card next week having been called off. The highlight of this bout cropped out when both wrestlers, entangled, wound up in an aisle outside the ring.

Karl Davis and Cliff Olson, 212½ and 192, respectively, went to a draw in the 30-minute second bout, the judges disagreeing and the referee's decision counting, and Floyd Marshall, of Arizona, 232½, was tossed by Milo Steinborn, the Strong Gent, with a bear hug after 8 minutes 26 seconds of pulling and hauling and plenty of cuffing in the opener.

REFEREE BEHAVES

Charles Dickerhoff was a tolerant but efficient referee who did not cramp the styles of the contestants too much.

SPORT VIGNETTES

One of the men who is glad the A. A. U. did not vote to change amateur boxing bouts from three rounds of three minutes each to five rounds of two minutes each is Eddie Weygandt, former featherweight boxer of New Castle, who now makes his home in McDonald O. . . . Eddie thinks that if the amateur officials want to do something for the amateur boxers they should cut the bouts to three two-minute rounds and let them go at that . . . He says few amateur boxers of limited experience know how to rate themselves in a bout and it is possible for them to fight themselves completely out in even one round of three minutes . . . As a matter of fact, he says, they would even try to crowd three minutes of fighting into two-minute rounds . . . Also, few of the simonpures know the trick of relaxing and recuperating during the one-minute rest period between rounds, which is a big item with the pros.

Lacrosse, the game which will be introduced to Pittsburgh within a few weeks at Motor Square Garden by a team in the National League playing a full schedule of games, dates back to the early sporting days of the Persians, when it was played as a sort of polo game . . . Outdoor lacrosse is played by 12 men on a field 170 to 200 feet long by 60 to 85 feet wide, but the game is shortened up to seven men because of the reduced playing area indoors.

The indoor version is called box lacrosse . . . It is just as rough as the outdoor variety . . . The players are equipped with sticks with a basket or cord arrangement at the end, and these are wielded in rather reckless fashion . . . A rubber ball about the size of a tennis ball is caught and tossed about in these baskets and goals are scored by throwing the ball into a cage at the end of the playing field . . . The playing court is encased in wire netting to protect the spectators from injury . . . The goal nets are 4½ feet high and wide . . . A semi-circle drawn 11 feet out from the goal is known as the "crease," and no player is permitted to encroach on this zone, as protection for the goalie, the goal tries being made from outside the crease.

Body checking is a big part of the sport, with the man playing or reaching for the ball usually the target. . . . Penalties of two, five and 10 minutes are meted out for violations of the rules. . . . They are known as minor, major and match fouls. . . . However, the code permits so much leeway that the game is a wide-open, wild and woolly affair on both offense and defense. . . . Most of the players are recruited from the leading college teams in the East and in Canada.

For years lacrosse was a sport among the North American Indians, who sometimes played with as many as 500 braves on a side, over a wide expanse of space, with the referee having little control over the "fun" once the game was under way. . . . Medicine men kept the tally and it was not uncommon for the scores to amount to more than 100 goals. . . . "Ball play" was the name given to the sport by Catlin, an early explorer, who found the Indians playing it more than a century ago. . . . The French first called it "la crosse," because the sticks resembled a Bishop's crozier.

Some historic football rivalries are slated for renewal tomorrow . . . For instance: Harvard vs. Yale, Carnegie Tech vs. New York University, Notre Dame vs. Southern California, Columbia vs. Syracuse, Army vs. Navy, Grove City vs. Thiel, Lehigh vs. Lafayette, Maryland vs. Washington and Lee, Muhlenberg vs. Dickinson, Princeton vs. Rutgers, Indiana vs. Purdue, Nebraska vs. Iowa, Northwestern vs. Michigan, Ohio State vs. Illinois, Ohio University vs. Ohio Wesleyan, Tulane vs. Sewanee, Stanford vs. California and Washington State vs. Washington . . . Then there is a good local rivalry meeting between Temple and Villanova at Philadelphia, and Dartmouth goes west to meet Chicago.—HARRY KECK.

AMBRIDGE, UNION SWITCH CLASH TOMORROW

SOCCER RIVALS SET FOR CUP CONTEST

By TOM BIRKS

The Pittsburgh district will see its first National amateur cup soccer game of the season tomorrow afternoon when Ambridge comes up from the Ohio Valley to meet the Union Switch and Signal eleven at Dixon Field.

Jimmy Gaylor's team will be primed for this game seeing that the Cecil aggregation dropped it out of the National open competition before the home crowd.

One thing is certain, the type of soccer played by Ambridge will fit in with the brand played by Swissvale. Both are exponents of the Scotch style, short passes, with little or no shooting until the penalty area is reached.

Three games will be played in the Central District League. Lawrenceville has a session all of its own when the league leading Arsenal booters meet the Dunwick Rovers at the High School Field and the Clan Douglas team hooks up with the Rovers at Leslie Park.

The Arsenal outfit received its first setback of the season last Saturday in the West Penn cup, so now it must concentrate upon winning the league title, which, by the way, appears to be in the bag with seven victories and no defeats.

Beltzhoover goes to Old Carnegie, and Fritz Reisman and his boys cannot expect to collect any points in the Luxbacher town. The Beadling team, composed of many veterans, should win by a good margin.

There will be a meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Referees' Association at its usual headquarters tomorrow night and according to Secretary Frank Hulet, the referees have quite a number of perplexing problems to solve.

LOCAL SKATERS LEAD IN RACE

A new combination representing Montreal was tied with the Pittsburgh team of Ake and Cleveland for the lead in the Duquesne Garden seven-day ice skating marathon at the finish of the 133rd hour of the grind at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Each team was credited with 7,286 laps.

Pop Fuller, of Montreal, who held the endurance record shattered by Carl Bartholomew early in the week in the local grind, dropped out during the night, as did Ed Kelly, of Los Angeles. Kelly quit because of exhaustion, and was under the care of Dr. M. R. Goldman today. Berres, who had been skating with Kelly, teamed up with Olzarski as a new Montreal combination, and Los Angeles was left without representation in the race.

The New York team of Lamb and Krux continued to lead in points, with 1,450 as compared to 1,075 for the Detroit duo.

To clear up a misconception in the matter of scoring on the race, announcement was made today that the sprint points will not figure at all except in the event of ties in the matter of laps covered at the finish. If teams are tied in laps, the one with the highest point total will be graded for position accordingly.

It is expected that the teams trailing in laps will begin their big push today to make up lost ground to place themselves in position for the prizes in the closing hours tomorrow night.

State Soccer Stars Tackle Springfield

STATE COLLEGE, Nov. 24.—Two undefeated soccer teams, both in running for the Eastern Intercollegiate championship, will clash here tomorrow when Penn State's crack team takes on the Springfield College booters in the final game of the season for the Nittany Lions.

Tomorrow's game was added to the schedule recently in order to give both teams an opportunity to qualify for the Eastern Association title.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Art Veltman, hard-hitting Pacific Coast recruit, will be given a fine opportunity to solve the Pirate catching puzzle next spring; if he is successful, George Gibson will ask the official scorers of the league to credit John McGraw with an assist on the play.

It was McGraw who changed the Texas kid from an outfielder into a catcher, reversing the procedure as noted in his handling of Mel Ott, who was transformed from an embryo maskman into a "sweet" outfield ball hawk by the Napoleon of the diamond.

McGraw's trained eye saw outfield greatness in Schoolboy Ott when that 16-year-old student came tramping into the Giant household equipped with the big mitt, mask and protector. The youngster seemed doubtful insofar as apt catching was concerned, but he quickly developed into one of the best outfielders of the game. I think he is next to Chuck Klein in all-round greatness among the Heydler circuit outfielders.

Art Veltman reported to the San Antonio camp of the Giants in 1929 as a thirdbaseman. The big rookie was as fleet as a deer, but there was something lacking in his field movements so McGraw sent him to the pasture patrol. The outfield, too, was hard for him to conquer; it was noted by his boss that he could not get a jump on a batted ball, and when an outfielder or infielder is unable to "break" naturally in the right direction at the right moment it is very difficult to make him great in his position.

Disgressing, you may have noted that the slow-moving Thevenow actually covers more ground around the shortfield than the speedy Vaughan. Tommy oftimes is running even before the ball is hit. Apparently wanting in this impulse, Arky gets a flatfooted start after the ball is hit, or worse still, he may "break" in the wrong direction. Some boys seemed to be endowed with a gift that recompenses for a lack of speed.

Getting back to Veltman, the boy was drilled in the fundamentals of catching. Eventually he was farmed out to Bridgeport where his progress was reported as fair enough, but the Giants in those days were possessed of capable receivers and in time they snapped the string attaching the youngster to the majors. Art was buffeted about the minors and bobbed up with the Oakland club last spring. He took part in 144 games and batted .331.

The best echo reaching Pittsburgh on the new Buccaneer catcher was wafted into town by Steve Swetonic. Steve had a talk with Fred Lindstrom after attending the Notre Dame-Pitt game. Lindy talked much of the Pirates and laid stress on Veltman's ability. Fred was a member of the McGrawian forces at the time John J. experimented with the youngster. The Pirate outfielder thinks Art has a lot of natural ability.

In his dramatic speech on the metric system and other mooted points before the A. A. U. delegates, Dr. Curracco, who is Luke Barnett when out of his Polish character, told of one of the first effects of Uncle Sam's recognition of Russia. Said the doctor:

"The ink wasn't dry on the paper recognizing Russia before the Pittsburgh Baseball Club made "Reds" out of Comorosky and Pietruzka."

William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, has returned home from the minor league confab in Galveston, Tex. Manager Gibson has departed for his home in Canada. Benswanger expressed great delight in the deal he and Manager Gibson transacted. Both Benswanger and Gibson will attend the major league meeting in Chicago in two weeks.

Jimmy Levey, local lad who starred at shortstop for the St. Louis Browns, will be a member of the Lawrenceville Merchants' basketball team. The Lawrenceville quintet is a member of the Allegheny County League.

Blue Loses in Final Of Carolina Tourney

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 24.—(INS.)—Going over par for the first time during the tourney, Dick Wilson, of Raleigh, today had dethroned Halbert J. Blue, of Pittsburgh, in the Carolina golf final, 1 up.

The same trip on the eighteenth, which cost Joe Turnesa first money in the Midsouth open last week, caught Blue's second shot and he emerged with a 6 that cost him his title.

MACKS RELEASE PAIR

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—(INS.)—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, today announced the release, on option, of Infielder Edward J. Chocket, of Wilmington, Del., and Pitcher Raymond Coombs, of Nantucket, Me., to the Jersey City Club in the International league.

SPORT COMMENT

accurate tabs on outside teams this season than in his efforts to win games for the University of Wisconsin. Spears, who has been doing some writing in addition to his coaching duties, pronounces University of Detroit one of the strongest teams in the Midwest. "Detroit really is tied with St. Mary's for having the strongest team among the Catholic universities," he writes. "This would make a great post-season game in California."

Dr. C. W. Spears

That Detroit has a claim to being the strongest team among the Catholic colleges will be news to Duquesne University and its football followers. The good doctor appears to have forgotten a game on October 20, in which Detroit met the Dukes at Forbes Field. The score was 14 to 0, and if memory serves, it wasn't Duquesne that had the "nothing." And St. Mary's, incidentally, was able to get only a 6-to-6 tie with Santa Clara.

SUGDEN GOES ON IN REMARKABLE CAREER

The only memory of the Pittsburgh club of 40 years ago that baseball still holds, apart from the continued connection of Connie Mack and Pat Donovan with the game, is kept alive by the St. Louis National League club's announcement that old Joe Sugden will be in the service of the Cardinals again next year. Sugden, now past 60, joined the Pirates in 1893, catching here for five seasons, and is the only member of that old club still wearing a uniform for service on the field. He coaches the young Cardinal pitchers and works out with them daily.

That is, when he isn't performing some other duty, for Joe always is ready to fill in somewhere. Sometimes he is a coach, sometimes a scout, sometimes the bullpen catcher. One day he may be working on a Redbird farm. Another day he may be warming up Dizzy Dean or Bill Hallahan in the big show. Sugden's hair is white. His face is wrinkled. His hands are gnarled, every finger on his throwing hand having been broken at least once or twice. But his baseball heart stays young, and whoever tries to take that old mitt away from him will have a battle on his hands.

BROUILLARD STARTS AFTER THIRD TITLE

In Boston tonight, Lou Brouillard will launch a campaign for his third ring championship. He won the welterweight crown from Jackie Fields and lost it back to the same fighter in his first defense of it. He took the middleweight title from Ben Jeby and dropped it to Vince Dundee in his first attempt to retain it. Continuing to take on poundage, Brouillard is now going after the light-heavyweight laurels, and tonight he meets Tony Shucco in a 10-round bout, to the winner of which is promised a championship match with Maxie Rosenbloom in the same Hub ring. Brouillard wasn't so hot in his last two fights, but if he can regain his normal stride with the strain of weight-making removed he would appear to have an edge on Shucco.

Lou Brouillard

A New York bout tonight will present two slipping topliners, with Kid Chocolate, featherweight champion outside the N. B. A., meeting Tony Canzoneri in an over-the-weight match. In his last four fights, Canzoneri was defeated twice by Barney Ross, once by Wes Ramey, and a decision he received over Frankie Klick, just a good second-rater, was disputed. Chocolate recently returned from an unsatisfactory visit to Europe. Neither fighter is what he was two years ago, when a meeting of the pair drew a gate of $88,000, but at that a spirited battle is in prospect, with the chances favoring Chocolate.

CASEY'S SELECTIONS

W. & J. over Bucknell.
Chicago over Dartmouth.
Duquesne over Geneva.
Carnegie Tech over New York U.
Columbia over Syracuse.
Princeton over Rutgers.
Harvard and Yale, a toss-up.
Army over Navy.

By EDDIE CASEY,
Member, All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Outstanding football teams are beginning to conclude their seasons in contests with their greatest rivals and tomorrow we will see many playing games of traditional rivalry. Foremost in this division is the game at Cambridge between Harvard and Yale. Neither is trying for any national or sectional championship, as both have been defeated twice. Yale has bowed to Army and Georgia, while Harvard has been defeated by Holy Cross and Army. Both teams started fairly well this year but encountered stiff opposition in mid-season. And yet the merit of each team has improved considerably. The material at both institutions is about the same, the type of game played is very similar in many ways, and the coming game looks like a very even proposition. Whichever team does win it will go a long way toward making the season a success.

Eddie Casey

ARMY MEETS NAVY

Another pair of long standing rivals will clash at Philadelphia when Army and Navy go to the mat on Franklin Field. Always a high light of the football season and always an exhibition of terrific football, this year will be no exception. The record of the Army is equal to any team in the East, its only contender being Princeton, and I would rate Army as superior to the Tigers. The Navy's record has been mediocre but they have, in some games, shown great promise. Last Saturday for three periods they held Princeton even, only wilting in the final quarter. Against the Army the Midshipmen always play their top game.

From comparative scores it may look like a cinch for the Cadets, but I don't believe it will be so easy. The Army first team is great, the reserves are not so formidable. It looks as if the first team will have to stay in most of the game and they will have to be in top shape to do so. The Navy's chief hope is in being able to weather the storm of a hard game for 60 minutes. In the final analysis I am inclined to believe that one of the deciding factors in this game will be that marvelous halfback of the Army, Jack Buckler. If this lad from Texas is right he should be too much for the Navy with his running, passing and kicking. But many great stars have "off days" in football!

TIGERS PLAY RUTGERS

Princeton takes on Rutgers in the last preliminary before the Yale game and I think the Tigers are in a very bad spot. This Rutgers team is good, a win over Princeton would make them sensational and you can bet they realize this. On the other hand Fritz Crisler at Princeton is faced with a psychological factor in this game. As the season's crucial games approach before the biggest game there is always a tendency for a team to let down and if Princeton does this, tomorrow's outcome will be very close. Moreover, Rutgers has a real good football team. Tiger watch out!

The Lafayette-Lehigh game is the most important on their respective schedules. The football fortunes of both teams this season have been very similar, with a shade in favor of Lafayette. This is always a game of intense competition and I think Lafayette will emerge the victor.

Dartmouth travels west to play Chicago after a disappointing season. The Green team has played good football but Dame Fortune refused them as much as a grin. In some games, particularly those with Yale and Princeton, they have looked like champions but always fell short of the mark. I would like to see Dartmouth rewarded but Chicago appears to hold the edge.

U. S. G. A. ADOPTS RULE CHANGES FOR 1934

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—With the approval of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, the executive committee of the United States Golf Association today announced adoption of a long series of changes in the rules, effective January 1, 1934.

Generally speaking, the alterations are aimed at simplifying the language of the rules, clarifying ambiguities and bringing the code up to date and in conformity with modern conditions and modern golfing architecture.

Among the changes were:

A change in the definition of a hazard so that a path or bush no longer are considered hazards and scrapes and casual water and all tracks are excluded from the definition of hazards.

An amendment to Rule 12, providing that unless the ball lies in or touches a hazard, the removal of loose impediments is not permitted, even though they are more than a club's length from the ball and even if the loose impediment lies in a hazard.

An amendment to Rule 15, adding a provision that before striking at a ball in play, "a player shall not improve the position of his ball by moving, bending or breaking anything fixed or growing."

An amendment to Subdivision 1, Rule 27, so that now where a ball is played from the teeing ground into a water hazard it may be teed. Formerly it had to be dropped.

A change in Subdivision 2, Rule 29, now omits the right given to either side to refuse to allow a person not engaged in the match to stand at the hole.

In the stroke rules, some of the changes made were:

Subdivision 2, Rule 8, has been altered to make the penalty two strokes instead of disqualification for playing one or more strokes with a wrong ball.

Rule 9 has been altered to make the penalty two strokes instead of one where a competitor's ball strikes himself, his caddie or his clubs.

Rule 13, Subdivision 2, changed to increase the penalty from one stroke to two where a competitor on the putting green strikes the ball of his fellow-competitor. The same change is made in Subdivision 5, where a competitor lifts his ball while his fellow-competitor's ball is in motion, both being on the green.

A number of alterations are made in the etiquette of the game, the most important of which requires a player to immediately leave the green when the result of a hole has been determined. Formerly this provision simply provided against practice putts being taken when so doing would delay following players.

Slade Selected As 'Partner' For Piet

CINCINNATI, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A belief that Shortstop Slade, purchased from the St. Louis Cardinals for an unrevealed sum, will be "far and away the best shortstop Cincinnati has had for many years," was expressed last night by Larry MacPhail, executive of the Reds.

MacPhail said he chose Slade particularly as a partner for Second Baseman Tony Piet, who was obtained from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a trade recently. He said:

"I feel quite confident the Reds will have the best second base combination they have ever had, without any exception at all."

DUKES DROPPED BY GENEVA, WASH.-JEFF.

The dropping of Duquesne University from the 1934 football schedules of Washington and Jefferson and Geneva College were two surprising developments of today.

Geneva will play Carnegie Tech next year. The Presidents also seek a contest with the Tartans, but the latter team finds it hard to find a place on its card for the Red and Black.

Grove City College also is among the missing on the Geneva schedule.

The playing chart of the Covenanters follows:

September 29—Carnegie Tech.
October 5—Thiel (night game).
October 12—Salem (night game).
October 19—Wash-Jeff (night game).
October 27—West Virginia Wesleyan.
November 3—At Waynesburg.
November 10—At Bethany.
November 17—Slippery Rock.
November 24—At Westminster.
The partial Wash-Jeff card follows:
September 29—At Pitt.
October 6—Wooster.
October 12—At Detroit U.
November 10—Bucknell.
November 29—West Virginia U.

Bayuk "Phillies"

forget two things

Forget that this cigar—at 10c—was considered the best 10c value in America.

Forget that this same cigar—now 5c—pleases the taste of more men than any other cigar on the market—irrespective of price.

Consider these facts alone. Does it please your taste? Does it give you more pleasure and satisfaction than any cigar you've ever smoked?

Other experienced smokers put Bayuk "Phillies" to this test. They compared it with cigars costing double and triple its price. The result speaks for itself. In ten months—at 5c—it has become the largest-selling and fastest-selling cigar.

Due to this rapid sale—the Bayuk "Phillies" you buy today is almost certain to be a fresh cigar. And freshness—as you know—makes a big difference in the enjoyment you get from any cigar.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarlyknownas"Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Havana and Domestic long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

SHORT SELLERS FORCE DOWN BONDS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—As was sure to happen, the decline in government bonds is now being "explained" as due to malicious attacks made by enemies of the Treasury.

The old bogies of "short selling" and "bear raids" are being trotted out just as they were being liquidated.

Some malign power is alleged to be trying to "get" those who have been running the Treasury.

One sure thing is that Dr. Sprague's resignation is not responsible. This is obvious, because bonds began to sell off right after Prof. Warren began to operate on the dollar. The President announced his policy October 23. Then bonds began to slide.

That is just a plain fact of recent history. It does not take any expert to see when bonds turned weak, and what happened just prior to their weakness.

EASY TO FIGURE

Anyone can figure the thing out for himself. Government bonds are payable in dollars, and are worth no more than dollars. The government first takes the dollar off the gold basis, and then proceeds to reduce the value of the dollar. How, then, can we expect the value of government bonds to remain unchanged?

You can't expect the value of any dollar bond to stay up when you put the value of the dollar down.

It is a plain fact that all high-grade dollar bonds have been declining. The slump has not been confined to government bonds. Why is this? Are we to conclude that some big bears have been selling all bonds short?

And what is Prof. Warren doing but sell the dollar? Is he not a bear on the dollar? He has been forcing it lower and lower in terms of gold.

But dollars are just as much the obligations of the government as bonds are. They are in large part practically Government notes.

The Civil War was paid for through public debt and greenbacks. Both depreciated greatly. Government 6s sold down to 83 in 1875.

Then wealthy people bought the bonds when they were low. Then the people were burdened with heavy taxes to make the bonds good. Then the bonds came back, and the buyers made big money.

Don't forget that the Liberty bonds have sold in the 80s, even though they were supposed to be payable in gold dollars.

CAN'T CONCEIVE DEFAULT

I cannot conceive of such a thing as a default in the case of our government bonds. I believe in the credit of the United States. In a sence, government bonds will come back. In the past, however, our bonds have been payable in gold. There had been no devaluation of the gold dollar.

Our bonds have always come back in terms of purchasing power and value because they have been payable in gold dollars of a definite value.

Now, insofar as we know, our bonds may not be payable in gold, and if they are the gold dollar will not be worth nearly as much as in the past. It may be permanently revalued at something like 50 cents worth.

So even if the "price" of bonds in smaller dollars should come back, the "value" of bonds in terms of purchasing power over commodities — the real income they yield—may be permanently reduced.

That might in a sense reduce the public debt. But you can't expect the bond holder to like it.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XL.

For the Brillings' dinner party, Rhoda wore an exquisite white satin gown.

She had a shrewd idea this virginal display was for the benefit of Tony O'Brien.

Tony had been bidden to the party, too. He had demurred at first, but finally had given in.

Rhoda was determined he should go. To keep on refusing would be churlish.

And Rhoda had done a great deal for him in the way of sending him clients in his law business.

He was indebted, then, to Rhoda. He must not antagonize her.

It wasn't in Tony's character, anyhow, to disappoint a woman who had been as pleasant to him as had Rhoda.

He liked Jack Brilling, too, in his careless Irish way. He was quite ignorant of the fact that Nollie had worked for him.

To tell him of the circumstances of her departure from the offices of Galbraith & Co. had been on the tip of Nollie's tongue.

But why spoil Tony's evening with the recital of what, after all, had been her own foolishness?

NOLLIE RETICENT

She had been wrong in taking supper with Jack Brilling when she was only a very minor employe in the firm of his now father-in-law, Mr. Galbraith.

And it had been a highly unpleasant ending . . . the fiancee's jealous wrath!

If Jinny Judson—who knew the whole circumstances—told Tony, that would be quite different, and outside Nollie's jurisdiction.

Nollie made up her mind in the meantime to say nothing.

* * *

In the luxurious hunting-lodge that Mr. Galbraith had loaned his daughter for her honeymoon, Tony was dinner-partner to Rhoda.

In her white satin dress that had something very virginal about it, Rhoda was beautiful.

Why on earth couldn't Nollie Day be here?

Like a cup of clear water on a broiling day . . . like an oasis in the desert . . .

And Rhoda Vane was, in reality, and not as she was posing now, Nollie's direct antithesis.

Like a glass of champagne that left one with a headache afterwards . . . like the hard glare of the noonday sun . . . further metaphors failed Tony.

SORRY FOR BRILLING

He talked and laughed in his gay Irish way, but his thoughts were busy with Nollie.

"What a hard face Madeleine Galbraith has got!" thought he. Tonight, $2.80 was a self-satisfied sum on it.

"Do look at her. She must be all of 40, but a bride. Isn't she kittenish?"

"I can't stand White. But it's a good thing old Madeleine pulled off this coup, for her own sake, and for Jack's sake, I hope she makes him happy."

"That I doubt. She's jealous as can be. He'll have to toe the line, from now on," whispered Rhoda.

"Only love's young dream. We think it TOO wonderful," burbled Rhoda.

They played old-fashioned games after dinner, and it was Rhoda—exhilarated by champagne and the stimulating presence of Tony—who suggested hide-and-seek-in-the-dark.

Madeleine agreed to this. She thought it would be a great lark.

Tony was "seeker." Rhoda determined she would isolate herself . . . Tony would find her . . . she would see that he did.

He would surely kiss her then? She would contrive that he would.

In an out-of-the-way bedroom Rhoda hid. Her heart—if she possessed such an organ—thudded as she heard Tony approaching.

NOLLIE SURPRISED

The door was half open in the closet where she was hiding . . .

He groped in there. His hand touched her bare shoulder.

"Rhoda, is that you?"

She practically threw herself into his arms, her hands about his neck, her body thrust against him.

* * *

Eleven o'clock! She'd go to bed. She felt restless, worried, visionary.

What was Tony doing at the Galbraith lodge? Was Rhoda making headway with him? Or Jack Brilling and his bride making trouble?

But Rhoda Vane was rich—and of another, larger world than Nollie's. She was beautiful.

* * *

"Acushla, I couldn't keep away. Let me come in. Oh, please, Nollie."

She had thrust the window back, and his head was level with her own and his Irish eyes were full of devilment and pleading.

"It's late. You shouldn't have broken away. What would Mrs. Judson say to this, Tony?"

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson. Rhoda visits the ranch. She is rude to Nollie, but plainly tries to gain Tony's favor. Tony confesses that he loves Nollie. Jack Brilling, Nollie's former employer, marries and is to visit near the Judson place with his bride.

Now Go On

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Your wife is still sentimental, old man.

Her hair may be streaked with gray, but that does not mean she is devoid of romance.

You may think she is foolish and unreasonable when she objects to your frequent absences from home.

You may think it is pure meanness when she objects to your long trips.

And you try to excuse yourself with the plea that you do not associate with other women at such times, but only with men companions.

She wants your companionship—does that surprise you?

She married you because she preferred your companionship to that of any other man and the chances are that she still cares more for your society than that of any other man.

Don't leave your wife alone so much.

SURRENDER OF CORNWALLIS, OCT. 19, 1781—VICTORY IN THE WAR FOR INDEPENDENCE

American alliance with France prompted the British to desperate efforts to subdue the "rebellion." Figuring on penetration along the line of least resistance, they transferred the battlefield to the South, disembarking an army at Savannah, Ga. (1778), another at Charlestown (1779).

Advancing North, they at first defeated the Americans, but were severely checked at the battle of Kings Mountain (1780) and forced back to the coast. Their newly erected naval base at Yorktown, Va., became the stage of the last scene in the heroic play of American liberation. THE FORUM MAGNUM OF ROME UNDER THE CAESARS

The Forum Magnum (great open place) was the very heart of Roman civic life. It stretched from the Arch of Septimus Severus to the Temple of the Dioscuri and was surrounded by magnificent buildings for judicial, legislative, administrative and religious purposes. Here orators addressed the people, acrobats offered entertainment, merchants their wares. (World History-Roman Customs)

MUSCLE SHOALS, GREAT U. S. DEVELOPMENT

To utilize the energy of the Tennessee River, the Wilson dam with hydro-electric plant (above) and two nitrate plants (to make fertilizer) were built at Muscle Shoals, Ala., by the U. S. government, costing about $150,000,000. They were partly finished in 1925 (see map at right).

On President Roosevelt's initiative, the Tennessee Valley Authority Act was passed by Congress and approved May 18, 1933, creating the Tennessee Valley Authority, a corporation empowered to finish, enlarge and operate the project. It will generate and distribute cheap electric power and fertilizer, assisting in the development of agriculture and industry in the neighboring states. The present capacity of 261,000 H. P. will be enlarged to 610,000 H. P. (Problems of Democracy)

RIGID AIRSHIP—HOW IT WAS CONCEIVED AND TO WHAT IT DEVELOPED

David Schwartz, a German engineer, constructed the first airship with rigid aluminum frame, covered with aluminum plates, in St. Petersburg (1893). It collapsed during inflation. A second, which he built in Berlin (1897), powered by a gasoline motor driving two aluminum propellers, was destroyed at its first ascent.

Count Friedrich von Zeppelin started to construct a rigid airship (1898) in a floating shed on Lake Constance near Friedrichshafen, the present seat of the big Zeppelin works. His design was developed and finally proved itself reliable and airworthy. To this type belongs the Macon of the United States Navy, the world's largest airship, built at Akron, O. It is shown above with its main dimensions. (Transportation)

COOLING CHECKS GROWTH OF BACTERIA

Besides balanced food (proteins, carbohydrates, fats) a dairy cow must have abundant fresh, pure water and a clean, well ventilated, light barn. Milking must be done under sanitary conditions; milk strained and cooled right after milking and refrigerated until consumed. Low temperature checks growth of bacteria in milk as shown above. SMOKE ELIMINATION
(Chemistry)

Smoke and dust are solids suspended in gases, a colloid dispersion; hence particles are electrically charged. By passing them between plates charged with high voltage electricity, the particles are attracted to the plates of opposite polarity and precipitated (Cottrell process). Where Diplomacy Is a Trade

But that nation has always been noted for its furious and continuous balloting. Before the revolution the states general had 52 Presidents in 21 months. Mirabeau managed to hold it until there was no more Mirabeau.

In England an overnight vote will granulate the existing cabinet and send the biggest men back home for the holidays. No disgrace is attached to defeat and little credit to victory

They're statesmen over there and realize that the capricious public should be allowed to take the wheel when there ain't any traffic. A cabinet falls, bounces and walks off uninjured.

Nobody worries. Every statesman knows the pendulum will swing back with the laughing tide and that a peg will fit any silk hat. You may be a peace ambassador one day and the minister of war the next. No change in tactics is necessary for either office for both jobs are big spoons for stirring up international suspicion and unrest.

They take their politics seriously and in the best possible ratio of dignity. A grateful nod to applause and a graceful bow to criticism. Win or lose, nobody signs up for vaudeville.

Diplomacy and statescraft are careers in the old world. They prep you from the cradle for high and dizzy office. You serve your nation in Africa, India, China, the tropics and the two arctics. If you can stand those changes of climate you can breathe anywhere under pressure. They bring you back home and give you a small portfolio to teeth on.

In this way the nation is in the hands of capable men who are voted for in rotation. You may be off the payroll temporarily, but your name remains on the roll of honor in leaf of gold. Having once worn the ermine you are always a fur trapper.

That ain't a bad system. The only fault is that the perpetual diplomat has a habit of wandering into peace conferences on his day off.

An Unjustifiable Bill

Tugwell Measure Would Bare Trade Secrets, and Make Cabinet Member Czar of Great Industry.

When Congress reconvenes in January, it appears certain that some determined efforts will be made to pass the so-called Tugwell bill, which has been drafted in the Department of Agriculture to supersede the federal Food and Drugs Act of 1906, commonly known as the Pure Food and Drugs Act.

The Tugwell bill resembles the National Recovery Act in its main characteristic—it subjects business enterprises to the kind of dictatorial bureaucratic control which already has caused resentment and protest.

But whereas the National Recovery Act is an emergency measure, limited in duration to two years, the Tugwell bill is designed to become a continuing part of our national legislation, and to remain on the federal statute books long after the NRA shall have served its purposes and been discarded.

Reputable and worthy manufacturers of food and drug products are agreed that the Food and Drugs Act of 1906 can be amended so as to protect the public and legitimate trade still further from unscrupulous practises and unsafe products.

Ostensibly toward that end, conferences were held earlier this year at Washington.

But instead of salutary amendments to the established law being offered, the Tugwell bill came forth as a complete substitute for the Food and Drugs Act, and was seen almost at once to be a radically different thing.

As drafted by Prof. R. G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, and R. G. Campbell, chief of the Food and Drug Administration, the bill embodies some highly objectionable elements.

This requirement is intended to protect the consuming public, but formulas—drug formulas especially—because of necessary technical terms and nomenclature are not comprehensible to the general public. Hence a more practicable method of assuring purity of products should be substituted.

Furthermore the bill in defining proper and improper methods for the advertising of foods and drugs goes so far as to declare that a food, drug or cosmetic advertisement may be held false if it "by ambiguity or inference creates a misleading impression."

How can any law-abiding manufacturer recognize either his rights or his duties in such vague language as that?

What is meant by "ambiguity or inference?" and WHOSE "inference" is meant?

Obviously, an advertisement may honestly say one thing, and somebody may erroneously INFER something else from it.

Does that inference make the manufacturer guilty of "false advertising?"

But the most dangerous and un-American feature of the Tugwell bill is the unprecedented and unlimited powers it would put into the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture—of ANY Secretary of Agriculture, no matter how incompetent or political-minded he might happen to be.

The bill provides that the Secretary shall make rules and regulations, set up standards, inspect factories and issue and revoke licenses or permits to conduct business—all AT HIS OWN UNQUALIFIED DISCRETION.

Under this provision, the Secretary or his subordinates may enter any factory at any time.

If no evidence is found to justify action, but the official visitant is merely suspicious, the Secretary may issue a license or permit—and may then suspend the license, or permit, for any violation of his own rules or orders, thus putting the firm out of business without the preliminary of a fair hearing and determination of a just cause.

When and if a hearing is afterward held, the Secretary of Agriculture will pass final judgment on his own charges.

In sum, the Tugwell bill would make the Secretary of Agriculture the lawmaker, the investigator, the prosecutor, the judge and the jury in any proceedings that he may bring under the proposed act.

It is estimated by the New York Board of Trade that all the industries which would be subjected to or affected by the Tugwell bill employ more than 1,775,000 workers, and produce annually more than $17,700,000,000 worth of honest merchandise.

The questions, therefore, that Congress must answer with respect to the Tugwell bill, are these:

FIRST—Are the American people willing to have a system of arbitrary "regulation" imposed PERMANENTLY upon so important and essential a group of industries? And SECOND—If these law-abiding industries are to be thus subjected to Czar like whims and regulations, what is to protect ALL INDUSTRY from similar governmental encroachment?

THIRD—Do the American people desire to abandon the reasonably liberal democratic policies under which industry has thriven in this country and substitute despotic industrial control by irresponsible and frequently ignorant government officials?

Aiding Mrs. Pinchot

The Stupid Public Officials Who Forbid Her to Speak Are Providing Enormous Audiences.

Thanks to the almost incredible stupidity and pigheadedness of the public officials in Vandergrift who refused to permit Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, to deliver an address in any public building, she had an enormous audience for her outdoor meeting Wednesday night. It is estimated that 10,000 persons heard her, which is only about a thousand less than the population of the borough.

Mrs. Pinchot is speaking in steel towns in behalf of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The steel companies are hostile to the union, and it is at the instance of the companies, express or implied, Mrs. Pinchot charges, that borough officials are trying to prevent her from speaking. The explanation seems reasonable.

She is reported to have encountered difficulty in obtaining a permit to speak in Homestead. That is the town whose reactionary burgess would not allow Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor in President Roosevelt's cabinet, to meet steel workers in a borough building.

We credited the steel companies and the borough officials subservient to the companies with greater intelligence than they are showing. It is hard to believe that they could be such blockheads.

Aside from the injustice of their policy, aside from their violation of the spirit of the United States Constitution, with its guarantee of freedom of speech and assembly, their course in seeking to prevent Mrs. Pinchot from speaking is screamingly funny because it not only nullifies their own purpose, but results in her having larger audiences and audiences that are more enthusiastic than she could possibly have hoped to have if the attempt had not been made to gag the Governor's wife.

The New Partner

(Copyright, 1933.)

Some time ago the American Architect—a periodical which speaks authoritatively in its field—reported that desirable building projects representing two billions of dollars were lying idle in the blueprint stage for lack of available building loans.

The American Architect and the Hearst newspapers recommended that the Federal Government, through its employment relief organizations, co-operate with the building trades in getting this delayed construction work under way. It was pointed out that many industries would be aided, and labor especially would benefit directly—for some 80 per cent of the cost of building enterprises is paid out in WAGES.

The Federal Government, through its Federal Home Loan Bank Board, now announces that 20 charters have been granted to Federal Savings and Loan Associations, and that 86 more such charters are to be granted in 26 States. Explaining the necessity for such measures, John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said:

"During the past five years it is estimated that an actual shortage of more than 800,000 family housing units has developed in the United States."

Building homes where homes are needed is a move in the right direction. The building trades and the building materials industries are essential trades and industries. In helping them the whole nation helps itself.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Thoughts while strolling: They say Mencken and Nathan will tie up in a new magazine venture. Who remembers when it was an oyster plant? Lily Pons has a skip to her walk like her name—lily-pons! What's become of Vincent Lopez? Hollywood studios clamor for Damon Runyon.

One of my favorite people—Fred Drake, The Filipino leader, Manuel Queson, suggests a shrunk Sam Shipman. Dick Hyland's studious expression. And Tallulah Bankhead suggests a statue in chalk these days. What a queenly looking lady Mary Roberts Rhinehart is! Also Mrs. Dana Gibson.

Somehow I'd like to see Owen Young leap-frog over a fire plug. It would do him good. The Ritz starters never change. Colin Clive, the actor, is a startling ringer for Jimmy Walker. What will become of peep-holes in speakeasies? Those Rialto doctors at every opening—Wagner and Michel.

Fred C. Kelley, a Xenia, O., boy, who made good in the city. Odd how minestrone is always served in a battered tureen. Eddie Duchin is the town's best blusher. That unroused detachment of Brock Pemberton. There's a gid-dyap to those jockey cap hats the ladies wear all right, all right!

One word description of Fred Allen—raspy. No person looks so unlike his photographs as Albert Wiggin. Louis Calhern and beautiful bride. Mary Pickford still excites the populace more than any other movie star. Forlorn old-timers around the Palace corner. What was it about variety that made us love it so?

* * *

Hoofing has recruited some of the best box office stars in the movies. Valentino, of course, was the most notable garniture. But there are also such feather-footed figures as Barbara Stanwyck, George Raft, Ginger Rogers, Ruby Keeler, James Cagney and Joan Crawford who began as fast steppers—mostly in Broadway night clubs.

* * *

The first of the literary minded to make the Algonquin their luncheon place was headed by the then youthful and irrepressible Booth Tarkington. In the very select circle too were George Ade, "Stuffy" Davis, Ort Wells, Harry Leon Wilson and the actor Roy Atwell.

* * *

There was a memorable night when Tarkington, zooming out of the Indiana corn belt, was given a celebration lasting from 4 one afternoon until the same hour the next. Then his cronies escorted him to the Algonquin and, to be certain he remained there, sequestered the clothes he wore. But two hours later "Tark" appeared at the Lambs, merry and bright, in fur coat, high hat and bedroom slippers. When the room became a little too stuffy he doffed his great coat and revealed himself in an old-fashioned night gown.

* * *

During this Roman Holiday Roy Atwell complained to Tarkington he had been unable to see "Havana," a hit at the Casino. As they moved in a devious but enchanting itinerary from this cafe to that he kept grumbling: "I want to go to 'Havana.'" It became so tiresome that one morning after a night of wassail and continued complaining Atwell awakened on a rolling boat—actually bound for the city of Havana. Without a sou!

Only one stage box in New York was ever denied the public. This was an upper tier at the New Amsterdam for A. L. Erlanger and friends. Erlanger finally abandoned the idea. But in the old Euclid Opera House in Cleveland stage box A remained inviolate from the time the theater was built until torn down. It was for the political leader Mark Hanna and at death passed to his son.

There's a glowy upshoot in the doughnut and coffee shop at 45th and Broadway. When opened three years ago I thought, en passant, how foolish! The rental there is about the highest on Broadway. But I notice they have taken the second floor and the manager tells me he feeds coffee and crullers to 4,000 a day. Faith in an idea!

* * *

Memory of the stern rebukes my doughnut dunking received in formative days has left an ineradicable scar. To this day when I duck into what Wilson Mizner called a sinker salon I have an uneasy feeling of being followed. And at the first dunk expect somebody to scream "Don't do that!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

More Mean Thoughts on Football

Nothing wrong with football itself. Only why go ga-ga over it? Other nations liked sports, too. English, French, German, Italian, Russian students went in for sports. But they also learned other things—got excited about other things. Their country, for instance. What was happening to their country?

But how much did the average American youngster know or care about politics?

And the Old Boys were worse. Might be some excuse for a kid. But when a whole nation goes oskey-wow-wow and throws its beanie in the air . . . ! ! !

So I asked for opinions. And got them. The bets being 36,524 to 1 that I was cuckoo. And ought to be canned.

So, of course, there is only one thing for me to do. Meaning what? Stand up and say I'm sorry? Not on your life! Stand up and say I'm right! I suspected it before. Now I know it. And this being open season for Big Noises, I'm going to register mine all over again—with additions.

Starting once more from the scratch—I'm for football. I go to football games when I have time. There's no argument; sports should be a part of our school program. But they should be a MINOR part. Are we educating our youngsters? Or are we just exercising them? After college, what? Do we grow up, or don't we?

Particularly, in a year like this—with dreadful millions on the verge of starvation and the government facing the grimmest crisis in our history—should we, or shouldn't we, cut out the rah-rahs and get down to business?

All right—all right—I know what you're going to say. You're going to point out how rich and powerful we Americans are, and how we need football to rest our mammoth brains.

All if which listens lovely. And I certainly wish it were so. But it isn't.

The simple, nasty truth is we Americans aren't rich and powerful. A few of us—to be exact, the one per cent who own over ninety per cent of the cash—are sitting swell. But the rest of us are in a terrible hole. And as for our mammoth brains—if they were really mammoth, we wouldn't be in that hole.

Why are we in it? We're in it because we stayed ga-ga instead of growing up. We were born sitting pretty—and thinking we were so smart that we didn't need to get any smarter. So we let our youngsters go on being Kiddies until after they were College Grads, and we went around acting like a lot of Cut-ups ourselves. With the natural consequences that—

WE BECAME THE WORLD'S RECORD BUNCH OF HALF-BAKED SAPS AND SUCKERS, AND THE REALLY SMART BOYS TOOK US FOR A RIDE!

All of which would have been impossible if we had known what we, and our world, were all about. But until the last four years you could put what the average American voter knew, or wanted to know, about the Status Quo, in a very small pig's eye.

Occasionally we got a little excited about some local politics, and we could always come home and tell what The Boss said about Those Fellows in Washington. But we had no real information or interest. And we didn't feel that we needed either.

Then along came the depression with its radio broadcasts, and we got wised-up and burnt-up, willy nilly. Now even the dumbest of us know we've been done dirt—and even the stubbornest of us are beginning to admit that maybe it was our own fault.

So what? Are we at last going to grow up? And run our nation to suit ourselves? Maybe! But we won't until we discover that there are several things more important than football scores, and then break the news to the kid.

Does that mean that you should turn in your season's tickets? It certainly doesn't. I'm going to a game myself tomorrow, if I can slip it over on my boss. And I advise you to do the same.

But for the luvva Mike, take it—then leave it! You're a Big Boy now. Act it when you leave the grandstand. Just because the kids dress up that way must Uncle Sam go round in padded panties? Look what happened to him because he did!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Men Are "Sneaking Up" On Us!

Men are encroaching on woman's ancient and inalienable rights! They are sneaking up on us!

* * *

Take alimony, for instance. Who ever dreamed, a few years ago, that several men would be collecting alimony from their more lucky, more efficient or more solvent spouses? Alimony was distinctly a WOMAN'S graft! You would no more have thought of a judge ordering a woman to pay alimony, than you would have thought of him ordering a man to wear petticoats. Or to powder his nose!

* * *

And there's heart-balm. Suing for breach-of-promise was once strictly a feminine privilege; but of late there have been a number of cases in which the broken-hearted and betrayed man was the complainant. An heiress or a big-butter-and-egg girl has to be awfully careful how she trifles with an innocent young gigolo's heart, these days. The woman pays!

* * *

To cap the climax, a man recently went to the hospital and had an operation, just when his wife went there for a "blessed event," thereby sharing the limelight, the flowers and the applause, which have always been exclusively woman's. Nobody ever thinks of a brand new baby as having a FATHER!

* * *

If you've ever seen a man standing at the kitchen door, looking on wistfully and timidly proffering "advice" while a woman mixes a salad or stirs a pudding, you can readily guess what's coming NEXT! Nearly every man has a secret suspicion that he can cook and a yen to putter around the kitchen.

* * *

Soon men will be invading the kitchen, and woman will probably have to go out and run the lawnmower, wash the car and shovel off snow, while her Bigger Half makes a lemon-meringue pie.

* * *

I once knew a man who could make a perfectly delectable lemon-meringue pie if you'd let him use all the pots and pans and didn't care what happened to the dishes. A woman can get a five-course dinner on a one-burner electric grill, but when a man attempts to cook a one-course breakfast, he requires the whole gas range and leaves the kitchen looking like a battlefield.

* * *

It has been whispered for some time that men have been sneaking into the beauty parlors—for a facial or a manicure and even to have their hair dyed. This is "for business reasons," of course. No man would put himself through these torments just for love.

Of course, there are certain feminine "rights," of which men will never rob the women—counting the laundry, writing the "duty letters" to the family, scrubbing out the ice box and making Junior wash behind the ears.

* * *

But, watch out! Women fought for "equality"—and now it looks as though we're going to GET it. The men are sneaking up on us!

Isn't It So?

It is better to eat sensibly and diet than to starve and die.

We know the truth, not only by reason, but also by the heart.

Human Side of the News

Upbuilding of the United States Navy Is Gratifying Feature of the Roosevelt Program

By Edwin C. Hill

ONE of the most satisfactory and reassuring activities of the "New Deal" is the upbuilding of the United States Navy. Once more, under another Roosevelt, we are launched on a new building program which will strengthen the Navy in aircraft-carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines, and provide, as well, employment to many thousands.

It is certainly a heartening fact that the men upon whose shoulders, mainly, rests the welfare of the institution upon which the safety of this country most literally depends, so clearly perceive the modern necessity for a strong American Navy. Neither the President nor Secretary Swanson fails to perceive the fact that we are living in a disordered world; a world in which the United States has scarcely a real friend. They realize that the United States, without a strong Navy, would be helpless, even as a neutral power, with other countries at war.

Without a Navy, and a strong Navy that other sea powers would respect, American commerce could scarcely move upon the seas. American ships would be halted in their courses, forbidden to enter this port or that; stopped and searched at will; confiscated at a whim. American commerce and the industry behind the commerce would be paralyzed, and millions who never saw a ship or the sea would lose employment and suffer from lack of the very necessaries of life.

* * *

National Ambitions Bring War

THAT is what a great Navy means to us, even in peace, when we are at peace with the rest of the world. Had our Navy not been strong during the World War, British ships and German submarines would have done about as they pleased, even in sight of our great Atlantic ports.

Would that the world were ruled differently; that war would never come again; that the merchant vessels of peace could make their way across the seven seas at all times without let or hindrance. But we are not living in that kind of world, and five hundred years to come or a thousand will not see that kind of world; will not see it until all national ambitions are abolished and commercial rivalries eliminated; cannot see it, unless mankind reverts to an almost purely agricultural existence, with life self-contained within the boundaries of every country.

For the industrial age, the machine age, means hot competition for world markets. And hot competition for world markets invariably brings on, as the most natural consequence, embittered rivalries, and such rivalries lead to armed conflicts. And even if our country remains firmly at peace, declining to lean to one side or another in any future war, we cannot escape humiliation and material loss and being dragged into war unless we have a Navy that will keep warring nations from doing as they please with our vessels of commerce.

There can be scarcely any question that the United States Navy has kept us out of more wars than ever it fought in. One need not go back a great way in our national history. Immediately after the Civil War ended, when France, under Napoleon III, had set up a new world empire in Mexico under Maximilian and Carolotta, war between France and the United States would almost certainly have occurred had not the French Emperor known he could not land his armies of Frenchmen through the barrier which Farragut and Porter would have set up in the Gulf of Mexico.

There was a day in Manila Bay when Admiral Dewey, forging ahead to attack the Spanish fleet, found himself in range of the menacing guns of Von Diederich's German squadron. But Von Diederich did not dare to plant himself in George Dewey's path. And a little later on, when the Kaiser threatened to send a fleet against Venezuela, President Theodore Roosevelt sent for Von Holleben, the German ambassador, and told him in blunt language that if the German fleet sailed, Admiral Dewey would be ordered to the coast of Venezuela with ships cleared for action.

* * *

Japanese Given Look at the Fleet

AND still later, when the Japanese people and government were burning with resentment against the exclusion of Japanese immigrants from California, when war was closer than more than a few people knew, it was the same Theodore Roosevelt who ordered the United States battlefleet around the world so that the Japanese might have time to visualize the might they were challenging before they took the irrevocable step.

There were tense days, too, in the early part of the Great War, when, caught as a neutral between the clashing forces of the British and the Germans, only the power of our Navy saved us from the deepest humiliation. A country which does business on the sea, to whom the freedom of the sea is the very breath of its national life, can no more do without a strong Navy than a policeman dare venture without a club into a district given over to thugs and thieves. We would be just as safe without a powerful Navy as an individual strolling at midnight, with his pockets full of cash, in a quarter given over to bandits and holdup men.

Thieves and thugs and holdup men are great for disarmament—for disarmament of the peaceful citizen. And I'm afraid there is a kind of analogy in international relations. European countries, and at least one Far Eastern power, would dearly love to see the United States let its Navy dwindle down to a few antiquated battleships and a few wornout destroyers and submarines.

New York Has High Quota Of Federal Leaders

By James T. Williams, Jr.

WHEN Henry Morgenthau, Jr., a few months hence, becomes in name as well as in effect the Secretary of the Treasury, he will be years younger than most of the 50 Americans who have preceded him in that important office.

Mr. Morgenthau, who is not yet 43, will also be the youngest member of the Roosevelt Cabinet.

Alexander Hamilton, the first Secretary of the Treasury, was only 32 when George Washington appointed him to organize that office at the beginning of his first administration in 1789.

In addition to being the first American to hold the Treasury portfolio, Hamilton still holds the record as the youngest [illegible] the ablest Secretary of [illegible] ury any President has ever h[illegible]

Oliver Wolcott, Jr., who succeeded Hamilton at the head of the Treasury Department, midway of Washington's second administration, was three years older than Hamilton at the time of his appointment.

* * *

Mellon Holds Service Record

ANDREW W. MELLON holds record for length of service in the Secretaryship of the Treasury. He was 66 when he entered the Cabinet of President Harding at the beginning of his administration. He was 77 when he retired from the Secretaryship of the Treasury in the last year of President Hoover's administration after 11 years' continuous service in the administrations of three Presidents.

Secretary Woodin began his cabinet service at the age of 65. But for the necessity of going to Arizona to recover his health, he would have undoubtedly remained in the Cabinet until the end of this administration.

The coming appointment of Mr. Morgenthau as Mr. Woodin's successor reveals the firm resolve of the President to have as his "Minister of Finance" a man of his personal choice rather than a Secretary of the Treasury appointed for geographical or political reasons.

Like Mr. Woodin, Mr. Morgenthau has been a close friend of Mr. Roosevelt for many years. He has been intimately associated with the formulation of the President's recovery program. He is a firm believer in its feasibility and ultimate success.

By going to the state of New York for his next secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Roosevelt retains for his native state the unprecedented distinction it enjoys under this administration.

* * *

Three New Yorkers In the Cabinet

THERE will still be three members of the President's cabinet who are citizens of the state of New York—the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Woodin, soon to be succeeded by Mr. Morgenthau, both New Yorkers; the Postmaster General, Mr. Farley, and the Secretary of Labor, Miss Perkins.

At the other end of Pennsylvania avenue, where the "Great Tribunal" dispenses "equal justice under law," three of its members are also citizens of the state of New York—Mr. Chief Justice Hughes, Mr. Justice Stone and Mr. Justice Cardozo.

Never before in American history has any State attained the honor enjoyed by New York today in numbering among its citizens the President of the United States and three members of his cabinet, and the Chief Justice of the United States and two Associate Justices of the United States Supreme Court.

But the success of an administration is not dependent upon the age or the geographical affiliations of the members of the Cabinet. The Cabinet, as Bryce describes it, is "a group of persons each individually dependent upon and answerable to the President, but with no joint policy, no collective responsibilities."

The responsibility for his administration devolves upon the President. He is the maker of its every policy. There must at all times exist between him and every member of his cabinet what is called "a perfect understanding."

This there was while Mr. Woodin was Secretary of the Treasury. This there will be when he is succeeded by Mr. Morgenthau at or before the turn of the year.

Income Taxpayer Faces New Jolt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—The income taxpayer will suffer a new jol under plans being drafted by the special House Ways and Means sub-committee named to revise hte administrative provisions of the tax laws.

While the sub-committee's principal task was the plugging of loopholes uncovered by the Senate Banking Committee, recommendations proposed by the majority will go much further.

Because of the urgent need of the government for revenue, the sub-committee has tentatively approved some changes which would result in taxpayers paying more in the next few years and benefiting later on.

This feature is involved in the allowances given corporations upon reorganization and in depreciation allowances in calculating income taxes.

"I think the changes will result in collecting $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 more revenue annually from the income tax laws," said Representative Hill (Dem.), of Washington, chairman of the sub-committee.

Knoxville to Use Power of Shoals

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 24.—This city will go to the polls tomorrow to vote on a $3,250,000 bond issue to finance the construction of a municipal electrical distributing plant to handle power from Muscle Shoals and the Norris Dam.

In a city primary held on November 11 both tickets advocated municipal ownership, but the defeated ticket opposed a bond issue, urging instead a loan from the government through the Public Works Administration. There is still confusion here on this issue although Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, indicated that the city might be able to borrow the money.

One of the chief arguments against a bond issue is the fact that this city already is bonded to the extent of $26,000,000 and many citizens feel that a new bond issue would create a dangerous financial situation.

41,000 Get 'Tags' Only 600 Pay Fines

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—Red tags may mean $2 fines to 600 motorists here, but to the other 40,000 who have received them they present merely a simple matter of friendly intervention.

This was disclosed recently at City Hall by statistics showing that city police, since January 1, have placed nearly 41,000 tags on automobiles for traffic violations. Of this number, fewer than 600 have paid fines or forfeits.

WOMAN TO WILL NAMESAKE R. L. STEVENSON'S BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Bourke Cockran, to whom the famous writer presented his own natal rights to November 13 when she complained to him in Somoa in 1891 that her own birthday fell on Christmas, announces she intends upon her death to will the day to her niece and namesake, Anita Leslie, of London.

She would not say how she passed the day, except that it was in the traditional fashion of "sporting of fine raiment, eating of rich meats and receipt of gifts, compliments and copies of verse," as Stevenson himself stipulated.

Should she ever fail so to observe the day, her rights revert to the President of the United States. The same stipulation will some day apply to Miss Leslie, 19, the daughter of Shane Leslie, novelist.

Gunfire in Temple Startles Mormons

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 24.—Gunfire from the parapets of the Latter Day Saints Temple startled occupants of nearby buildings. The objective, it was explained, was pigeons. Periodically the flocks that wheel about the spires of the historic edifice become so bothersome, clogging the drains with their nests, that the church authorities call out a marksman to pot them.

53-Year Old Ban On Liquor Faces Test in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 24.—Kansas, pioneer prohibition state, will vote in November, 1934, on whether it shall retain its 53-year-old legal banishment of liquor by constitutional amendment—the forerunner of the repudiated federal prohibition.

The referendum provided for next year by a special session of the Kansas Legislature, in the state where Carrie A. Nation gained nation-wide fame for her saloon-wrecking activities after Kansas became legally dry, will be the first test of the dry clause adopted in 1880, the first written in any state's constitution.

BACK AMENDMENT

The House accepted Senate amendments to the submission resolution, which was defeated at the last regular session, following an impassioned speech by Representative Plummer, a Republican, who said in part:

"Do you want to turn the state over to the national administration, the brewery interests, Wall street and Tammany Hall? Those are the interests now seeking control of our government."

The Senate voted for the resolution, 38 to 2, and the House accepted the amendments, 93 to 23, after having voted for the resolution, 95 to 24. Prohibition was adopted in 1880 by a popular vote of 92,302 to 84,304.

GOVERNOR REPEAL FOE

The existing prohibitory clause says:

"That the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors shall be forever prohibited in this state, except for medical, scientific and mechanical purposes."

The proposed amendment reads:

"The Legislature may license and regulate the manufacture, sale, possession and transportation of all liquors having any alcoholic content, and may impose special taxes on all malt, vinous and spiritous liquors, and may provide for the prohibition of such liquors in certain areas."

Gov. Alf M. Landon has expressed himself as opposed to repeal, but not to the referendum. His signature is not necessary.

Shoals Revives Alabama's Dream Of Canal to Gulf

MUSCLE SHOALS, Ala., Nov. 24.—With the new industrial importance added to Northern Alabama through the Muscle Shoals projects, the age-old dream cherished in this section of a short water route to the Gulf of Mexico has been revived, and with excellent chances of realization.

For more than 100 years Alabama's leading statesmen and industrialists have been trying to get the government interested in a propect to connect the Tennessee and Tombigbee rivers with a canal, thus shortening the present round-about water route from the northern section of the state to the gulf by 1,000 miles.

Now the plans are well on their way. The Tennessee Valley-Tombigbee River Association has been organized, with the specific mission of pushing the project through. The plans are to start the canal in the vicinity of Riverton, on the Tennessee, and to run it in a general southerly direction to Demopolis on the Tombigbee.

The Tennessee is Alabama's largest navigable river. It is rich in history and dear to the memories of all natives who can still remember the days when steamboats plowed up and down the river before the encroachment of the railways. It is still an important transportation medium, but the modern quest for speed and the long route northward to reach the Mississippi have cut its traffic considerably.

The newly-formed organization believes that with the construction of a canal river transportation on the old Tennessee will be revived. Direct connections with foreign-bound steamers at Mobile certainly would give it the importance Alabamans believe it deserves.

Pinchot Assailed on Rum Control By Rural Leader

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—Despite Gov. Gifford Pinchot's assertion that farmers are "the orphan child of Pennsylvania politics," the administration's liquor control bill now before the special session of the Legislature is a direct slap at rural Pennsylvania, J. Garfield Bagshaw, Hollidaysburg, claims.

Bagshaw is president of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors.

Pointing out that the McClure Control Bill provides that retail license fees collected in cities, boroughs and first-class townships go to the municipality but that fees collected in second-class townships are for use of the county, Bagshaw says:

"Pennsylvania has 1,512 second-class townships. In them live the bulk of the farmers, often referred to by the Governor as 'the orphan child of Pennsylvania politics.' They are the farmers for whose sake the Governor says the state should take over the township roads.

"But when an opportunity comes to give the second-class townships some real money, Gov. Pinchot, specifically exempts them. The big bad wolf may be at their doors, but they are to get no liquor license fees. It isn't fair."

BACKGAMMON GAINS FAVOR OVER BRIDGE ON MOVIE SETS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
(Universal Service).

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24. — Culbertson and Sims may be all the world in our best social circles as bridge mentors, but they are in for some keen competition on our motion picture sets.

Bridge, you see, threatens to be superseded by backgammon as an off-stage pastime. I don't see any lessening of the enthusiasm for bridge in our motion picture homes but for some reason backgammon and even checkers are more popular as a between-scenes pastime.

One of the hottest contests for the backgammon championship of Hollywood is now being waged by Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert on the "Night Bus" set at Columbia. In didn't take Clark very long to discover that his fair vis-a-vis in "Night Bus" was a backgammon fan. Out came the board and every moment that is not occupied in actually rehearsing or facing the winding camera is spent in a feverish effort to establish a record.

I don't know what will happen when Harold Lloyd starts his picture. Click, click, go the disks on his backgammon board day in and day out in his studio bungalow. He cuts short business conferences to get in a game and, if he ever gets Samuel Goldwyn started, goodness knows what will happen to production on the United Artists lots. Both play any game unusually well and are fond of their prowess.

The long, tedious wait between scenes on the set is one of the most difficult things the actor has to contend in making pictures. If he can occupy himself, well and good. Bridge in the past has served its purpose well, but it is not always posible to get a foursome. Backgamman and checkers take only two people.

Columbia Savant Heads Move to Make U.S. Utopia

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A new national organization which aims at the "complete transformation" of American life and a "whole new civilization," is being formed at Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Headed by Dr. Goodwin Watson, professor of educational psychology, the group is quietly attempting to enlist members among college students, professional men and others, hoping eventually to sweep the country.

DENY NAZI LINK

Denying that the organization has any Nazi tinge, that its members sing Nazi songs and contemplate wearing silver shirts, and that any kind of spy system is now in force or is planned, Dr. Watson said the movement was more anti-Fascist than otherwise.

A bulletin entitled "We Will," distributed by the organization, says in part:

"Our program is not limited to one race, one class, one section of the country, one creed, one sex or one age level against others. We are all-American.

"We are for everyone except the exploiter, the grafter, the parasite, those who are willing to accept special privileges for themselves while their fellow-citizens suffer."

GUARANTEE INCOME

"Guarantee a good living for every citizen from birth to death," with a minimum of $4,000 a year for the poorest family. As this would be a life-time income, there would be no need for savings, insurance, investments, charity or poor houses.

"Plenty of work for everyone," and with no unearned income in "interest, dividends or other ownership graft."

A guarantee of full civil liberties to everyone; more healthful living conditions, with the cities freed of all noise, automobile traffic and fire hazards.

Caruso, Jr. Seeks Career in Opera Via Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24. — A square shouldered Latin tenor with flashing brown eyes and a winning smile today is struggling for a movie carer that, he hopes, will lead him eventually to the heights of grand opera.

But he has one terrific handicap to overcome.

His name is Enrico Caruso, Jr. —and that, by his own confession, is the thing he must fight.

"If people will only judge me by what I am, and not by what my father was at his greatest," he sighed.

PRAISED BY MAESTRO

Young Caruso has been signed by Warner Brothers to appear in a series of Spanish pictures that may be followed with some films for American audiences.

I haf geeven him de voice—even now he is beetap than his fadder when he was joost starting," says his music teacher, Maestro Adolfo De La Huerta, who once was the president of Mexico, but now, under changing political fortune, has established himself in musical circles in Los Angeles.

Already the son of the greatest tenor of modern times has a full operatic range of voice—three octaves.

And unless something happens to intervene, Caruso will go on from the movies to follow the footsteps of his illustrious father —concert stage and opera.

TELLS OF FATHER

"I have worked hard for three years and now I feel I am ready," says Caruso proudly.

"Now I'm on the threshold of things. I realize I've got a great tradition to live up to.

"I'm not sure how I'll be as an actor, and I don't know if heart—or soul—will ever be as great as my father's.

"There was one brief conversation I had with him that I will never forget. I asked once when I was a child:

"'How do you sing the role . . .'

"He cut me short and snapped back:

"'I do not sing the role—I am the role!'"

Accordian Hides $2,350 Fake Bills

WACO, Tex., Nov. 24.—Robert Van Wie, city detective, found pleasure in the tones of an accordian he took from two men arrested on charges of passing counterfeit money.

Music was soothing, but a problem remained. Only one bill was found in possession of the men, who said they were from Detroit.

A wheeze in the pleated instrument drew Van Wie's attention. He acted on a hunch. He removed one end of the accordian. Out tumbled $2,350 in currency which officers said was spurious.

Van Wie quoted the men as admitting upon that development, that they had purchased $3,000 in bills in Chicago for 20 cents on the dollar.

Maude Adams Gives Salt Lake Portraits

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 24.—Maude Adams, remembering the place of her birth, has sent to the Art Barn Association here four large paintings of herself in various poses. Three are by M. W. Alexander. The fourth is the Peter Pan portrait by Sigismund de Ivanowski. Miss Adams made her first stage appearance in the historic Salt Lake Theater here as an infant.

$8,000,000 in Orders Placed for Ships

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 24.—With additional orders to be placed from week to week, the New York Shipbuilding Company has ordered approximately $8,000,000 worth of material since August 3 to be used in building six war vessels for the government.

$3,000,000 Fund For Homes Urged To Create Jobs

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—The building and loan industry believes "at least $300,000,000" could be spent wisely at this time for replacement and modernization of America's "unsanitary" and otherwise depreciated homes.

Already discussions have begun with the Federal Public Works Administration regarding a plan to use part of available housing construction funds for some such project, which the United States Building and Loan League terms the "greatest possible market for labor."

At least one-third of the nation's homes, it is estimated by the league, profitably could use an average of $500 for modernization or repairs.

URGE REPLACEMENT

In this connection, the league has proposed a double-barreled program—replacement of unsanitary one-and-two-family houses in communities protected by sanitary codes, and modernization of other homes whose values will slump still further if improvements are not made.

"Not more houses, but better houses constitute the actual need of the country in the residentical property field," says I. Friedlander, of Houston, Tex., chairman of the league's home-building and home-owning committee.

"This means that the nation needs a strenuous campaign for home maintenance. In our conception, the real crux of the matter is maintenance of value now existing in a home, not so much by making it fashionable as by making it comfortable according to modern standards of living.

JOB NEED CITED

"The major importance of providing adequate financing for modernization or maintenance projects lies in the need for employment in the construction trades, a need which could largely be met by a strenuous modernizing campaign among home owners who have equities to protect."

It is the league's contention that smaller cities, where a great proportion of the home maintenance activity would be conducted, should have the same opportunities as metropolitan areas where slum clearance projects naturally are centered.

"Decentralization of modernization and replacement activities," declares Friedlander, "also would aid materially in distributing the employment provided, and prevent an unwise trek to the cities of unemployed persons in small towns."

The league estimates its own loans for all purposes, including home modernization, will fall short this year of the approximately $500,000,000 loaned in 1932. In more "normal" years, the league's loans total about $1,000,000,000.

Bill Remitting Penalty on Tax Gains in Favor

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—Favorable reception accorded a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Samuel W. Salus, Philadelphia, for remission of penalties and interest on delinquent taxes is likely to bring amendments making it state-wide in scope.

Senators from other districts see in this bill an opportunity to expedite the collection of taxes in their own counties if the bill is amended to remove the restriction which confines it solely to Philadelphia.

The measure provides that the Philadelphia city council may abate all fines and penalties, including interest, on all taxes delinquent before January 1, 1932, provided taxes are paid in full before September 30 next year.

"The purpose of the bill," Senator Salus said, "is to give the city a chance to wipe a lot of bad debts off its books by accepting what it can get instead of insisting on full payment when there is slight chance of full payment being made."

Should Boy Be Kept in Ignorance?

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Until the slump came, the Brown family had never had to worry or think twice about money. Mr. Brown's factory was making big profits and besides living very comfortably, the family had a reserve that kept its bank account climbing. In fact, for quite a while after the slump came, Mrs. Brown was kept in ignorance of how serious it was, and continued to entertain freely, to buy expensive foods out of season and to hire help.

Finally things looked so black that Mr. Brown had a long talk with his wife one evening when their son Lindsay was away at a Scout meeting. When he finished Mrs. Brown was deathly white and tears coursed down her cheeks as she said: "If I had only known sooner! I've bought many things I didn't really need, and I could have saved a great deal. And I would have been so glad to do it, knowing that I was helping you. Why have you gone through all this alone? We've had a lot of fun together, and it isn't truly a partnership if we don't share the hard knocks, too."

TRULY PARTNERS

Gazing at her in grateful amazement, Mr. Brown replied: "I knew you'd be a good sport about it, but I didn't want you to suffer any deprivation as long as I could prevent it."

"My only suffering now is from knowing that we haven't been truly partners," said his wife.

Then, at the sound of the healthy, thumping tread of their 13-year-old son on the porch, he lifted a warning hand and said, "Not a word to Lindsay! Let the kid have all he can get. He doesn't need to know."

CHILD SHOULD KNOW

"Yes, he does need to know," said his wife, as the door opened. "We three are partners, all of us. Don't shut Lindsay out, as you have me. We will all meet this thing together."

And when Lindsay had heard the whole story, he filled the hearts of both with a warmth and gratitude they had never dreamed of.

"Okay," said the boy in a businesslike way, as he drew a fat pencil from his pocket. "Where can I get in on this? Just for a starter, I've been taking golf lessons and intended to go on two more months. That's out! Instead, I'll take a job caddying after school and week-ends. And where's that new magazine? They advertised for boys to get subscriptions. I'll go to it."

The eyes of both parents were misty, but they realized that their trouble had cemented a partnership of all three of them as perhaps nothing else could have done. They smiled at each other, and all realized that if wealth never came back, they had found something far more valuable in their complete unity of spirit and purpose.

Canada Regaining Flour Markets

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 24.—Canada is regaining many of the foreign markets for wheat flour which she had lost in recent years as a result of embargoes, tariffs and differences in exchange, according to reports issued by the Dominion's department of trade and commerce on business conditions for the first seven months of 1933.

Although still nearly 18,000 barrels under the total for the same period in 1931, exports of Canadian wheat flour during this seven-month period amounted to 3,383,951 barrels, an increase of 405,165 barrels over the corresponding period last year.

The survey shows that markets have been developed during the current year in France, Esthonia, Brazil, Ecuador, British East Africa and several other British possessions. There has also been increase in exports of this commodity to China, Japan, Italy and the Philippines. It was in the French market, however, where the Canadian gains have been most spectacular.

Beauty Lore No Longer A Secret

By HELEN FOLLETT

What women have learned about dress, about the values of color and line, has made the spectacle of femininity easier on the public eye.

Appreciation of beauty, ideals of beauty—aren't they worth while? You know it, Agnes and Dolly and pretty little Ann.

The formula of beauty embraces so many elements, they can't be listed. Besides lovely hair, fair complexion, sparkling eyes and the elegant coiffure must be included pretty hands, the soft spoken voice, charming manners, good nature and bouncing vitality.

We're stepping, stepping lively. Right along the beauty way. How terrible must have been the yoredays when a touch of rouge threw a woman out of her social circle and hair curling was a scandal.

The girl, with a long, thin neck must begin early to give it the care it requires, since this type of neck is likely to fall into fiddle strings.

After washing with soap and warm water at night, rinse with warm water and pat briskly with the towel to make the flesh glow. Rub in a massage cream; if it isn't at hand use lanoline or coco butter. Throw the head back, smooth the neck upward with the palms of the hands. Keep on forcing the flesh to absorb more of the emollient, which should remain on over night.

What sort of a breather are you, beauty-quester? Or don't you think about that at all?

Flooding the lungs with fresh air several times a day is one way of making roses bloom in the cheeks. It develops the fibers of the chest and increased bust measurement when the figure is flat.

Breathing exercises can go on any time, while waiting for a street car, before going to sleep, when rousing from sleep in the morning. Make it a regular habit. Results will show.

Knights to Fete Chartiers Pupils

A series of monthly dances at the Chartiers Council, Knights of Columbus home, Crafton, for public and parish high school pupils in the Chartiers valley will start Thursday night. The dances are sponsored by the council.

A dance for the younger business, college and prep school set of the valley will be held at the home tomorrow night. An activity for the younger boys is a troop of Boy Scouts at St. Paul's Orphanage.

A card party for members will be held Monday with A. J. Cypers as chairman.

Robert E. Lee Stamp Urged by Daughters

BALTIMORE, Nov. 24.—The United Daughters of the Confederacy have voted to petition the United States government to place upon one of its postage stamps the portrait of Gen. Robert E. Lee, commander of the Army of the Confederate States of America.

As precedent for the proposed honor to the southern leader the daughters point to the stone mountain memorial 50 cent pieces, which bore images of Lee and other "rebel" leaders.

The Stone Mountain coin drew fire from the Grand Army of the Republic camps in many sections of the country.

Maine Bans Beer After Midnight

AUGUSTA, Nov. 24.—The state beer commission has ruled that beer retailers may not sell, serve or give away the beverage after midnight. The ruling is the result of what the clerk of the commission said was the practice of some consumers of ordering a pitcher of beer just before midnight and sitting around the premises drinking it long after the legal hour.

Outlook for U. S. Brighter, Woodin Ill At Home Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Things appear much brighter generally for the nation and the future is promising, Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, now on sick leave from his cabinet post, had told interviewers today.

From his bed where he passes his mornings at the order of his doctors, Secretary Woodin declared that recognition of Russia and the repeal of prohibition would be great aids in improving conditions.

Mr. Woodin

He said that government bonds continued to be about the safest investment in the world and Americans who have been hastening to invest their money abroad will soon be in just as big a hurry to bring it back.

Despite his illness, the secretary of the treasury displayed his inextinguishable affability and optimism.

Woodin's face was ruddy and full, giving no hint of the illness that drove him out of Washington to rest in Arizona. He has an infection of the throat that results from time to time in ulcers, causing him extreme pain. The doctors have tried all sorts of things, serums and so forth, but what the secretary needs, they say, is quiet—and plenty of it.

"When I get to Arizona, I won't do any talking, except with the President, of course," Woodin said. "I tried very hard to keep on going in Washington, but what can you do as Secretary of the Treasury at times when you can't speak above a whisper? I don't expect to be gone more than three months."

"I have confidence," Mr. Woodin responded. "The success of the administration and the rehabilitation of the country are in the people's hands. The President has done everything to start things. It's too bad that there is any criticism of him. He's not trying to ruin the country; he's trying to rehabilitate it.

"If the people could only see the President work the way I have seen him work they would know that he is willing to sacrifice anything and everything for their sake."

Arctic Marriage Book for Pontiff

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 24.—Marriage customs among Indian pagans and converted Eskimos is the subject of a treatise which will be presented to Pope Pius by the Rt. Rev. Arsene Turquetil, famous throughout the Canadian provinces as the "Bishop of the Arctics."

The prelate, who is planning a pilgrimage to Rome in the near future, is a noted student of Eskimo life and has written a number of widely-read pamphlets on the subject. His latest work deals also with marriage among juveniles in the sparsely settled wastes of the Arctic regions.

The bishop's diocese, which extends far into the northern regions, is still a region where polygamy exists among the natives particularly where there is a wide discrepancy in the numbers of the sexes. Where there are more women than men, the males frequently take two wives. Where the female population is smaller the direct opposite is true.

And because of the scarcity of marriageable persons in some of the districts children are often betrothed by their parents when quite young.

Democrats and G.O.P. To Clash on Grid

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 24. The proverbial "political football" has reached the gridiron stage. The Young Men's Republican Club has accepted the challenge of the Young Men's Democratic Club to a football game, the proceeds to go to charity. The Democratic "boss" coach is George Meeker, former member of the United States Navy Pacific fleet championship eleven.

Film Critics Aid Hollywood Stars On Road to Fame

By REINE DAVIES
Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24.—It has been said that Hollywood is a glass house on a hill. Anyone may peer in and, having looked, is free to frankly discuss, laud or condemn what he has seen regarding the most intimate details of a screen star's private life, whether it be her artistry on the screen, what she eats for breakfast or the latest target for her amorous artillery. Furthermore, thousands of press clippings, gleaned from newspapers and periodicals, pour into the cinema capital daily.

Claudette Colbert

Careers are fostered or shattered by their contents, and fame and fortune are won or lost by their revelations. What do Hollywood luminaries think in those poignant moments when they read these decisive comments about themselves.

Imagine Claudette Colbert reading her first press notice, which included the very frank remark: "The play, 'Pigs,' is bad enough, but Colbert is worse." Was Claudette dismayed? She was not. She still has the clipping and says: "That review did a lot for me, for the fear of those words appearing in print again has always kept me on the alert."

WANTS TRUTH

A reviewer gave Mae Clarke her professional creed. In reviewing "Waterloo Bridge," one of Mae's earliest successes, the writer commented approvingly upon Mae's "sincerity and quiet force." Mae has never done a scene since then without that phrase in mind.

Norma Shearer is almost serious about her press notices and reads every one of them. She wants the truth and finds criticism, both favorable and adverse, valuable. For her approval, Norma was once presented with five different versions of a story that was to appear in a magazine. Without hesitation, she selected the one that was the most frank and revealed an intimate account of her early struggles.

Norma Shearer

The jovial Jack Oakie isn't very concerned about it all. He has the clipping-book job lifted from his shoulders by his mother. "She saves them all for posterity—whoever he is," grinned Jack.

Until recently, Loretta Young had paid surprisingly little attention to her publicity. The little that came to her notice she accepted as a matter of course. Then one day, her popular and engaging press representative, Margaret Ettinger, presented her with a press-book filled with her clippings. Loretta was amazed and is now fascinated with the growing collection.

Richard Arlen, too, would be without a press record of his colorful career if it had not been for an ardent fan of his, for he had neglected to preserve his clippings. But his admirer sent him a pressbook packed with notices and now Dick prizes it greatly. Dick reads all the reviews, because he believes "they usually criticize the picture rather than the actor, and if they do pan the actor he usually knows why."

JOAN METHODICAL

Louise Fazenda has almost a complete collection, dating back to the old Mack Sennett days. "The critics are not infallible," she says, "but they are a great help if one accepts their criticisms in the right spirit. I used to get discouraged when they were unfavorable, but eventually my sense of humor came to the rescue. I lost many valuable clippings when my house burned down at Malibu but I still have three large volumes."

Bullitt Kin Hits Russ Recognition

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 24.—(AP)—The Rev. James F. Bullitt, arch-deacon in charge of foreign work for the Episcopal Church house and an uncle of America's newly chosen ambassador to Russia, asserted in an interview recognition of the Soviet government is a "national disgrace."

"I feel the country has disgraced itself by establishing relations with a country which is beyond the pale—a pariah among nations," said Mr. Bullitt.

"Any country which has acted as Russia has to other nations and to its own people will keep no promises to us. It is not only their religious program to which I object; their entire idea of government is wrong.

"Russia did not keep its promise not to spread Soviet propaganda in England and France and I see no reason to believe it will make an exception of us."
